NEW NOTE SENT TO MEXICO CITY; DELIVERED TODAY

Demand for the Release of Consular Agent Is Repeated by Lansing.

CONGRESS LIKELY TO ACT

Returning Members Anxious to Take Up Mexican Question and Carry It to a Settlement.

LUIS CABRERA AS ACCUSER

Carranza Minister Charges That There Is Abundant Evidence of Collusion in Kidnapping.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The American reply to the Mexican note of Nov. 26, rejecting the demand for the immediate release of William O. Jenkins, American Consular agent, held in prison in Puebla, went forward before daylight this morning. It is addressed to George T. Summerlin, the American Chargé d'Affaires, at Mexico City, who is expected to have received and decoded it in time to deliver it to the Mexican Foreign Office tomorrow morning.

Beyond authorizing the statement that the Government's answer had been dispatched, Secretary of State Lansing declined to make any comment on the note. Nothing will be given out regarding the note until after the American Embassy at Mexico City has had opportunity to place the communication in the hands of the Mexican Foreign Office.

It can be stated, however, that the note involves no yielding of the position taken by the State Department in calling for the immediate release of Jenkins and that in dealing with this case the Administration is regarding it merely as one of a long train of wrongs in which the Mexican Government has failed to act to the satisfaction of the authorities at Washington. The new note, it is believed, is not strictly an ultimatum. Secretary Lansing is not desirous of acting otherwise than with the clearest record of this Government's attitude toward Mexico. It can be repeated that the Washington Government is very much in earnest in its present treatment of Mexican questions.

It is expected that Congress, which meets in regular session tomorrow, will devote close attention to the latest developments in the Mexican situation and that both houses will be ready to take a firm stand in the direction of strengthening the hands of the Administration.

Representative Davis of Tennessee, who represents the district in which Jenkins lives and who has been in close touch with the State Department in its handling of the case, is prepared to introduce a resolution the moment he considers it necessary. Returning members of the Foreign Affairs and Rules Committees have been in informal conference over the Mexican situation and have taken steps to obtain the latest information on the Jenkins case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30, (Associated Press).—Another note to the Mexican Government relating to the arrest and imprisonment of William O. Jenkins, Consular Agent at Puebla, was sent by the State Department today to the embassy at Mexico City for presentation tomorrow to Carranza.

The note, which some officials indicated might be the last on the subject, was in reply to Mexico's answer to a sharp demand by this Government for immediate release of Jenkins. No intimation of its character was disclosed, but officials in touch with the situation believed it was more emphatic than any sent heretofore.

There were no advices to the department today from the Mexican capital concerning the Jenkins case or the latest murder of another oil man, Wallace, although the embassy had been instructed to investigate and report.

Senators and Representatives, back today for the regular session of Congress tomorrow, took a lively interest in latest dispatches from the southern republic, and there were indications that debate would break loose in both houses tomorrow on the general Mexican situation. Several Senators who had expected to discuss the situation said they would await publication of the last note from this Government before expressing their views.

In some quarters it was believed that the President's message to Congress, to be presented on Tuesday, would have a good deal to say about Mexico.

Report Wide German Plot to Restore Kaiser This Month

DUSSELDORF, Nov. 30.—The German Socialists have discovered a monarchist plot of great ramifications, which has as its purpose the return to Germany at the beginning of December of former Emperor William and Crown Prince Frederick William.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, asked by his admirers for his impressions of recent events in Berlin and the situation in Germany, said:

"A people which has a living faith in an all-ruling justice can only be bent even by the heaviest decrees of fate, but not crushed. It is therefore our duty, even in the darkest days, to remain strong, in the hope that after endurance and action will come victory."

CONGRESS TODAY FACES BIG ISSUES

Foreign and Domestic Questions Made More Serious by Delay.

RAILWAYS TO THE FRONT

Wilson Likely to be Notified in Writing of Session and Then Send Message.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Congress will convene tomorrow with more big domestic and international questions confronting it than when it adjourned ten days ago without ratifying the peace treaty, enacting legislation to curb radicalism, or taking action on any reconstruction proposals.

In the opinion of many observers the coming session comes at a critical time. The strike continues in the steel industry. Injunction proceedings and a subsequent conference have failed to settle the soft coal strike. There is another crisis over Mexico. Railroad legislation is needed to protect the carriers after their release by the Government, while a strike is threatened among railroad employes. The issues that confronted the special session have become intensified by inaction and the failure of the treaty.

The situation is held to present harder and more important problems, so far as the individual and the Government are concerned, than in the reconstruction days after the civil war.

The international problems require vision for their solution, and the domestic ones demand drastic and positive treatment. The rise of the I. W. W.'s and other un-American movements call for force and common sense. American labor, stirred up by the radicals among them, is seeking better conditions and larger wages.

The Senate leaders are confronted with the necessity of making a decision as to how they will notify President Wilson that Congress is in session and ready to hear from him.

This is believed to be the first time in the history of the Government that on the meeting of a regular session of Congress a President was so seriously ill that he could not receive representatives of Congress. The usual practice is for each branch of Congress to pass resolutions for the appointment of a joint committee to visit the White House and notify the President of the organization of Congress and say that that body would be pleased to receive any communication he might care to send.

But the illness of the President and doubt as to the wisdom of having a joint committee call on him in his sickroom have raised a new situation. The novel questions raised were the subject of an informal exchange of views tonight between Senator Lodge, Republican leader, and Senator Hitchcock, the Democratic leader. Various methods of notifying the President have been canvassed. One was that he be notified in writing, while another suggestion was that a joint committee might go to the White House, be received by Secretary Lansing and notify him that Congress was in session. The committee might even call on the President in his sickroom, if the attending physicians were willing, but it has been virtually decided that it is not absolutely necessary that the committee should call personally.

After viewing the aspects of the question presented it has been virtually decided that the joint committee will probably notify the President in writing that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may send and receive a reply in writing from the President.

Under this plan the House and Senate Joint Committee will draft a letter to the President, signed by each member, notifying him that Congress is in session, send it to the White House by special messager, and receive an acknowledgment in writing from him by special messenger. In this event no members of the committee will go to the White House.

President Wilson in his message to Congress, it is reported, will request the Senate to dispose of the treaty speedily. The message, Administration advisers say, will be short and merely outline the necessity for legislation to deal with industry, the railroads and the radical movements. If the message is ready by Tuesday it will be read to both houses by the clerks.

There is a feeling of doubt among observers as to the ability of this Congress to take up the big questions fairly on a free nonpartisan basis. With the national conventions six months off, it will be difficult to separate politics from debate and legislation. The desire to obtain party advantage is likely to figure strongly in the session.

The Senate has as unfinished business the Cummins railroad bill. Unless the Democratic leaders offer a compromise, acceptable to the majority, it is likely that the railroad bill will occupy the attention of the Senate a month or more, during which period Senator Lodge may move for the passage of his resolution declaring war with Germany at an end.

The absence of Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Finance Committee, will delay action on revenue and tariff measures passed by the House. Senator Penrose said before his departure that the Republican Party in the Senate was opposed to piecemeal tariff revision.

The two most important bills to be considered at this session are the railroad and merchant marine measures. Another matter which the Republican majority will seek to act upon is a budget system to become effective at the beginning of the next fiscal year.

LODGE DECLARES HIS RESERVATIONS ARE THE 'MINIMUM'

READY TO MAKE 1920 ISSUE

Uncompromising Statement by Leader Challenges the Talk of a Compromise.

HE MAY MEET OPPOSITION

Whole Treaty Question Likely to Come Before Republican Committee Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—On the eve of the opening of Congress, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, leader of the Republican majority in the Senate, issued a statement in which he declared that the majority reservations to the Peace Treaty constituted "the irreducible minimum."

Arguing that these reservations represented the views of the Senate and a "vast majority" of the people, Senator Lodge asserted that immaterial verbal changes "would be foolish and needless," and declared that if the President wanted prompt ratification of the treaty with Germany "he has only to accept the reservations as they are."

His statement reads:

"The general feeling in Massachusetts unmistakably is one of great gratification that the treaty was not allowed to pass without the reservations put on by the Senate.

"The situation is perfectly simple.

"By decisive majorities the Senate put on fourteen reservations, all designed solely to protect the safety, independence and sovereignty of the United States. They did not nullify the treaty. They simply Americanized it.

"If the President had not interfered and issued orders against accepting the reservations the treaty would have been ratified with the reservations on Nov. 19. These reservations—the work of months—represent the views of the United States Senate and, in my judgment, of a vast majority of the people of the country. They constitute the irreducible minimum. Immaterial verbal changes would be foolish and needless.

"If the President desires to have prompt ratification of the treaty with Germany he has only to accept the reservations as they stand

"We desire final action, as I have said, but action must be based on the acceptance or rejection of the reservations as they are.

"I hope prompt action will be taken, but if the President decides that he will not accept these reservations and insists upon carrying them over to the election, those who are determined that the treaty shall be Americanized stand ready to meet him on that issue before the people."

The Lodge statement was interpreted as a challenge to the Administration. As the President in his letter to Senator Hitchcock just before the final Senate votes were taken expressed the view that the reservations involved "nullification" of the treaty, there seems to be little doubt that the President will not accept the reservations in their entirety, as insisted upon by Senator Lodge.

The statement by Lodge that the reservations are the irreducible minimum of the Republican Party and his assertion that those opposed to ratification of the treaty without amendment "stand ready to meet" the President "on that issue before the people," was taken to indicate the coming session will see an even more vigorous fight over the treaty than that which took place in the long special session just ended.

While Senator Lodge is the titular leader of his party in the Senate, it is doubted if he will be able to hold all the members of his party in line on his program of "no compromise," especially if the President should indicate a willingness to accept some reservations that might prove acceptable to the mild reservationists and some other Republicans.

Whether the views of Senator Lodge are supported by Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, could not be ascertained tonight. But he will be here this week, as will also committeemen from forty-eight States, to attend the meeting of the National Committee on Dec. 8 to arrange plans for the campaign of 1920.

It will then be ascertained whether the Republicans of the country are ready to stand behind Lodge in carrying the treaty fight to the country in 1920 on the basis of "no compromise." The National Committeemen, it is felt, had better opportunities of sensing the sentiment of Republicans in their States than have Senators who were tied down in Washington in the thick of the treaty fight.

Unless the National Committee is ready to stand behind Lodge in his fight, or go on record by resolution in support of making the fourteen reservations an "irreducible minimum," it is thought that it will be difficult for Mr. Lodge to command the solid strength of the Senate Republicans in favor of defeating the treaty rather than ratifying it by compromise.

Leaders on both sides of the Senate expect that President Wilson will with-

Germany Checks Exports Lest Country Be Stripped

BERLIN, Nov. 29, (Associated Press).—The Government's alarm over the manner in which the process of "selling out Germany" continues has finally forced it to enact temporary measures which are calculated to put a radical check on exports while definite legislation is in course of preparation.

Provisions already adopted call for imprisonment for the export of commodities which affect the vital needs of the nation and of other things of which Germany is being gradually stripped as a result of the low value of her money. There is also to be more rigid frontier control on exports.

The hotel keepers are debating measures for the levying of a tax on foreigners, who not only are overflowing the hotels but are suspected of living cheaper than natives, in view of the premium commanded on foreign money spent by them.

SEA OFFICERS FEAR RULE BY SAILORS

SEE DISCIPLINE IN PERIL

Tenure of Jobs at the Whim of Their Men, They Say, Accusing Owners of Weakness.

To protect themselves against unions among the crews and to preserve discipline at sea, the officers, engineers, doctors, and pursers of the Atlantic liners have formed an association at Liverpool, Southampton, and London, which is spreading to all British ports. Officers of ships in New York said yesterday they had had to take this action because of the attitude of the steamship lines in yielding to demands made by the men, without regard to the views of officers or the maintenance of discipline.

In several instances recently unions of seamen, firemen, and stewards have complained to the companies against certain officers and have obtained their removal under conditions which the officers contend were unfair to the men removed.

One case cited was that of E. C. Moore, formerly purser on the Cunarder Aquitania, and now on the Imperator. It was asserted that after paying off the crew in Southampton from 9 o'clock in the morning until 2 in the afternoon he stopped for luncheon. Several men from the steward's department went to the office to be paid. Moore, it was said, told them he would attend to them after luncheon, as they were late. The stewards' union lodged a complaint against him and he was relieved.

Dr. Samuel French, one of the best known ship surgeons in the Atlantic trade, was on the White Star Liner Baltic at sea when a steward went to his cabin at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and asked for medicine. The doctor was taking a bath and asked the man to return in half an hour. Instead, the man went to the delegate of his union and a complaint was made against the surgeon for hurting the steward's feelings. Dr. French said the surgeons had to join an association to protect themselves.

Captain David of the White Star liner Regina, arriving in New York after being all night on the bridge, went to the saloon for breakfast. The steward on duty told him it had been arranged for him to eat in his cabin. The Captain, it is said, replied: "While I am master of this ship, I will eat breakfast where I please." This shocked the steward so much that he reported the incident to the union delegate on board, and when the Regina returned to Liverpool the organization wrote to the White Star Line, complaining of the Captain's action.

Sailors have complained of the sharp manner in which officers have given orders on deck, and the officers, it is asserted, have been removed as a result of these complaints. The officers contend that orders must be given quickly at sea, and that men are better treated on board ship than they are ashore. The purpose of the association is to band the officers together so that when one of their number is removed at the behest of the union men under them, without a strong reason, other officers on board will leave if the owners yield to the demand without a good reason.

A senior officer of a liner in this port said yesterday that slackness in discipline on board the ships had increased to such an extent that they feared for their control of the men in the event of a great disaster. Firemen, they said, will not attend lifeboat drills at sea unless they feel like it, and engineers find it almost impossible to make them keep up steam.

The officer said lax discipline began with the enforcement of the La Follette Seamen's bill, which lessened the authority of the Captain and officers. It is asserted that the unions dictate to steamship companies what crews they shall carry on their ships.

Captain Charles Tupper of the Seamen's and Firemen's Unions in England, who is now in New York, has declared himself in favor of the officers' association as a step needed to maintain discipline. American steamship officers, engineers, pursers and doctors are expected to join, as the discipline on American vessels is said to be no better than on British ships. Shipping Board vessels which have to pick up nondescript crews and inexperienced officers frequently have to hoist signals for the police boat when they reach French and British ports.

HUSTLING REDS BACK TO EUROPE WELL UNDER WAY

MANY TO BE SHIPPED SOON

"Strike" of Radicals Spurred Officials to Unwonted Speed in Disposing of Prisoners.

INQUIRY INTO PAST DELAY

Officials of Department of Labor to be Heard by Congressional Committee Tomorrow.

All records for dealing with Reds were broken at Ellis Island in the forty-eight hours ended yesterday afternoon when, with the help of some heavy set agents of the Department of Justice, hearings were forced on all of the alien radicals who had attempted to stop their deportation by striking against their trials.

Those who were tried belonged to the groups of Reds who had been rounded up nearly a month ago by the Lusk Committee and the Department of Justice. Instead of delaying matters, their strike resulted in the settlement of their cases much earlier than would have been the case if they had made no trouble. It took three weeks to hear the first half of the sixty-eight Reds, and then the hearings were stopped by their strike last Monday. The Congressional Committee protested against the delay and asked Commissioner General Caminetti to force the cases ahead by compelling the attendance of the strikers.

After this had been ordered the hearings began on Friday, continued late at night on Friday and Saturday and were finished yesterday. The records in these cases will be sent on to Washington early this week. The members of the Congressional Committee on Immigration returned to Washington yesterday, determined to force final decisions within the next few days. While Reds who have been arrested for deportation because of their records as anarchists in the last few years have succeeded in remaining in this country from two to five years, the present group are likely to be on their way to Europe before the first of next year.

Hearing at Washington Tomorrow.

The Congressional Committee will hold a hearing on Tuesday at Washington, at which they will examine officials of the Department of Labor, who were charged by ex-Commissioner Howe with being responsible for the release of the Seattle group of Reds and several hundred others, most of whom were turned loose on New York after being arrested for revolutionary activities in other parts of the country.

While it was shown that Frederic C. Howe had ordered his subordinates not to place the Seattle Reds on outgoing boats and that they carried their appeal to Washington, Howe asserted that the release of these men was later authorized by Assistant Secretary of Labor L. F. Post. Mr. Post will be questioned as to the origin of the policy of releasing Reds on parole, when the law required that they should be placed on the next ship headed for their native lands, and as to the reason why the department has in some cases delayed for nearly two years in reaching a decision on their appeals. The committee will probably not ask Secretary of Labor Wilson himself to appear before it. Chairman Albert Johnson of the Congressional Committee said after testimony had been presented regarding the disposition of Red cases in the Department of Labor:

"It seems that while Secretary of Labor Wilson was overwhelmed with work regarding problems growing out of the war some of his subordinates have been handling these cases without regard to law or the interests of the country."

The most striking evidence of intrigue within the department to save Reds was a letter found by the committee in the files of Frederic C. Howe, written from Washington by D. A. Barton of the Committee on Industrial Relations with reference to George Andreytchine, a Bulgarian agitator, whose release was sought by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn after he had been ordered deported. This letter, after saying that Lincoln Steffens and George West had joined the intercessors for Miss Flynn's protégé and that the matter had been placed before Mr. Post, remarked that the solicitor for the department had rendered an opinion that the man must be deported.

Depended on Howe's Help.

It continued:

"Of course, we know that this is a rotten, legalistic incarnation of 'rat-eyed attorneyism,' but whether Secretary Wilson will agree to that is a question. Possibly, altogether we can scare him into agreeing.

"I feel pretty sure that Fred Howe will continue his parole and thus give him and us longer time in which to decide what to do and find out what Secretary Wilson's order will most likely be, if put up to him, and make such a stir throughout the country by our committee's fight and all the help we can get from the N. E. A. and other newspapers and the whole radical bunch."

The order of deportation was finally canceled in the absence of Secretary Wilson, by J. B. Densmore, the investigator of the Mooney case, who acted temporarily as Secretary of the depart-

STATES TO TAKE STEPS TO PRODUCE COAL; GOVERNORS WANT RIGID REGULATIONS; KANSAS CITY YARDMEN END STRIKE

Kansas Strikers Begin Damaging Mine Property As the State Prepares to Start Coal Mines Today

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 30.—Acts of sabotage in the Pittsburg coal fields were reported to Governor Allen today by State Mine Receivers. It was stated that the switch track to Mine 8 of the Hamilton Coal and Mine Company was wrecked Saturday night by dynamite and that all brasses were removed from the steam shovels belonging to the Acme Coal Company. Unconfirmed rumors of other damage in the Pittsburg district were also reported.

The probable opening of coal mines in the Osage County field, with a daily production estimated at 400 to 500 tons, and the dispatch of 1,200 National Guardsmen and 350 volunteer coal miners to the Cherokee Crawford coal district, were other developments in the coal situation in Kansas today.

Governor Allen today conferred with operators from the Osage County fields and afterward indicated that he hoped to have the mines there in operation by Tuesday. He said that the mines would be fully protected.

Governor Allen wired the War Department requesting equipment for four companies of cavalry to be available if it were found necessary to send mounted troops into the mining districts.

During the day 150 motor trucks which will be used to carry soldiers on patrol duty about the coal fields started for Pittsburg from many parts of the State.

More than 5,000 men have volunteered to work the mines, and more offers are being received daily. It is expected that more than 1,000 workers will be in the strip mines by the end of the week. Governor Allen hopes to be producing 100 cars of coal a day by the end of the week.

RAILROAD WORKERS GO BACK TO POSTS

CITY CALLED FOR REGULARS

Mass Meeting Asked for Troops to Meet Crisis of Coal Famine and Strike.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Monday, Dec. 1.—The strike of railway yardmen here which began Saturday was called off by the strikers early this morning. This action followed a vote taken at a mass meeting of strikers which lasted until far into the night. The strikers will return to work this morning.

Approximately 1,400 switchmen had walked out or failed to report for duty last night. Most roads were entirely without switchmen, only the Burlington and Rock Island having the usual number of crews at work.

The "outlaw" strike, so-called because union heads deny calling it, had not as yet been materially felt by the general public, but there was serious danger of the strike having a very serious effect in accentuating the scarcity of coal, already becoming acute.

One factor that may have had strong weight with inducing the strikers to return to work was a resolution adopted by 800 representative citizens of Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., at a mass meeting yesterday, requesting that Federal troops be sent to both as a result of the precarious situation caused by the coal strike and made worse by the strike of trainmen. Telegrams were sent in compliance with the resolution to Governor Gardner of Missouri and Governor Allen of Kansas by the Mayors of both cities and the President of the Chamber of Commerce.

The ending of the strike, it is said, will greatly relieve the serious situation confronting the city because of the fuel famine, due to the miners' strike. Whether the requests made for Federal troops will be rescinded could not be learned.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 30.—Eight hundred representative citizens of Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., at a mass meeting today adopted a resolution requesting that Federal troops be sent to both as a result of the precarious situation caused by the nation-wide coal strike and made worse by the strike of railroad trainmen. Telegrams were sent in compliance with the resolution to Governor Gardner of Missouri and Governor Allen of Kansas by the Mayors of both cities and the President of the Chamber of Commerce.

At the mass meeting it was asserted that the two cities were virtually without coal. It was said that if additional coal was obtainable it was practically impossible to move it because of the strike.

Troops were needed, it was asserted, for the protection of men who would volunteer to take the places of the striking yardmen.

Several speakers urged that Major Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the Central Department of the army, come here to take charge of the situation. An ex-service man was applauded when he asserted that former soldiers would protect the city until troops arrived.

Although Kansas City has a fully equipped regiment of National Guard, speakers, including Mayor James Cowgill, suggested that inasmuch as its personnel consists principally of business men, it would work a hardship to call them out at this time.

The mass meeting was primarily called to get an expression of opinion from business men as to the advisability of closing everything in the two cities for a period of three days. It was decided, however, to hold this plan in abeyance for the present, and the meeting devoted itself principally to the question of getting troops here to protect volunteer switchmen, so that coal could be moved.

It was decided, however, that all business houses in the two cities should not open until 9 A. M. tomorrow and close at 4 P. M. In addition all amusement places, schools, and other public gatherings will be closed.

MORE MINE OWNERS ACCEPT NEW SCALE

EMPLOY 75,000 UNION MEN

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Soft coal operators whose mines have an output of more than 60,000,000 tons a year accepted today, on the condition that operations resume immediately, the proposal of Dr. Harry A. Garfield, Federal Fuel Administrator, for a 14 per cent. increase in wages to all classes of mine labor. These operators employ about 75,000 union men now on strike in the bituminous fields of thirteen counties surrounding Johnstown, Pa., outside the central competitive district.

The operators ask the Government to appoint a commission or other tribunal to examine statistics to be prepared by the operators, but this is not made a condition of acceptance. The mine owners intend to prove that the new wage scale will change the status of District No. 2 with respect to the competitive basis.

About 150 operators were represented at the conference, which finally reached adjournment at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The meeting was started yesterday morning, and was in a virtual deadlock until early this morning, when a sub-committee recommended that the Garfield proposal be accepted.

All the operators are members of the Association of Bituminous Coal Operators of Central Pennsylvania. They represent the territory not included in the central competitive district and were not included in the recent conferences of this district at Washington.

B. M. Clark, President of the association, and other officials declined to make any statement other than to hand out copies of a resolution embracing the action of the association, and of a notice to the same effect that will be posted immediately at all the mines.

Text of Telegram to Garfield.

The telegram to Dr. Garfield follows:

"The operators of the central district of Pennsylvania, in meeting assembled at Philadelphia, Pa., on Nov. 29, adopted the following resolution:

"'Recognizing the seriousness of the present crisis and the urgent need of the country for coal, we wish to advise you, subject to your approval and conditioned upon the mines resuming operation immediately, that

"'We accept as a basis for the settlement of the present wage controversy and termination of the strike the figures submitted by you to the joint meeting of operators and miners held Wednesday, Nov. 26, 1919, namely, an average increase of 14 per cent. to be granted to all classes of mine labor, such increase to be applied in accordance with the wage basis provided in the wage scale agreements between the United Mine Workers of District No. 2 and the Association of Bituminous Coal Operators of Central Pennsylvania, thus preserving the competitive basis therein agreed to.

"'At the same time we wish to call your attention to the fact that the acceptance of this increase in wages seriously affects in many ways our competitive status with other districts. We shall rely upon the Government, when statistics are properly assembled and presented, to refer our competitive relation with other districts to a tribunal or commission to make such adjust-

GOVERNORS MEET IN CHICAGO

Agree Fuel Crisis Is Imminent and Urge Strict Economy.

WANT STATE COAL HEADS

Recommend That Complete Fuel Administration Be Perfected to Cover the Country.

DEMAND FAIR DISTRIBUTION

Will Await Results of Federal Action, but Will Send a Representative to Washington.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Governors of seven soft coal producing States at a conference today agreed that the State Governments should take all possible steps to obtain the production of coal and recommended to the Federal Government that a complete Fuel Administration, with an Administrator for each State, to be appointed by the Government, be perfected immediately. The State Executives also requested equitable distribution of coal under uniform and rigid regulations in all States.

Following the conference a statement was made public which announced that the Governors had unanimously agreed on the following recommendations:

"That a more complete Fuel Administration organization for the country be perfected by the appointment at once of a Fuel Administrator in each State, to be recommended by the Governor, to be compensated by the Federal Government, and to have full charge and control of all coal available for his State.

Want Fair Distribution of Coal.

"In view of the statements by Director General Hines to the effect that the production of soft coal is now 40 to 50 per cent. of normal, and in view of reports from other sources to the effect that the production of hard coal is now above normal, all coal mined and in stock in the United States, both soft and hard, should be distributed equitably among the forty-eight States on the basis of their needs as developed during the war, regardless of the State where mined.

"That rigid and uniform rules and regulations for the greatest conservation of coal throughout the Union be forthwith established, promulgated, and enforced.

"That the respective State Governments take all possible steps to secure the production of coal.

"That Miles C. Riley, Secretary of the Governors' Conference, be directed and delegated to proceed to Washington to present to the authorities the seriousness of the situation in the State and to remain in that city temporarily as a representative of the Governors."

The Executives participating in the conference, which was called by Governor Frederick D. Gardner of Missouri, announced that they had adjourned, to meet in St. Louis next Sunday. In the meantime they will wait further development of the Federal Government's efforts in bringing about resumption of production.

Governors in attendance at the conference were Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, James P. Goodrich of Indiana, W. L. Harding of Iowa, F. D. Gardner of Missouri, J. B. A. Robertson of Oklahoma, A. H. Roberts of Tennessee, and Attorney General R. J. Hopkins of Kansas, who represented Governor Henry J. Allen.

It was agreed by the Executives that their States faced a serious shortage of coal and that only the utmost conservation and the most rigidly supervised distribution would prevent suffering by the people and disaster to industry.

Governor Gardner announced after the conference that it was the sentiment of the meeting that the Governors should co-operate with the Federal officials, and until the Government had more time to put its plans for increasing production into effect no further action by the Governors' conference would be taken until the meeting one week hence in St. Louis.

MARYLAND MINERS DEFIANT.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 30.—The largest meeting of miners ever held at Frostburg was held this afternoon. At least 1,200 attended, and while all proceedings were informal, there having been no presiding officers and no motions being permitted, it was the sense of the assemblage not to go to work tomorrow, and it is accepted on all sides, both by the operators and the men, that the Georges Creek field will be closed tight.

The mines of the Upper Potomac territory were closed down last week, and this will make suspension as complete as it was on Nov. 1, involving about 10,000 men.

The meeting this afternoon was addressed by Frank J. Drum, acting District President, and Fred D. Thomas, acting Vice President and organizer, United Mine Workers, whose talks dealt wholly with the deliberations of the conference of the Scale Committee with the operators in Washington. The speakers were guarded, and there was nothing said which would be looked upon as encouraging another walkout.

SIOUX CITY CONSERVES FUEL.

Cuts Street Car Service and Orders Stores to Close at 4:30 o'Clock.

Special to The New York Times.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Nov. 30.—Beginning Monday, rigid conservation of fuel will be enforced in Sioux City and surrounding territory. In most nearby towns there are ample stores of coal and wood for schools and churches, but in many of them all amusement places have been closed indefinitely.

The Sioux City Street Railway Company will operate only half service tomorrow in the rush hours. Stores and offices are ordered to close at 4:30 and all electric signs used for advertising, as well as window displays, will be prohibited.

P. R. R. READY TO CUT TRAINS.

Would Drop Passenger Trains First if Compelled.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Plans for a 50 per cent. reduction of passenger traffic service, if curtailment becomes necessary because of a shortage of coal, are being made by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

So far the Pennsylvania lines have been able to get enough coal to keep traffic moving, despite the strike. It has been necessary, however, to seize coal in transit, and many complaints of such seizure have been received. The expectation is that the passenger traffic will suffer first if the strike is not settled and the supply of coal becomes inadequate to meet requirements.

CLOSE SCHOOLS IN NEBRASKA.

Lincoln Enforces Rigid Coal Economy to Prevent Suffering.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 30.—Tomorrow all public and private schools will be closed and regents will meet and decide whether to close the State University because of the diminishing supply of bituminous coal here.

Although the School Board and the university have enough fuel to heat their buildings for about a month, the local board, which has power to regulate the use of coal, asked thata the schools be closed so that this surplus might be secured for city use.

The board today also requested all fraternal, social, and literary societies to suspend their meetings indefinitely, while churches were asked to hold only one service each Sunday.

NO SECTIONAL AGREEMENTS.

Lewis Says Garfield, in Limiting Price, Precludes That Possibility.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 30.—"There is no possibility of making sectional agreements between the operators and miners at the present time," declared Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers today. "The action of the Government Fuel Administration in limiting a higher price of coal precludes the possibility of any such agreements."

Mr. Lewis declared he had nothing to say regarding the breaking up of the Washington parley or the conference of Governors of fuel-producing States at Chicago.

He refused to comment on what course of action will be taken by the miners.

ST. JOSEPH FACES DARKNESS.

Power and Water Plants Also on Verge of Shutdown.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 30.—This city, with only three carloads of coal in the railroad yards and with fuel oil practically unobtainable, tonight faces a complete closing of its light and power plant, water plant, and all big industries.

A mass meeting of citizens was called tonight for tomorrow morning to consider the situation. Conditions are said to result mainly from the strike of trainmen in Kansas City.

PREDICTS ANTHRACITE STRIKE.

Howat Believes Men in Pennsylvania Will Go Out Soon.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Nov. 30.—Alexander M. Howat, President of the Kansas district of the United Mine Workers of America, asserted on his return today from the Washington coal conference that 160,000 anthracite coal miners in Pennsylvania were expected to lay down their tools in a few days.

"No strike will be called and no demands will be made upon the operators," he declared. "The miners will just quit work."

The Pennsylvania miners, Howat said, believe the United Mine Workers are being "persecuted by the Government."

ARRESTS OF MINERS CONSIDERED POSSIBLE

Failure to Resume Work Might Be Construed As Violating Injunction.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 30.—The possibility of the arrest of miners who refuse to return to work tomorrow, when all mines will be opened by operators, in compliance with the decision of the Government, was indicated in the discussion in Federal circles here tonight. Officials were of the opinion that such refusal would be in violation of the Federal Court injunction against interference with coal production, in that it could be construed as encouragement of the strike, an action specifically prohibited under the provisions of the injunction.

No statement regarding what action, if any, the Federal agents intend to take, however, was forthcoming.

A statement issued yesterday by Dan W. Simms, special United States District Attorney, in charge of enforcement of the court's mandate, in which he said any person who has knowledge of the temporary injunction and who afterward violates its terms will be cited for contempt, was taken to mean such action would be taken, it was said, but Mr. Simms would make no comment on the statement.

There were no indications at the United Mine Workers' headquarters here that miners in the Indiana fields intend returning to work tomorrow. It was said that word from local leaders showed disinclination to return to work under the 14 per cent. wage advance. The leaders would not indicate what course they intended to pursue, but it is not thought the notices posted in the mines that operations will be resumed will meet response from the miners.

ments from a wage standpoint as will permit the mines in Central Pennsylvania to make a fair and reasonable profit as they are entitled to under the Lever law, and also give a fair and equitable wage earning basis to the miners of this district as compared with our competitive fields."

The notice to be posted at the mines reads:

"The Government of the United States having decided that mine workers are entitled to 14 per cent. average increase to bring wages up to the increased cost of living, this company gives notice that 14 per cent. average increase in wages is hereby granted, effective at once, such increase to be applied to the wage basis provided for in the present wage scale agreements, thus preserving the competitive basis therein agreed to. The new scale of wages will be posted as soon as possible."

John C. Forsyth of Clearfield, Pa., Secretary of the Operators' Association, said the owners of central Pennsylvania mines had more than met the conditions of Administrator Garfield. Wage advances heretofore granted, he said, brought the pay of miners in his district to within 4 per cent. of the peak of living costs, yet the operators were willing to accept the Government's 14 per cent. advance in order to keep the mines working.

It was predicted by officials of the association that the proposition made today would be rejected by the miners.

One official predicted that the whole subject would be referred by the miners to the union officials at Indianapolis who would in all likelihood, he said, call a convention to consider the offer of the operators.

WASHINGTON WAITS COAL RESULTS TODAY

Government Officials Still Hope Miners Will Make Drastic Action Unnecessary.

OPERATORS REPLY TO GLASS

Challenge Figures on Profits, and Want Average for Coal and Other Industries Made Public.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The developments of the week will probably determine whether the Government, through the Department of Justice and the Fuel Administration, will be forced to take further drastic steps to break the strike in the bituminous mines of the central competitive district. All of the Government departments involved were marking time today and watching reports to determine whether the majority of the men now on strike would return to work during the next few days.

Government officials have not given up hope that there will be a considerable return to the mines, and that it will be unnecessary to invoke the law again. But the agents of the Department of Justice have been given their instructions, and are prepared to proceed, where events warrant, against either miners or operators who conspire to obstruct production.

Reports concerning movement of soldiers and activities in the various fields where the strike situation is most acute were watched, but no official comment was forthcoming in the absence from the capital of Attorney General Palmer and Fuel Administrator Garfield. Mr. Palmer will probably return to Washington tomorrow.

The National Coal Association, through Vice President J. D. A. Morrow, made public a letter tonight, in which exceptions are taken to the statement by Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass in regard to profits made by the operators. The letter follows:

Hon. Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C.:

"Dear Sir—Reluctantly I find myself obliged to take issue with an informal statement furnished you by some of your experts and published Nov. 27 regarding the profits of bituminous coal mine operators. That statement has given the public an impression so incorrect and misleading that I must call your attention to its obvious inconsistencies.

"I feel sure that you did not personally weigh and test the statement contained therein, for I am confident that you wish to be fair and impartial, and a moment's consideration must have revealed to you the obviously erroneous impression certain to be created by the publication of the memorandum.

"The memorandum is apparently based on a casual inspection of the returns of certain individual coal companies. From these individual instances the impression is clearly given that the industry in 1917 made fabulous profits, with average returns on invested capital of 'from 100 per cent. to 150 per cent.' It is true that the foregoing statement refers only to the operators east of the Mississippi, but they produce nearly 90 per cent. of the total bituminous output.

"Certain individual concerns may have made such profits, but not the industry as a whole, and, as the Fuel Administration has pointed out, fairness demands consideration of the industry as a whole.

Says Receipts Were $1,249,272,837.

"For the entire bituminous industry in 1917 to make profits of from 100 per cent. to 150 per cent. on invested capital would require a total profit of upward of $1,500,000,000. According to the United States Geological Survey report, entitled 'Coal in 1917,' page 923, the total gross receipts of the operators for all the bituminous coal produced in 1917 was only $1,249,272,837. Hence the total gross receipts before deducting operating expenses were less than the total profits which would have to be made out of these receipts to justify the statement of your experts. This indicates the ridiculous nature of their casual generalizations.

"The statement respecting the profits in 1918 is even worse. The memorandum says in 1918 profits were generally 'reduced 25 per cent. to 30 per cent. less than for the preceding year.' In other words, they must have averaged from 75 to 125 per cent. This would mean total profits for the industry in the neighborhood of from $750,000,000 to $1,250,000,000.

"Fortunately, on Nov. 10 the Fuel Administration issued exact information on this subject. It stated that for the year 1918 the average gross margin realized by the bituminous producers was 46 cents per ton, out of which interest charges, selling expense, Federal taxes, both normal and excess profit, as well as certain other items not allowed in computing costs were paid before any profit remained. According to the United States Geological Survey, the total production of bituminous coal in 1918 was just under 580,000,000 tons. A gross margin of 46 cents on this tonnage amounts to $266,800,000, most of which was not profit.

"This statement of the Fuel Administration was given to the newspapers, had been made public and attracted wide notice more than a week before your experts handed you their memorandum indicating that the profits in 1918 were from three to five times the total gross margin actually realized by the operators during the time that the United States Fuel Administration was exercising a careful and exact control of prices.

Wants Average Profit Published.

"The Fuel Administration has emphasized the fact that general conclusions affecting bituminous coal selling prices can safely be drawn only from averages covering the entire industry. I know that you wish to be fair to this industry as well as to all others. Therefore, as a correction to the memorandum of the 27th, I respectfully request that you publish the average per cent. of profit on capital invested, both before and after paying Federal taxes, for the bituminous industry as a whole.

"The Fuel Administration has also pointed out that a comparison of earnings of employes in this industry with earnings of workers in other industries is necessary to a fair consideration of wage problems. Likewise, a comparison of profits in this industry with those in all other industries is necessary if you mean to set forth fairly the aspect of the bituminous coal mining industry. I must, therefore, further respectfully request that at the same time you also publish for the other industries their average percentage of profits both before and after Federal taxes have been paid.

"In conclusion let me add, this is asked not because it has any direct determined not with regard to conditions of two or three years ago, but with reference to present conditions. It is well known that in 1919 prices have been lower, costs higher and margins much smaller than in 1918; in many cases profits having entirely disappeared. Therefore, in asking for the publication of the averages suggested this industry is asking merely for a simple act of justice to correct finally and effectively the erroneous public impression created by ill-considered statements from those whose words carry the weight of authority.

"Since I feel that this entire discussion should be open to the public, I am taking the liberty of handing this letter to the press."

Very respectfully yours,
"J. D. A. MORROW."

STRATFORD MAY START SCHOOL FOR OUR BOYS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Stratford-upon-Avon is considering a scheme for developing its old grammar school into a public school (in the English sense) as a war memorial, with scholarships permitting American boys to be educated there and English boys to complete their education in American universities.

For this scheme at least £250,000 will be required, and "Shakespeare's School will thus form a new bond of union between the two great nations that speak the language he wrote."

BIG EXPORTS TO BELGIUM.

Total Value Since War Ended $283,417,698, or $37 Per Capita.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Since the war ended the United States has exported to Belgium goods valued at $283,417,698, or $37 for every inhabitant there, according to a report made today by the Department of Commerce.

Imports from Belgium during the same period were $2,901,644. Department officials said that while the latter amount seemed small as compared with exports it showed remarkable energy in the resumption of trade that was completely annihilated by war.

ACTORS FIGHT SUNDAY WORK

Equity Association Decides to Combat Lifting of Ban.

A meeting of the Actors' Equity Association, held yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Astor, placed itself on record as opposed to any attempt to give Sunday night performances of plays in New York and passed a resolution appointing a committee to go to Albany to work against any legislation permitting such performances. About 1,000 actors and actresses were present at the meeting.

Francis Wilson, John Cope, and other speakers declared that the managers even now are actively at work at Albany in an effort to obtain legislation permitting Sunday night shows, and declared that the actor was entitled to his day of rest no less than other workers. A resolution was passed calling for a campaign here to win the public over to this viewpoint.

"If all other efforts fail to make Sunday performances illegal," said John Cope, "the only way we can stop them is for the actors to stand up on their hind legs and refuse to go on."

Under the new agreement with the managers extra performances are required to be paid for, but if Sunday performances are permitted it is believed that it will become the general custom to omit the Wednesday matinée and thus avoid extra payment. This is the practice which is now being followed in Chicago in many instances.

APPROVES SEAL CAMPAIGN.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—Governor Smith gave his approval of the sale of Christmas seals today, when he issued a proclamation to the citizens of the State urging them to aid the cause by their personal services and by liberal purchases of the Christmas seals. The proclamation reads:

"Whereas, the prevalence of tuberculosis is a matter of serious concern to the State and to all its citizens; and,

"Whereas, the public health authorities of the State and localities receive valuable support and co-operation in their work from the State and local tuberculosis societies; and

"Whereas, the funds for the support of these voluntary organizations are derived from the annual sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals,

"Now, therefore, I, Alfred E. Smith, Governor of the State of New York, do hereby proclaim the month of December the period of the Christmas Seal Campaign and call upon the people of the State to aid the cause by their personal services and by liberal purchases of the Christmas seal.

"ALFRED E. SMITH."

'PLAN OF SAN DIEGO' BEHIND 1915 RAIDS

CARRANZA OFFICERS LED

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Nov. 30.—Regarding "the plan of San Diego" plot, which is said to have followed almost exactly the lines of a similar plot concocted just after the Mexican war, official records of the State of Texas, which records are also in the possession of the United States Government, show that members of the Mexican band which in 1915 invaded Texas confessed, following their capture, that the raid was a part of a plan of invasion adopted at Monterey, and that it was known as "the plan of San Diego."

In his confession José Antonio Arce, one of the members of the band captured by the Americans, says:

"At Monterey Luis de la Rosa took me to his house. The next morning we were lined up on the Public Way and were given money, and we were told to be ready to go on the train at noon to Jarita. At the National Hotel in Monterey, General de la Rosa told us that we were going to fight the Americans. He did not address the conversation to us but to officers who were there. I heard what he said very well. There were present at the time Lieut. Col. Martinez, Lieut. Col. Morin, Lieut. Col. Cavanas, Ernesto Rumirez, an officer named Vela and many more. General Fierros was not there, but at Army Headquarters.

"We had been told that we were going to fight at San Ygnacio and the Colonel also said that we would get a loan there to pay the men. Others were saying for us to steal. If anything else was anticipated after that, I did not know it. Nothing about returning to Mexico was said that I know anything about. According to what was said as I heard it was that we were out with the Plan of San Diego, and for the purpose of taking Texas away from the United States and annexing it to Mexico. I understood the flag they had and the one exhibited here was to be used in the Plan of San Diego. Luis de la Rosa was saying over there that the question was to fight about this land so as to 'communicate' it with Mexico, take it so it would belong to Mexico."

The commission of Jesus M. Cerada as a Major in the "reconquering equitable army" was found by Captain E. A. Sirmeyer, then commanding Troop I of the Fourteenth Cavalry. The original was turned over to the authorities by Captain Sirmeyer. It read:

> Provisional Reconquering Equitable Army—Regiment
> The General Headquarters and Supreme General Office of the Revolution in favor of liberty and disannexation of Texas, reconqueror of the rights usurped by the Yankees since 1847, is deemed proper to appoint you a Major of the Reconquering Equitable Army. In that concept and with that rank you will be recognized by the forces of my command, which shall show you the considerations of your rank and will obey you in all that you may demand by word or by writing with reference to the campaign, and so that it shall meet the due and corresponding effects, I extend this appointment.
> Independence, Reconquest and Justice.
> The Chief of the Regiment.
> I. DE LOS SANTOS.
> Approved:
> LUIS DE LA ROSA,
> Commander in Chief.
> To Citizen Jesus M. Cerada.

Cerada was captured and admitted the genuineness of the commission.

Francisco de Leon, a Mexican boy who was in the expedition, confessed, after his capture, saying that the soldiers were told they were going to cross the river "to fight the Gringoes." And he added:

"When we got to the river, the guard crossed first. They had horses and infantry, and we all went over together, the cavalry and the infantry. At San Ygnacio I took care of the Colonel's horse while he advanced."

A Special Flag Carried.

Leon also testified that the Mexicans carried a flag which he described as follows:

"The flag was a red one with white stripe, and on the flag were the words, 'Independence, equality.' I don't know what other words there were."

Leon testified that at one time during the course of the expedition he carried the flag. He named as among the officers in the expedition Guiterrez and Zaragoza, who commanded, he said, from Monterey to La Presa. The countersign, he added, was "Mexico." He also named Colonel Isabel de la Santos as a leading spirit in the movement.

Nolberto Pezzot in his confession says:

"On June 10 we crossed over here at San Miguel. We were six, Lieut. Col. Villareal, Simon Antonio Cuevas, and three others. When we got here at a ranch the Lieutenant Colonel asked for a bottle of gas. They made him a present of the bottle. I then asked him what he wanted the petroleum for; he answered me he was going to burn a bridge. When we got near the railroad track a guide and three others of us agreed to abandon the Lieutenant Colonel and another man who was with him. We abandoned them at night and we left the horses and saddles in the woods to come to Laredo to work. The guide had the flag, a red flag with a white stripe and I remember one word, 'Igualdad.' When we crossed the river we came mounted and armed with 30-30s, and I had a pistol. General Rodriguez conferred upon me the grade of Captain. I have been in Carranza's army for two years as a chauffeur for General Flores Alatorre. Lieut. Col. Villareal joined us at Rodriguez station. When General Rodriguez left us going to Jarita he told me: 'You go with Lieut. Col. Villareal.'"

Confessions corroborating that of Pezzot were made by Simon Solis and Antonio Cuevas, also members of the Villareal band, both of whom refer to the flag.

The commission issued to Basilio Ramos, Jr., who was selected to head the juntas officially, translated, reads as follows:

> The Provisional Directorate, elected at a meeting held in Monterey, N. L., Jan. 6, 1915, has deemed it proper to name you as a representative with full authority to organize lodges (juntas), and give commissions to persons in cities which you may think proper, in the States of Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, California, and Texas, as well as along the northern frontier of Mexico, in order that, by all means available to you, you may assist in the consummation of the Plan of San Diego. We extend to you this commission in order that you may be constant in your work and that it may serve you as a credential and as indentification to all concerned.
> L. FERRINGO, President.
> A. GONZALES, Secretary.
> A. G. ALMAREZ.

Court Records of the Plot.

THE TIMES has already published extracts from the indictment found against the signers of the 1915 "Plan of San Diego." In the record of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals for April, 1918, is the following reference to the plan of San Diego in the case of the four Mexicans who were captured and sentenced to death at Laredo:

"During these troubles, among other things that occurred was a force organized at Monterey, by the direction and under the authority of the Carranza de facto Government. It is shown by this record that when this command was completed and the plan laid it was done with the view of invading Texas and attacking some of the Federal troops located just below Laredo at San Ygnacio. There was a company of cavalry of the regular army stationed at this point, with trenches and other means incident to resistance to attack. These Mexican troops made an attack upon this troop of United States cavalry at night. On the night of the attack another troop of United States cavalry reached the point where the first troop was camped to spend the night, en route to Zapata County, and when the fight came off that night both troops were in action. Four or five United States soldiers were killed and nine or ten of the Mexicans. Three of the Mexicans and one that was wounded were captured. These were tried under this indictment in the Texas State courts, and on conviction given the death penalty. The evidence makes it clear that these Mexican troops were commanded by Carranza officers. One of these officers was killed during the fight. He seemed to rank as a Lieutenant Colonel. The commanding officer of the Mexicans was De los Santos, who, it seems, was later captured by the forces of Villa and executed. His name was in this indictment, but he was never arrested.

"It might also be stated in this connection that it is a question for judicial cognizance and knowledge that this plan of San Diego was never disavowed by the de facto Government of Mexico. It seems also to be within accurate statement that the organization of these expeditionary forces attacking San Ygnacio was by and under the direction of General Nafarrette, General Fierros, General de la Rosa, with Colonel Cavanas, Colonel Isabel de los Santos, Colonel Cruz Ruis and others, and these were officers of the Constitutionalist or de facto Carranza Government. Colonel Cruz Ruis was killed in the battle."

The Appeal Court decision concludes:

"These Mexican soldiers were ordered by their officers, commanded by the officers, headed by the officers, to make the fight; the officers led them into the battle and they fought. Some were killed, others escaped and fled. Some were wounded, one of whom was captured and is under sentence in this case. It seems while being tried he was suffering severely from a wound. One at least of the defendants claimed to have been forced to go into battle by his commanding officer. He did not desire to fight, but under the rules of warfare if he deserted he would be tried and would be shot, or if he disobeyed orders and failed to engage in the fight he might forfeit his life.

"If the State Courts had jurisdiction of these defendants, we are of opinion the conviction is erroneous.

"From any viewpoint of this case, we are of the opinion that this judgment should be reversed and the cause remanded."

MOVING CARRANZA TROOPS.

Forces Being Concentrated at Strategic Points in Northern States.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Nov. 30.—Large forces of Carranza troops are being concentrated at strategic poins in the Northern States of Mexico, according to information reaching the border. These troop movements, in the opinion of some authorities, mean a new campaign on the part of the Carranzistas to overcome the rebel and bandit bands operating in parts of the States of Chihuahua, Sonora, Coahuila, and Tamaulipas. The influx of Carranzistas into the State of Sonora is for the purpose, it is believed, of frustrating a threatened outbreak of Yaqui Indians. The Yaqui situation is known to be serious, and recently about 1,500 Yaqui troops were transferred to Southern Chihuahua and replaced by Mayo Indian troops. At all the principal railroad points in Sonora the Mexicans now have armored railway equipment, each car carrying sixty soldiers armed with Mauser rifles and Colt machine guns.

At Torreon, Carranza has concentrated his motor equipment while the Mexican airplanes, which up to a few weeks ago were operating in the vicinity of Juarez, are reported to have been transferred to Falomir, in Chihuahua, this being the headquarters of the Carrazistas under General M. M. Dieguez. This place is on the Mexican side of the big bend on the Southern Pacific Railway of Mexico. The 62d Mexican Infantry, which has been at Juarez, has been transferred to another point in Chihuahua, and its place taken by the more fully recruited and better equipped 57th Infantry from Chihuahua.

At Ojinaga, opposite Presidio, Texas, Carranza has recently reinforced the garrison with a squadron of the 77th Mexican Cavalry, the force at Ojinaga now numbering about 2,000 well-equipped men. The Torreon garrison has also been reinforced with 2,000 men under Generals Castro and Favela, while the force under General Quiroga, which has been stationed in Parral, is reported to have moved north to Sierra Mojada, a point about fifty miles south of the Rio Grande.

SECRETARY CABRERA ACCUSES JENKINS

to feign abduction. Four Mexicans are also implicated, and will be tried as traitors, he says, for having brought the country to a dangerous pass in its international relations. Eduardo Mestre and Guillermo Novorca, lawyers for Jenkins, Cabrera said, were the intellectual directors [of the alleged plot]. Mestre was the lawyer for Jenkins when the ransom was paid. He was arrested and later released on bail.

Mestre, when seen by THE TIMES correspondent this evening, stated that he had dropped all connection with the Jenkins case and was connected with him only through friendship, as he had known Jenkins for years, and when he was abducted he had worked in order to secure his release.

Mestre declined to make a further statement, as he was waiting to see President Carranza. After a talk with the President he stated to THE TIMES correspondent that it was inadvisable to talk further on the case.

Cordova, the bandit charged with the kidnapping, will not be allowed to surrender, but will be treated as a traitor on the ground that he has endangered the country.

No strong feeling has developed here yet, but Mexicans are a unit in saying the United States is abusing its power and threatening Mexico. Many feel that the United States will see its note was hasty, and will wait until the findings of the court. The general opinion among Americans and other foreigners is that the case will be settled without the use of strong measures on the part of the United States.

Luis Cabrera, since being in office in Mexico, has been an outspoken anti-American. He was one of the Mexicans in high places mentioned by the Washington authorities as having knowledge of German schemes to use Mexico against this country at the time the Zimmermann note was made public.

Cabrera was a member of the Atlantic City conference of 1916, which was called to arbitrate border controversies. He was criticised by the American delegates for the obstructive methods at the conference. The next year Cabrera was sent here to arrange for food shipments to Mexico, America having entered the war in the meantime. He got no satisfaction from the American authorities, and departed abruptly for Buenos Aires as the Mexican delegate to a conference of Latin American neutral States. Buenos Aires was the headquarters for German intrigue in this hemisphere at that time, and the aims of the conference of neutrals were favorable to Germany and opposed to the interests of the Allies and the United States. The conference was able to do little, however.

On his return to this country Cabrera denied that he favored cutting off supplies of oil for the Allies at the Mexican oil fields, although that purpose had been attributed to him.

Secretary Cabrera is a brother of Alfonso Cabrera, the Puebla Governor, involved in the Jenkins case, against whom failure to give protection to the American Consular Agent is charged

CARRANZA "BLUE BOOK" OUT

Senator Fall Says it Is Being Circulated in South America.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Senator Albert B. Fall, who has been studying the Mexican situation at close range, passed through Chicago today on his way to Washington.

"Carranza has stepped over the line this time," Senator Fall said, commenting on the Jenkins case.

"For many years Carranza has posed before the Latin-American republics as their champion," he continued. "He has secretly published what he calls his 'Blue Book,' in which he gives the correspondence between Mexico and the United States and the glorious nothingness it has resulted in. He points to the threats of intervention that never came about, to the punitive expeditions whose withdrawal he demanded, and to the compliance of our Government with his demands.

"Every instance of backdown is magnified and ascribed to the superior minds of the Mexican emissaries over those of the American State Department and to this country's fear of the Mexican's ability to give us a licking.

"The book has a wide circulation, especially in South American countries, where Carranza appears in the rôle of the Latin champion who slaps the 'Colossus of the North,' as he calls this country, and gets an apology for every insult. He proposes and is working for a union of all Latin-Americans against the United States."

Senator Fall declared Carranza's position in the Jenkins matter was merely an instance of his anti-American policy, differing from the outrages of the past only in that it presented a conflict between the American and Mexican administrations instead of between the two peoples.

LABOR OUTLINES PLANS FOR REFORM

"JUDICIAL AUTOCRACY" ONE

He Denounces "Government by Injunction" and Supreme Court's Great Powers.

AGAINST CUMMINS BILL

Bitterly Opposes It as "Un-American" in Letter to Republican National Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The American Federation of Labor, speaking through its Vice President, Matthew Woll, made public today a series of replies to questions put by Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, in which are outlined the attitude of labor, as Mr. Woll sees it, to the present conditions of industrial unrest and reforms in legislation which are needed to help restore peace and order.

With the bituminous coal strike at its most critical stage, Mr. Woll takes up the question of "government by injunction" and denounces it as unfair to labor and not conducive to better understanding between capital and labor.

"May I add," he says, in answering one question, "that industrial unrest cannot be allayed or minimized by measures of repression or suppression or by the arbitrary exercise of unwarranted and unconstitutional authority by our courts?"

The statement also says that to "deport the 'Reds' and at the same time coddle profiteers will not bring us to a state of domestic tranquillity."

The Cummins act for the return of the railroads to their former owners is denounced by Mr. Woll as "the most un-American piece of legislation ever proposed by any one." He suggests that the Government retain the railroads for another two years.

Various suggestions are made as to legislation to quiet unrest; profit sharing plans as now in force by some corporations are denounced as a sham, and the statement is made that, while "the American workers do not seek a revolutionary change" in regard to the management of industries, they do demand equal voice with employers in such industrial matters and management as affect their interests as workers and which are determined largely by their contracts of employment.

In answering the first question as to "what measures should be adopted, which, while contenting labor and capital, will be for the interests of all the people," Mr. Woll demands that all grants of corporate powers shall reserve to labor the right to unionize and bargain with employers collectively. In this connection, he asserts that the increase in the cost of living has outstripped advances in wages and calls for laws to end the "criminal profiteering" which has forced up the price of necessities.

As one of the causes of industrial unrest which must be removed he cites the alleged inequality of treatment of trusts, which, he says, may strike against the public by raising the price of necessities, while the meetings of workers considering grievances are broken up by the police.

Taking up the question of railroad legislation, Mr. Woll says that all legislation intended to enforce or promote compulsory arbitration or include anti-strike provisions should be defeated.

The right to quit work after all other methods of adjustment have been exhausted, he says, "is the concrete expression of individual liberty."

Text of Mr. Woll's Reply.

Here is the text of Mr. Woll's reply:

"Recently you submitted a letter containing a series of questions of great importance, arising out of the relations of capital and labor and which you state is a part of the duty of the Republican Party to consider for the purpose of offering effective solutions to these questions. Responding to your request, I hereby submit for the consideration of yourself and the political party you represent the following views on the question submitted:

"Your first question reads as follows:

"'What measures should be adopted which, while contenting labor and capital, will be in the interests of all the people? What should be done or undone to make the lot of labor better and to enable the fruits of labor to be used more effectively for the welfare of the country?'

"Answering this question, permit me to call your attention first to the utter lack of an equilibrium of personal rights and opportunities and relations between employers and employes, which tends more and more to divide our people into classes and which is developing a bitter class feeling.

"Of course, nature has endowed individuals, as it has nations, with certain physical, mental and spiritual advantages, one over another. Organized society cannot successfully interfere with these processes of nature. Neither is it just or natural that Governments should permit the mentally, physically or spiritually strong to dominate, control and exploit the weaker members of the human family.

"The unfortunate development in our modern industrial society and Government has been the creating of newly concentrated powers and advantages, vested in a small group of industrial and financial people, while at the same time every effort of government has been made to deny and deprive the much larger group of society of the opportunity for similar advantages of organization and concentrated powers.

"When the State undertook to create corporate bodies or organizations for industrial, financial and commercial purposes and delegated these corporate powers to groups of persons solely interested in exercising these arbitrary grants for private gain, without placing an effective restraint upon these corporate powers to safeguard and protect the rights of individuals who are not associated with such corporate entities and who must deal with them as individuals, it was then that the seed was laid for the development of classes and class conflicts.

Perils of Corporate Power Stated.

"When the State authorized the rich and those in possession of reserved capital to combine their wealth into corporate undertakings without at the same time fully safeguarding the rights and interests of the individual workmen with whom these corporate bodies must of necessity deal, then and there equal opportunities to all of our citizens were denied, and by arbitrary dictum added strength, power and influence was given to the strong to prey upon and exploit the weaker members of the human family.

"It is a sad commentary upon the history and development of our land that the State and nation, instead of maintaining a just, fair, and natural equilibrium of personal rights, privileges and relations, not only undertook to place arbitrary corporate powers and advantages in the hands of a few, but at the same time undertook by affirmative action to destroy or render ineffective the hope and aspiration of the great mass of our people—the workers—to protect themselves against the exercise of these great corporate powers delegated exclusively into the hands of a few to dominate the lives and destiny of the many without restraint or limitation.

"To make the lot of labor better; to enable the fruits of labor to be used for the welfare of the country as a whole; to place capital and labor more on an equal footing. All grants of corporate powers to any group of persons should be predicated on the express condition that the right to exercise such corporate powers does not permit such corporations or incorporated bodies to deny those with whom it deals, its employes, the right to organize into trade or labor unions or associations, to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing and to determine for themselves the relations and conditions under which they shall give service.

Human vs. Property Rights.

"Unless such a check is placed on the corporate powers, now granted by the State to individuals, the domestic conflict which is now raging in the midst of us cannot and will not be permanently ended. It should also be remembered that from the inception of modern civilization the privileged few, either by an alleged divine right, heredity assumption, or by legislation, have put property rights, most of which were stolen rights, above human rights. We have now reached a period of civilization when human rights should be placed before property rights, when man should be placed before and above the dollar. Activities and results with this end in view should not and cannot longer be ignored with safety to the nation and our people.

"If we are to remove the existing unrest it is essential that criminal profiteering shall be put to an end. The cost of necessities has gone up with leaps and bounds, and this increase has not been due to a proportionate increase of labor cost. On the contrary, the workers have been unable to keep pace with the ever-increasing cost of the necessities of life, and as long as this condition exists serious discontent and unrest will prevail. To deport the 'Reds' and at the same time coddle the profiteers will not bring us to a state of domestic tranquillity.

"Your second question is as follows:

"'What plan or plans can be adopted which will settle or at least minimize industrial unrest?'

"This question is answered in part in my reply to your first inquiry.

"May I add that industrial unrest cannot be allayed or minimized by measures of repression or suppression or by the arbitrary exercise of unwarranted and unconstitutional authority by our courts.

The Power of the Courts.

"Nowhere in history has the judiciary ever held sway over peoples as do the Judges in our great Republic. The courts of Great Britain, New Zealand, Austria, France, and the other democracies of the world have no such sovereignty and cannot and dare not overrule the other departments of Government and override the expressed will of the people. The power of the American judiciary to say that 'it is the State' and to reverse the actions of a co-ordinate branch of the Government is a power never delegated to our courts and Judges, and, as prophesied by Jefferson, is making our Supreme Court the master of America. To avoid building up a judicial aristocracy steps should be taken to bring into existence the rule which will provide that in the event of a Supreme Court declaring an act of Congress or a State Legislature unconstitutional the people, acting directly or through Congress or a State Legislature, should re-enact the measure, that it shall then become law without being subject to annulment by the court.

"Our administration of law in parallel columns seeks to forbid the combination of workingmen and permits the combination of employers. The trust and combination of corporations may strike against the public by raising the price of necessities of life, and the law does not interfere. They can force their competitors out of business and the law does not even utter a word of protest.

"They can strike against their employes by refusing to consider any representation that employes feel themselves compelled to make to keep body and soul together, or they may even reduce wages, increase the working hours or stop work en masse by shutting down the factories, the railroads or the mines, and the law puts its sheltering arms around them. But when the workers are considering grievances they have against their employers the law sends the police to break up their meetings.

"When a speaker in their union meetings is responsible for utterances which only a fool or a knave would make, then the entire membership is held responsible in damages for such an individual wrong or indiscretion, and when a strike takes place, then the law affords an easy way to rob the union and its members of all their funds and savings of years of sacrifice and effort. It is high time that this awkward contradiction in our administration of law is made to disappear.

Protest Against Injunctions.

"In the history of progress tyranny has always been the turnkey, liberty always the convict. Lowell once said: 'Truth forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne.' That is many times the situation in so far as it applies to our courts in the exercise of their assumed equity powers over the lives and liberties of workingmen when involved in a conflict with their employers. The use of the injunction to prevent strikes, to interfere with the conduct of strikes, or to compel men to call off strikes does not rest upon law and order. To the contrary, such injunctions are in violation of law and order, and constitute a clear invasion of the natural liberty of man.

"Government by injunction is not a Government of law, but a personal whim and fancy. Government by injunction is not a Government of the people, by the people and for the people. Government by injunction means that a judge may at will crowd the people into a position where they must all be either slaves or criminals—slaves if they obey him, criminals if they obey the Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States.

"Government by injunction should be prohibited, the rights and liberties and freedom of the workers should be fully safeguarded, and the upbuilding of a judicial aristocracy and autocracy should be made impossible for all time to come.

"Congress would do well also to speedily approve the covenant of the League of Nations, including the labor provisions contained in this remarkable document, which holds the hope for future peace of the world in its keeping, instead of filibustering and fiddling away like Nero while Rome was aflame.

"No act at this particular time could do so much to allay the unrest which dominates the world and which would permit men's minds to be turned to industrial justice and tranquility, instead of keeping them in a state of wonderment as to what the future political boundaries, authorities, obligations, and responsibilities of the various nations of the world will be.

Laws Suggested as Desirable.

"The enactment of the following laws would also prove helpful to an immeasurable degree: Laws to prohibit child labor; to totally restrict immigration for at least two years; to defeat the amendment to Section 13 of the Seamen's act; to enact the Nolan minimum wage bill for Government employes; to create a United States free employment service; to eliminate convict labor competition by prohibiting the transportation of prison products from one State to another; to make possible the retirement of Federal employes; to provide land and homes on long-time payment to soldiers and sailors; to permit the States to loan money to the people by which to build homes, and to repeal all taxes on the necessities of life.

"Your third question contains the following:

"'Should the Erdmann act be modified or strengthened, or should a new system in connection with Federal investigation and for the settlement of industrial controversies be adopted? If so, what?'

"Evidently you have overlooked the fact that the Erdmann act was repealed in 1913, and that the Newlands act has been substituted in its place. There is nothing particularly wrong with this enactment. Your question might have been better framed had you asked what kind of railroad legislation should not be enacted.

Against Compulsory Arbitration.

"Without venturing into the problem of whether the railroads should be owned and controlled by private interests or by the Government, I have no hesitancy in stating that, whatever form of ownership or control may ultimately prevail, any and all legislation intended to enforce or promote compulsory arbitration or include anti-strike provisions should be defeated, if we are going to be true to the ideals of freedom and democracy so clearly manifested during the war period.

"While strained relations between employers and employes are to be deplored, while strikes are not desirable, and are favored only as a final means of protest, the wage-earners cannot and will not admit of the right of any person or any legislative body to compel them to remain at work when for any reason whatsoever the conditions of employment become distasteful and unsatisfactory. The right to quit work after all other methods of adjustment have been exhausted is the concrete expression of individual liberty.

"The workers of America are not opposed to voluntary methods of arbitration; they are opposed to compulsory arbitration, which in fact means the fixing of wages, hours, and conditions of work by law. Such a condition and relation of employment is a denial of the rights of free men—the right to freedom of action—the right to freedom of contract. In fact, it is a return to involuntary servitude — industrial serfdom. There is nothing which is fraught with more danger, which results in more rank injustice and injury, than compulsory arbitration and compulsory service.

"The Cummins bill now before Congress is the most un-American piece of legislation ever proposed by any one. It not only intends to return the railroads to private interests, but it likewise undertakes to guarantee to the railroad holders an income of 6 per cent. on all their investments, whether these investments originally represented legitimate capital or merely water of every shade or color, while during the war the Government only paid to the millions of patriotic investors in Liberty and Victory Loan bonds an income ranging from 3 to 4½ per cent. interest

"Besides attempting to place this heavy financial burden on the people, Senator Cummins and those associated with him further propose to turn the railroads back to these private interests with over two million of workers tied hands and feet to the railroads and the railroad interests. It is difficult to conceive a more vicious proposal than that which is now proposed to re-enact and re-establish serfdom and slavery.

"Involuntary Servitude."

"During the war, when the Government found it necessary to take the railroads out of the control of private interests, these workmen were free, and as such responded in all their activities in a truly American fashion. Now that the war has ended, it is proposed to return the railroads to these selfsame interests from which the Government took the control, and in so doing deprive the loyal and patriotic American wage earners of their liberties and freedom. Under the cloak of industrial peace, Senator Cummins would now impose involuntary servitude on the railroad workers and give added powers to private railroad interests over the lives of nearly two millions of wage earners.

"It is suggested that the Government do not return the railroads to private interests for at least two years from the conclusion of peace, in order that the American people may have an opportunity to consider the many possible solutions of the railroad problem which have been put forward and so that a mature judgment may be reached and justice be done to all concerned.

"Your fourth question is as follows:

"'What changes should be made in the Employers' Liability act? How can satisfactory wages and reasonable hours be assured and adequate productivity obtained? Should the Interstate Commerce Commission have the right to fix wages as well as rates, and the Federal Trade Commission or other bodies the right to fix prices as well as wages? Should the powers of these commissions also extend to fixing the hours of labor?'

"If your question relates to the Federal compensation law, then permit me to say that the act in question has accomplished much good. However, the compensation provided to the injured and to the survivors of those where death ensues needs amendment. First of all, the compensation provided in all our compensation laws where the amount is stipulated and arbitrarily limited needs immediate amending to meet adequately the higher cost of living of today and the great shrinkage which has taken place within the last four or five years in the purchasing power of the dollar.

"With the cost of living having increased enormously, the purchasing power of the dollar of today is worth about one-half less than it was in 1914, and all compensation paid today on a fixed value of the dollar of 1914 is an imposition and an intolerable wrong to the injured employe and to the survivors of those killed in industrial employment. Justice demands a readjustment of the compensation paid as herein indicated, and in addition the compensation allowed under the Federal act should be further amended as to increase compensatory payment in certain injuries and in cases of death.

Oppose Federal Fixing of Wages.

"Under no circumstances should the Federal Trade Commission or any other commission or Government agency have the right or authority to fix either wages or hours. To permit any governmental agency to perform such acts would in effect destroy the right to freedom of contract, deprive our people of their liberties, and create a Government of bureaucracy, which is desired no more than is a military autocracy.

"To allow a governmental agency to function in the manner that your question implies would also destroy the labor sections of the Clayton act. It is evident beyond a shadow of doubt that such an extension of Government authority would establish in our democracy compulsory labor and encourage a Socialistic Government control over all the industrial and commercial activities of our people.

"As a matter of fact laws are not self-enforcible, and it is only where they are supported by a permanent and strong crystallization of public sentiment and moral force that they are effective without requiring the elements of fear and of dire punishment to the individual or groups if they are not observed. To make the industrial laws effective would require a system of espionage of an inconceivable magnitude, which system would become so burdensome and intolerable that its attempted enforcement would render impossible the accomplishment of the end desired.

"Experience has demonstrated that laws granting men the eight-hour day were never observed except when their enforcement was obtained through the economic power of the trades unions. In Colorado, the Constitution provided for an eight-hour day, but the miners were forced to strike to enforce that law.

"This is true in all other parts of the country where laws have been enacted for the eight-hour day. In all these instances the enforcement of laws came about not through the activities of the State or Municipal Government, but through the economic power of the trade unions.

"Question five is as follows:

"'What measures should be adopted in the interest of women and children in industry? Should minimum wage commissions be created?'

Protection of Women Workers.

"Of course, whatever applies to the employment of the male wage earners applies to an equal degree to the women workers. Justice demands that women workers should receive the same pay as men for equal work performed, and employers should not be permitted to require them to perform tasks disproportionate to their physical strength or which tend to impair their potential motherhood, and thus prevent the continuation of a nation of strong, healthy, sturdy, and intelligent men and women.

"Your sixth question reads as follows:

"'Should health standards be established for industries?'

"I am not clear as to the purport of this question. If it is intended that only the physically strong shall be employed, and those less favorably endowed by nature be required to starve, then of course there can be only one answer. If it is intended that industries should not be permitted to operate excepting under conditions which will enable the less fortunate and less strong to give profitable service in industry under equally favorable conditions with those more fortunately endowed, then my answer is 'yes.' Industry should only be permitted to operate under conditions which will give employment to all our people, without arbitrary discrimination, and which shall safeguard and promote the health of the workers, rather than force them into a life of misery and rob them of their full, normal and natural period of life.

"Your seventh question is as follows:

"'Should there be Federal insurance against old age, sickness, accidents, and unemployment in industry?'

"There is contemplated in this question merely the subject of dealing with effects rather than with the causes of unemployment. It seeks to ascertain palliative measures rather than cause an inquiry into the causes of unemployment.

"Efforts should be made to lessen unemployment. This may be accomplished by making first a study of seasonable employments, and thereafter by a systematic elimination of many of the seasonable industrial undertakings. Regardless of the erroneous impression that has been created, the mine workers, in asking for a working week of five days, are in reality asking for a greater period of work rather than a greater period of idleness. Indeed, they are asking that an end be put to the manipulation of the laws of demand and supply, and that they be afforded an opportunity to work throughout the year, instead of being overworked a few months during the year and kept in idleness the balance of the time. This holds true in other lines of industrial endeavor.

"The universal observance of the eight-hour day will tend also to stabilize employment and lessen unemployment to a large degree.

"In addition, adequate wages should be paid the wage earner. By so doing his consuming power is correspondingly increased, which of necessity will create thereafter a greater market at home and lessen the causes for unemployment.

"If these measures are effectually applied, there will be no undue employment, and such unemployment as may occur under these conditions can be well cared for by enabling workers to lay aside from their proper and adequate earnings a sufficient amount to care for themselves and their families in periods of stress and idleness.

Labor's Share in Industrial Control.

"Your eighth and last specific question reads as follows:

"'Does labor desire to participate in the control and management of industry, and share in the profits and losses? If so, how?'

"Profit sharing, as thus far proposed and practiced, is nothing more nor less than a sham and a fraud. In a competitive field of industry this method of compensation is not only impracticable, but will ultimately cause more friction and turmoil than any other method of compensation I know of. This method of rewarding labor for services given will not tend to equalize compensation for equal work performed; rather it will throw the question of compensation into a greatly confused state. In a monopolistic or semi-monopolistic enterprise profit sharing can only serve as a cloak for excess profits under the guise of philanthropy.

"Profit-sharing and like methods of compensation now urged are designed principally to prevent organization of employes into trade unions and to tie the workers to their job as well as to compel them to labor under the most intensive strain of which they are capable, by an appeal to undue selfishness. Its very conception is an impressive indictment of the present questionable method of management of industry as a whole.

Scoffs at Profit-sharing.

"Your suggestion as to the sharing of losses borders on the absurd. Only those who have and who do exercise the determining voice and power should pay for the folly of their own shortcomings. If the workers are to share in the loses, then let us establish shop soviets, and let the worker also manage and operate the entire industries.

"But the American workers do not seek a revolutionary change of this kind. They demand a voice and control in such industrial matters and management as affect their interests as workers and which are determined largely by their contracts of employment. In these matters they demand an equal voice with employers. They further demand the right to exercise control over their own bodies and labor power by the method of collective bargaining, through their trade unions and representatives of their own choosing—by men who are capable of dealing with the representatives of capital upon an equal footing and who are not constantly under the domination of employers or swerved from their purposes by fear of loss of employment.

"The concluding paragraph of your letter asks:

"'What matters not herein mentioned deserve consideration? I believe you will appreciate that the only thought I have in mind in writing to you and to others on the same subject is to obtain the benefit of the views you and they entertain. Aided by the replies I hope to receive, I feel sure that measures can be taken which will assist greatly in developing measures which will be of the greatest possible good to the people as a whole.'

"Permit me to direct your attention to the inclosed copy of the reconstruction program of the American Federation of Labor, which was originally prepared by a special committee of which I was its Secretary, and which program was later unanimously indorsed by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor and still later unanimously approved by the American Federation of Labor convention, held in June of this year, at Atlantic City, N. J. I am sure you will find this program interesting, instructive, and helpful in determining labor's needs as expressed by the millions of organized wage earners throughout our land.

"May I further suggest that I have no desire to hold this correspondence in confidence. To the contrary, I believe these matters of extreme importance to all our people and to no particular group, economic, religious, political, or otherwise. You are not only at liberty but I shall be glad to aid in bringing these subjects to public view and public discussion."

CHILDREN KILLED BY AUTOS

Several Other Persons Injured in Sunday Accidents.

Joseph Sakata, 6 years old, of 1,312 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, was killed yesterday afternoon by an automobile which struck him at 169th Street and Washington Avenue, when he stopped to push his 7-year-old sister, Lizzie, out of its path. John Bockdan, who was driving the car, with Mrs. Emil Koffler, wife of its owner, Dr. Emil Koffler of 1,709 Bathgate Avenue, inside, was arrested on a charge of homicide.

Lena Mehielo, 7 years old, was killed by an automobile near her home at 518 Main Street, New Rochelle, yesterday. Irving Pritchard, of 1,079 Pelhamdale Avenue, Pelham Manor, driver of the car, was arrested and paroled by the Coroner till Dec. 5.

James Masterson of 1,425 Third Avenue was crossing Fifth Avenue south of Eighty-first Street with his 2-year-old dughter, Catherine, in his arms yesterday, and his wife and two other children, Elizabeth, 7, and James, 6, accompanying him, when an automobile truck owned by Samuel Sold of 370 Pacific Street, Jersey City, and driven by his brother, Benjamin, ran into them and knocked down all but the wife. The father and the baby were cut and bruised, and each of the other two children suffered a broken leg. A passing motorist took all to Mount Sinai Hospital. The driver was arrested on an assault charge.

DESIGN FOR WAR MEDAL.

New York's Soldiers to Receive Emblem Designed by Capt. Dieges.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—The design of the medal to be presented by the State to hundreds of thousands of New York State men who entered the service of the United States during the World War has been accepted by the committee composed of Governor Smith, Adjt. Gen. Berry, and William A. Saxton of the War Records Bureau. The medal was designed by Captain Charles J. Dieges, formerly of the 102d Engineers, 27th Division.

The face presents the figure of a soldier. Behind him is a figure representing Liberty, Humanity, and Democracy draped in an American flag, and in the background the navy is represented by a fleet of vessels. The reverse shows the seal of the State in the upper centre, relieved by a wreath of laurel and oak. The names of the countries in which United States soldiers fought are superimposed on the entwined wreaths.

Local armories and the Bureau of War Records, Adjutant General's office, this city, will be supplied with blanks on which applications for medals may be made.

SALOON MEN GO TO FARMS.

Reports Tell of Many Being Misled as to Rural Profits.

Former saloonkeepers, driven from their occupation by prohibition, are becoming farmers, according to statements made at the Convention of the Federation of Jewish Farmers at the Educational Alliance Building at 194 East Broadway last night. It was also asserted that many of the saloonkeepers who were investing in farms were being misled in their purchases, real estate brokers luring buyers with tales of wealth to be gained and charging exorbitant prices.

Samuel Shindler, President of the organization, discussing milk, said:

"If the city would take over the distribution of milk through municipal stations the farmer could be paid 10 cents a quart instead of 8, and the public could get all the milk it wanted at 12 cents a quart."

At today's session of the convention the co-operative side of farm work will be considered.

ROOSEVELT BABY BAPTIZED.

Lieut. Col. Roosevelt's Fourth Son Christened Quentin, After Uncle.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Nov. 30.—The fourth child of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt was baptized today in Christ Episcopal Church. The ceremony was celebrated by the Rev. Dr. Talmadge. The infant was baptized Quentin Roosevelt, after his uncle, the late Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, an American aviator, who was killed in action in France.

Miss Flora Whitney served as godmother, and held the baby during the ceremony. The godfathers were William Whitney, Schieffelin Coles, Jr., and Kenneth P. Budd. Among those who attended the christening were: Mrs. Alexander, grandmother of the child; Colonel and Mrs. Derby, and Captain Kermit Roosevelt. Booklets containing a poem, "The Star of Gold," in tribute to those who gave their lives for the nation in the World War, were distributed to the guests.

The baby was born on the day of Lieut. Col. Roosevelt's election to the Legislature.

Capt. Ferris Quits Shipping Board.

The United States Shipping Board announced yesterday that Captain Frank E. Ferris, managing agent in New York, had resigned to become Vice President of the Export Steamship Company. With the retirement of Captain Ferris the office of managing agent is abolished and the affairs of the Shipping Board will be in charge of George W. STterling, Assistant Director of Operations.

WHY SERBS DID NOT SIGN.

Said to Have Objected to Indemnities Annex to Austrian Treaty.

BELGRADE, Nov. 28.—The Press Bureau issues a communication explaining that the Jugoslavs have not signed the St. Germain treaty because one annex submitted for signature contained a new provision, namely, that the indemnities due Serbia should be met out of the debts against the new parts of the kingdom.

According to the Treaty of St. Germain, each of the States to which Austrian territory is transferred and each of the States arising out of the dismemberment of Austria must assume part of the Austrian prewar debt.

"ONE CAN NEVER GO WRONG WITH HANDKERCHIEFS" APPLIES PARTICULARLY TO HANDKERCHIEFS FOR MEN

BALTIMORE DEFIES SUNDAY BLUE LAW

ALL GARAGES SHUT DOORS

More Than 100 Proprietors and Employers Arraigned—State's Attorney Not to Prosecute.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 30.—The order of the Grand Jury, the foreman of which is a former Presbyterian preacher, the Rev. Dr. Chalmers, for enforcement today of the Baltimore Sunday blue laws of 1723 was more honored in the breach than in the observance. Every druggist and confectioner that dealt in soda, ice cream, soft drinks and the like kept open as usual. More than a hundred proprietors — employes were arrested for working on Sunday, and five or six hundred more will be summoned on the charge of selling on Sunday.

The attempt to enforce the law as it was enforced nearly 200 years ago was a ludicrous farce. Newsboys sold their papers, bootblacks performed their usual Sunday polishing, and the hundreds of corner stores that dispense soda fountain concoctions, candies and cigars did a bigger business than ever, with the exception of a few timid women proprietors, who sold soda, but drew the line at cigars and candy.

Legal complications will surely result from the attempt to enforce the obnoxious laws. The attorney who is representing the ice cream dealers told the police early in the day that his people would go right ahead delivering goods as soon as they were free, and they did. Numerous drivers of ice cream trucks were arrested, released on bail, and resumed their deliveries. Justice Johannessan at the Central Police Court refused to entertain a second charge against offenders, once arraigned.

Every automobile garage closed in observance of the edict that no gasoline or other automobile supplies should be sold on Sunday. There was a good deal of early travel, however, and most automobilists seemed to have taken the precaution to lay in a supply yesterday.

William S. Busick, assistant manager of the Caswell and New Howard Hotels, was arrested for permitting the barber shop to be open. The barbers were also arrested for working on Sunday.

Benjamin Jaffe, President of the Retail Confectioners and Cigar Dealers' Association, made the charge that Chief of Police Carter had "double-crossed" his association by informing him that no arrests would be made but only names of offenders would be taken. Chief Carter denied the charge.

"I stated," said the chief, "that I would not cause arrests of retail dealers. I did not want to cause unnecessary trouble that might involve embarrassment to women and children. I shall keep up the crusade against drivers until I have them off the streets."

The State Attorney's office says it is going to dodge the blue law issue entirely. Deputy State Attorney Frederick Burton and Assistant State Attorney Lindsay Spencer, in the absence of State Attorney Harry W. Nice, outlined their policy.

LODGE TO INSIST ON HIS RESERVATIONS

draw the treaty before the week is over, possibly on Tuesday, when his message is delivered, and that the Senate will not see it again until after negotiations for a compromise.

Previous to the appearance of Lodge's statement the general impression among Senators was that there would be no serious difficulty in coming to an agreement to strike out the preamble.

As to the Hitchcock suggestion of a change in Article X., however, there is a strong feeling among Republicans that no alteration that would affect the principle of the reservation would be accepted. Senator Hitchcock wants a reservation that would be interpretative as a substitute for the majority reservation. So far as can be discerned not more than half a dozen Senators on the Republican side would agree to it.

Senator Hitchcock admitted today that he expected difficulty in reaching an agreement on Article X. that would be satisfactory to sixty-four Senators, but said that he was hopeful that it might be accomplished.

Some Administration Senators were reported tonight as being willing to vote for the majority program if that was the only means of ratifying the treaty. Senator Hitchcock said on this point that the Administration forces had committed themselves to opposing all reservations that would "kill the treaty" and that he expected those who opposed the Lodge ratification resolution to maintain the same position if the original majority reservations were insisted upon.

"Of one thing I am quite confident," he went on, "and that is that the Senate will not be called upon to consider the treaty again until agreement on ratification is assured in advance. It would be only a waste of time to take it up merely to have it debated and, after that, come to the same result as before."

Senator Hitchcock did not go to the White House today and said that he was not sure that he would be able to see the President tomorrow.

While of the opinion that the President may urge negotiations for agreement among Senators favorable to the treaty, based upon elimination of the preamble and a softening of Article X. dealing with guarantees of territorial integrity of nations in the League, he said he could not attempt to voice the President's position until after he saw him.

Senator Hitchcock declined late tonight to comment on the statement of Senator Lodge, saying he did not care to make an off-hand reply.

The Senate will take up the Cummins railroad bill on Tuesday, according to the program, and stick to it until it is disposed of, without considering the treaty, unless an agreement is reached that will enable it to ratify the treaty without delay.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30, (Associated Press).—There was a belief among some Congress leaders tonight that the treaty with Austria, soon to be ready for submission to the Senate, might be the basis on which the principal issues of the fight will be next raised. The treaty like the one with Germany, contains the covenant of the League of Nations, and it has been suggested that during its consideration a way might be found for clearing up the whole treaty situation in the Senate.

There were many reports of defections in the Democratic ranks, but the Democratic leaders belittled such stories and declared a compromise was bound to come.

URGENT FOR THE TREATY.

Forty-two Albanians Call on the Senate to Act.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—Forty-two prominent residents of this city have signed this declaration in favor of a compromise on the peace treaty:

"Pershing said: 'Lafayette, we are here.' We feel it is up to the American people, by approving the League of Nations, to repeat to France and our allies—we are still with you, in peace as in war.

"When Congress convenes next Monday, is the Peace Treaty to be wrecked or ratified?

"That will depend on the spirit of ninety-seven men—the President and the Senators of the United States. If their spirit is one of co-operation the treaty will be ratified. If their spirit is one of partisanship and unyielding defiance the treaty will fail—and America will turn her back to her allies and her face toward Berlin for a new and independent treaty with Germany.

"The treaty failed in the Senate on Nov. 19 because there was no spirit of co-operation—and this with eighty Senators voting for the treaty either with or without reservations, and but fifteen against it. In all our history there is no such shocking example of minority control. If such control can again defeat the treaty this American democracy is gagged and bound in the sight of the world—a giant in strength, bending to the tyranny of the few.

"The representatives of the allied nations at Versailles drew up a treaty of peace and prepared a League of Nations to enforce it. The Senate has rejected the proposition. The matter grew into a partisan dispute and resulted in a deadlock.

"The time has come to end this folly. As eighty Senators favor the treaty and League with some kind of reservations, the problem should be solved immediately when the Senate assembles Dec. 1. We feel that Senators of the United States have one paramount duty: To get together.

"That which we won on the battlefields of France must not be lost in the arena of the Senate. We have a right to demand that the Senate address itself effectively to this business. We call upon Senators to find out what they can do, and to do it.

"The business interests of the whole country demand decision. No large and comprehensive business legislation can be satisfactorily accomplished until the question of the League of Nations is settled, and settled so that our allies feel that we have not become slackers after we so nobly came to their rescue in the time of war.

The host of men who took arms, and women who served in the war to end war now look to the Senators not to rob them of the fruits of their victory.

"Every mother prays our Senators not to deny assistance to any plan that will save the world from another war, which if it comes, as come it surely will, unless the old order be done away with, will certainly eclipse the horrors of all past wars. Shall America thwart the federation of the world which means the Americanization of the world?

"We ask our Senators to act. To accomplish this all may have to yield somewhat. But accomplish something they must. They stand on the doubtful ridges of the battle where civilization faces defeat. They hold the hope of America and of the world in their hands.

"We urge our fellow-citizens to declare themselves and to let their Senators know the get-together sentiment which we believe prevails in our community.

Boston Mass Meeting Appeals to President and Senators .

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—Resolutions, urging the President and the Senate to "adjust their differences by mutual concession, so that the Peace Treaty may be ratified," we readopted at a mass meeting in Symphony Hall tonight.

President Lowell of Harvard University asserted that refusal of this country to subscribe to the Versailles document with the covenant of the League would mean that "our young men have died in vain." He said that Bolshevism would not be quieted until peace was established.

Former Governor John L. Bates and Judge Michael H. Sullivan were other speakers.

FOR TREATY OF SOME KIND.

Taft Wants It Ratified, Even with Reservations.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 30.—Speaking on the "League of Nations up to Date," ex-President William H. Taft today urged the immediate ratification of the document, either with or without reservations, although he prefers the treaty as presented.

"While I deprecate the reservations," he said, "and would be glad to see the treaty ratified as it is, I feel that the reservations do not nullify the treaty, but leave it for the most part still useful. I would rather have the treaty with reservations than nothing at all," he said.

Ratification of the Treaty and League of Nations, he contended, would be the greatest step forward ever made in history ,and maintained that the treaty would bring the world "toward the preservatio nof peace by the joint arrangement of the nations."

Eastern airs and incense

Winding drowsily into the atmosphere, a tiny curl of fragrant smoke infuses into the dusk a touch of old Japan, a subtle tinge of China. It is as though one heard the far off talk of temple bells, glimpsed a bit of bamboo bridge over a moonlit pond, caught the shine of a silken kimono, or looked into the purple lure of wistaria.

Fleet enchantment

And it's all because of a small incense burner that the spell arises. You can bring Japan into your own library. Our Far East department owns the simple means. First there is a burner in the form of a quaint Japanese smoking a contented pipe. It is only .34. For .74 one can have a graceful metal burner together with a package of incense.

Bowls of bewitchment

Other decorative burners in a variety of attractive shapes and sizes, may be had in real bronze. One, delicately carved, is topped by a pert Fu dog and is priced at $4.94. Another in a chest style, comes at $1.64, including the war tax. There are numerous designs, ranging up to $14.18, including the war tax.

Fragrance

As for the incense itself, one spicy brand, the Temple of Allah, comes at .23. A Japanese powdered form is .74, and sticks are .39 a box.
With such small aids one can put the perfume of the Orient into a dreaming air.

THE SILVER LINING

If the sugar shortage brings about a greater appreciation of sugarless coffee, it will be of benefit to coffee drinkers.

Good coffee, properly made, needs no sugar to make it palatable. Connoisseurs know this, but the average coffee drinker adds sugar and thereby loses the true coffee taste.

CHILDS coffee, enriched with milk and cream, has a delicious, mellow flavor of its own.

Sugar, if you like, but equally palatable without it.

ROB BIG STORE IN OMAHA

Blow Open Safe and Get Away with $63,000 in Cash, Securities, and Valuables.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 30.—Robbers blew the safe of Hayden Brothers' store, one of the largest retail houses here, at midnight Saturday after they had bound and gagged two watchmen, and escaped with $63,000 in cash, securities and other valuables.

After satisfying their monetary desires the theives feasted on "Dutch lunch" from the grocery department, sang and danced for their captives for three hours, paid each $20 "for his trouble" and departed at daylight.

It is believed that the safeblowers secluded themselves in the store during the rush hours Saturday and remained there when the place closed at night. After overcoming the watchmen they took rugs from the drapery department to muffle the explosions and blew the safes with nitroglycerin.

Joseph Hayden, President of the firm, asserted that the cash in the vault amounted to $30,000. Among the loot also were many Liberty bonds belonging to employes.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The American Woolen Company hereby announces to its employees a plan of sick and accident benefits, effective noon, December 1, 1919. This plan will include every employee of the American Woolen Company and its subsidiary companies. The basis on which these benefits are computed is as follows:

No employee is insured under the plan who is not on the payroll of the Company on December 1st, 1919, working for full time and full pay. An employee who is not at work on December 1st, because of disability, will be insured from the date of his return to employment on full time and full pay. After December 1, 1919, new employees will be eligible when they have been in the employ of the Company for a period of six continuous months.

1. Those on the payroll December 1, 1919, and who have been employed for less than six months, will receive 40% of their average weekly income.

2. Those employed continuously over six months, and not more than one year, will receive 50% of their average weekly income.

3. Those employed continuously over one year, and not more than two years, will receive 60% of their average weekly income.

4. Those employed continuously over two years, and not more than three years, will receive 70% of their average weekly income.

5. Those employed continuously over three years, and not more than four years, will receive 75% of their average weekly income.

6. Those employed continuously over four years will receive 80% of their average weekly income.

No employee will receive less than $8.00 per week, nor more than $30.00 per week, regardless of his average weekly earnings.

These benefits will cover all cases of disability arising from sickness or accident, inside or outside of the worker's place of employment, and are supplemental and in addition to the indemnities provided for by the Compensation Acts of the different States where our mills are located, for accidents arising at occupation, to the extent of the difference between the indemnities provided for by the above plan and the indemnities provided by the Compensation Acts of such States, except that new employees hired after December 1, 1919, will only be entitled to benefits as provided by the Compensation Act until after they have completed six months' continuous service.

The benefits will begin only after seven days' loss of time, and will continue thereafter for a period not to exceed 26 continuous weeks, so that for accidents occurring at occupation the amount of indemnity paid beyond 26 weeks and the duration of indemnity beyond 26 weeks, shall be only that provided for by the Compensation Law of the State in which the mill in which an emplayee works is located.

Benefits for maternity cases, including any illness due to pregnancy, for employed women will be paid for a period of four weeks only, in amounts dependent on length of service, as outlined in the above plan.

These benefits are in addition also to the Group Life Insurance now in effect.

Further details of this plan will be announced later.

MERCHANT MARINE GROWING RAPIDLY

American Shipbuilding Going Ahead, with 550,000 Tons Already on the Ways.

COST OF LABOR A PROBLEM

Men Who Were Getting $15 to $20 Two Years Ago Now Draw $50 to $100, and Want More.

Despite mounting labor costs and other obstacles, America's shipbuilding industry is here to stay, whether or not the Government continues ship construction, according to the Atlantic Coast Shipbuilders' Association. This organization considers it unbelievable that the great organization built up during the war will be allowed to dwindle to pre-war proportions now that peace conditions have returned. Every development thus far points to a greater stability and expansion for the industry, and it is asserted that construction on the ways today represents 200,000 more gross tons than a month ago.

This view is shared to some extent by Henry C. Wiltbank in the December issue of The Rudder, in an article entitled "What is Labor Doing to Shipping?" but he asserts that if shipbuilding and the new American merchant marine win their way to permanency it must be in spite of labor. Mr. Wiltbank sounds a note of warning to labor and points out that from the laying of the keel to the discharge of cargo in the foreign port of destination "American shipping staggers under a burden of labor costs and handicaps greater than that of any other nation. Our ships cost more to build, more to load, more to operate, and more to keep in condition. We must carry larger crews and pay them more, and we must run vessels so manned in a competition where all the initial advantages are in favor of our competitors."

The Atlantic Coast Shipbuilders' Association points out that "although only a few months have elapsed since American shipyards became free to accept orders for private account, there are already on the ways and under rapid construction more than 555,000 gross tons of merchant shipping. This amount is exclusive of all Government work. And, furthermore, it includes no wooden steamers and no sailing vessels of any kind, being confined to steel steamers, the prime essential for foreign trade."

There are under construction now 118 ships as follows: Freighters, 59; tankers, 34; trawlers, 11; fruit steamers, 6; oil barges, 2; ore carriers, 2; harbor scows, [illegible]; motor vessels, 1; barges, 1. The present construction, it is pointed out, is practically 100 per cent. American, only one of the vessels being for foreign account.

In his article in The Rudder, Mr. Wiltbank points out that workers in shipyards who little more than two years ago were making $15 to $20 a week, are now drawing from $50 to $100 a week, and upward in many cases. "And on top of this," he says, "they are asking for a 25 per cent. increase in pay and a reduction in working hours — higher wages for lower production."

Mr. Wiltbank says that save for labor American shipyards are in better position than the British. Cost of materials is lower here and deliveries can be made much more promptly. Wages in British yards have advanced, too, since the beginning of the war, but whereas British workmen today are making from about $15 to $20 a week, he says, the same class of American labor are drawing from $50 to $60 weekly. He adds that as prices are today, the British have an advantage of from about $150 to $160 a ton, as against the American $170 and $180. In cases where no time of delivery has to be specified. English yards are quoting as low as $125 a ton. Still lower tonnage prices may be looked for, he says, when Germany, after compliance with the peace conditions, is in a position to compete.

"Add to the heavy hand of labor," he says in his arraignment, "the high one of Government control, the clumsy, if well-intentioned, one of Congress, and the cold one of public apathy. If the new merchant marine survives this wholesale laying on of hands it will be only through the miracle of a guiding hand capable of counteracting all these blighting influences and converting them into helping hands. And a vitally essential step in this direction is to bring the nation to a realization that a large merchant marine is a national necessity."

SEES BOSTON A RED HOTBED

Mayor Peters Calls Conference to Plan Campaign Against Radicals.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—Mayor Peters charges that rich Boston citizens are supplying large sums to further the Bolshevist movement. Greater Boston, he says, is a hotbed of red activity, and he attacks the Federal authorities for alleged failure to act on information given them. He asserts that on several occasions Federal officials moved so slowly that the offenders had ample opportunity to cover their tracks.

Believing that the situation has become so serious here that action is vital, Mayor Peters has called a conference to take place at his office tomorrow afternoon. Boston police officials and State and Federal officials have been invited. He intends at this conference to outline plans for a drive on Reds in this section.

Senator Penrose Is Better.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Senator Boies Penrose was said by his physicians to be somewhat better today and out of danger.

ASKS MORE ANARCHY LAWS.

American Defense Society Commends New York Statute to Governors.

Continued reports of criminal anarchy in various parts of the country have caused the American Defense Society to send a letter to the Governor of every State urging that steps be taken to pass remedial legislation similar to the New York State law against criminal anarchy.

The letter reads, in part:

"Since the suppression of criminal anarchy is demanded, we ask your consideration of the need in your State of special laws which will enable you to deal promptly with this public menace. Comparatively little has been done by the Federal authorities, and although a number of bills have been introduced into Congress, of broader scope and stricter penalties than those now on the statute books, it is uncertain when the results may be expected. Meanwhile, the New York State law against criminal anarchy has proved very efficacious and is being actively enforced, as evidenced by the indictment of Gitlow and others."

It is the belief of the officials of the society that if New York's law was copied by other States, such a statute would make for the peace of the communities as the radical elements would be less inclined to start trouble in view of the penalties carried with the law.

GIRL FIGHTS OFF ROBBER.

Saves Diamond Ring by Her Pluck When Man Attacks Her.

Madeline Goldstein, 22 years old, of 766 Grote Street, the Bronx, was attacked by a would-be robber in the hallway of the apartment in which she lives, early yesterday morning.

She resisted his effort to take a diamond ring from her finger, and the man knocked her down. Her screams brought other tenants to her aid, and the man fled into Bronx Park, a block away, without getting the ring. She is under the care of a physician.

WELSH MINERS VOTE STRIKE

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Welsh coal mines have voted in favor of a strike in order to resist the payment of an income tax on incomes below two hundred and fifty pounds sterling annually.

FIRE INTERRUPTS DINNER.

Blaze in Elevator Shaft Halts Address to Orthodox Rabbis.

Shortly after 11 o'clock last night several hundred girls occupying the dormitories in the building of the Young Women's Hebrew Association, at 31 West 110th Street, and the 200 guests attending the dinner of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations were suddenly greeted with the persistent ringing of the fire signal throughout the building. Being used to the fire drill, the girls responded instantly and in perfect order.

The diners on the eighth floor were told by the toastmaster, Charles S. Shapiro, that this was one of the regular drills, and asked them to pass quietly to the street, but when they reached the ground floor they were met by real firemen and learned the story of a real fire in the elevator shaft.

Within a few minutes after the firemen had announced that all danger was past, the girls were back in their rooms and the diners had filed into the auditorium on the ground floor, where Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein, who was speaking when the alarm sounded, continued his address. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a short circuit.

Salesrooms in 49 leading cities of the United States, Great Britain and France

To Consumers of FLOUR

The UNITED STATES GRAIN CORPORATION bought last Tuesday, November 25th, 500,000 barrels of Pure Wheat Flour. This flour is being packed in 12 pound and 24½ pound packages under the trade name UNITED STATES GRAIN CORPORATION STANDARD PURE WHEAT FLOUR. We expect to be able by December 10th to get this flour into the retail stores of the larger cities to be sold to the public at prices around 75 cents per 12 pound package and $1.50 per 24½ pound package.

Many retailers are already handling similar flour at about similar prices but other retailers say their customers insist on buying highly separated patent flour at higher prices. We will supply UNITED STATES GRAIN CORPORATION STANDARD PURE WHEAT FLOUR at any point in the United States in paper sacks, either 12 pound, or 24½ pound, or mixed, at $10.43 per barrel in car lots, or in cotton 24½ pound sacks at $10.80 per barrel, car lots. The only condition of sale is that this flour will be retailed at prices not over $1.55 per 24½ pound sack paper, or $1.60 per 24½ pound sack cotton.

If public officials, consumers' associations or leagues, or other responsible associations should advise us that there is no pure wheat flour on sale at retail stores in their communities at about these prices, we will endeavor to make this flour available, preferably through the established trade channels, in the respective communities.

NOTE: UNITED STATES GRAIN CORPORATION STANDARD PURE WHEAT FLOUR IS NOT "War Flour," or "Victory Flour," but is a standard quality flour of Straight Grade, made of the best wheat and used in large quantities before the war by both bakers and the grocery trade. It will make good bread and its use will result in large savings as compared with the present prices of certain patent flours.

MOTHER ENDS LIFE WITH HER CHILDREN

Turns On Gas and Three Little Ones Die, Infant Narrowly Escaping.

TWO WOMEN ASPHYXIATED

Mother and Daughter, Recently Arrived from Florida, Found Dead in Furnished Room.

Six persons died from gas in this city yesterday, two women accidentally, while the police reported the asphyxiation of Mrs. Louise Bosholde and three of her young children as suicide.

Three weeks ago Charles Bosholde opened a bakery at 1,953 Third Avenue. Although the task of bringing up Charles, Jr., 6 years old; Louise, 3 years old, and Henry, 2 years old, was a heavy one, Mrs. Bosholde helped out in the bakery until two weeks ago, when Mary Bosholde was born. When she was well enough, Mrs. Bosholde again resumed work in the bakery, but she seemed moody and not at all her former cheerful self.

Yesterday an assistant baker told Bosholde he thought he heard the sound of some one fall in the Bosholde apartment above the shop. The master baker went upstairs. He found his wife unconscious on the floor and the ltitle ones grouped about her. The infant, Mary, was just slipping into unconsciousness in an adjoining room. The baker summoned Policeman Westphal, who went to work administering first aid, first sending in a call for help from the Reception Hospital.

Maggie B. Gaspard, about 65 years old, and her daughter, about 27 years old, were asphyxiated by gas in a furnished room at 421 Lexington Avenue.

Mrs. Dora Lipinsky, the housekeeper, found the elder woman lying on the floor, while the younger one was in bed.

HUSTLING REDS BACK TO EUROPE

ment, and Andreytchine wrote to Howe a letter of thanks for his services. Densmore, Barton, and others who figured in this case are expected to appear before the committee at its hearings early this week in Washington.

Another case which the committee will investigate is that of Frank R. Lopez, a self-confessed anarchist, who holds the record for keeping his deportation hearings in the courts. Lopez was originally arrested five years ago, and has been in and out of custody during that period. He is at present out on bond, and his whereabouts is reported to be doubtful in spite of the fact that Federal Judge John C. Knox, in dismissing a writ of habeas corpus obtained for the man, said that the "insididous teachings" made him more dangerous to the country than anarchists who openly preached and practiced violence.

Department of Labor Criticised.

"We find that in this case and others which went into the Federal courts," said Congressman Isaac Siegel of New York, "the legal staff of the Department of Labor has apparently made no effort at all to push the cases, and has been content to allow the lawyers for the men to obtain the greatest possible delays.

"We find that, in the case of the men released on bail, on their own recognizance or in the custody of their counsel they have not been photographed and that there is no staff to keep track of such cases or to hunt up the men that disappear. These Reds have been turned loose under conditions which made it practically certain that most of them would not reappear. We intend to fix the guilt of this policy.

"We find that Commissioner Howe did not even keep a file or list of the men released on bail, and that there was no follow-up system of any description. His annual reports do not even show the number released on bail or on their own recognizance. In order to get this information, we have to go to Washington and look up the records in each case individually. The keeping of records on Ellis Island under Commissioner Howe has been a joke.

"One of the legislative changes which the committee will recommend is that of abolishing the office of Immigration Commissioner at Ellis Island, because the office itself is an obstacle to the proper administration of the department. Mr. Howe was an appointee of the President and could be removed in only two ways, either by the President forcing his resignation or by the House of Representatives presenting articles of impeachment to the Senate. Now he was supposed to be subject to orders from Assistant Secretaries of the Department of Labor, who could be removed by the Secretary of Labor. He was practically independent of the Commissioner General.

Howe Disobeyed Chief.

"We found that the Commissioner General frequently disagreed with Mr. Howe and would have blocked some of his actions, but the commissioner at Ellis Island had his way by disregarding his immediate chief and dealing with the Secretary and Assistant Secretaries in the Department of Labor. We are in favor of placing an Assistant Secretary of Labor on Ellis Island, a man who will be under the authority of the Secretary of Labor and who will be charged with the decision of appeals and the issuance of deportation warrants. This should avoid in the future the long delays which have taken place. Under the existing laws the country could have been cleaned of alien anarchists, but the trouble has been that they have not been enforced."

The committee will probably renew its hearing on Ellis Island on Thursday or Friday. A formal demand will be made on Harry Weinberger, the lawyer, for the return to Ellis Island of all the Reds who have been released in his custody and whose whereabouts is now unknown, according to the Government records. As soon as the transcript of the hearings is completed, it was said, the part relating to Mr. Weinberger's clients will be sent to the Bar Association with a recommendation for investigation.

The Communist Party, which was formed last September for the purpose of organizing into a militant revolutionary body all factions of radicals in the United States, is having trouble in herding together all these elements, according to papers of the party seized by the police and the Lusk committee. The latest issue of The Communist, which is printed in Chicago, contains an attack on ex-Assemblyman Benjamin Gitlow, who has been indicted for criminal anarchy in this city. Communist publications in this city deplore their failure to stampede the whole Socialist Party. While courting Socialist support, the Communists referred to the Socialists as their "comrades." Indignant at the comparatively mild policy which the bulk of the Socialist Party insists on pursuing, the Communist writers now usually refer to them as "calm-rats."

The Communist Party in New Jersey now has 2,078 members and sixty-three branches, according to information obtained by the Department of Justice. The Communists of New York, according to the Lusk committee, numbered 7,500 at the time of the Lusk raids several weeks ago.

WILL FIGHT DEPORTATION.

Emma Goldman and Berkman Hailed as Martyrs in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Violent protests were made today by Emma Goldman against her deportation.

"I am a naturalized citizen of the United States, and I have my naturalization papers here to prove it, and I am going to fight the Government to the last ditch against deportation," she said, in addressing a meeting of radicals here today. "If I am deported, I do not want to go at the expense of the United States, but I am willing to go at my own expense and pick the port at which I shall land."

Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, who is also slated for deportation, said:

"The anarchists, Socialists, Bolsheviki, and I. W. W. of the United States are lovers of the country and are merely taking exception to the laws of deportation, which were passed as war measures to be used after the war. I have been an anarchist for thirty-two years and have served sixteen years in prison, but, nevertheless, I expect to die an anarchist."

At a meeeting Saturday night Emma Goldman and Berkman were hailed as martyrs by 4,500 radicals. An admission fee of 50 cents was charged and $5,000 was raised to aid Berkman and Emma Goldman fight deportation. The committee called on the police to guard them while they counted the money and made arrangements to care for it until it could be banked.

I. W. W. HUNGER STRIKE PASSES 96-HOUR MARK

Twenty-two Men Still Refuse to Eat at Tacoma—One Taken to the Hospital.

TACOMA, Nov. 30.—There was no weakening tonight in the hunger strike instituted four days ago by twenty-two men said to be members of the I. W. W. held in jail here. The fast reached the 93-hour mark at dinner time tonight.

One hunger striker was taken to the county hospital last night. He was said to have a high fever and is generally weak, but physicians said his condition was not due to hunger but rather to a run down condition before entering the jail.

Assertions that the hunger strikers were being fed by other prisoners were declared unfounded by the police, as the radicals are so placed that communication of this sort is impossible.

AUDIENCE ENLIVENS DEBATE ON LEAGUE

Hamilton Holt Speaking For, and H. A. Wise Wood Against It, Often Interrupted.

6 OF 600 HAD READ TREATY

Hisses and Handclapping Punctuate Remarks of Orators at Community Forum.

A spirited debate on the League of Nations in which Hamilton Holt, editor of The Independent, spoke on the affirmative, and Henry A. Wise Wood the negative side, took place last night at the Community Forum, Public School 27, Forty-second Street, near Third Avenue. The audience played a lively part in the proceedings, interrupting frequently from the floor and interjecting questions and remarks.

At the outset Mr. Holt was floored when he asked how many desired to see the covenant of the League of Nations "taken by the tail like a dead cat and thrown over the fence" and found that the great majority of the large audience was in favor of doing just that. However, when he asked how many had read the 75,000 words of the treaty he found that six of the 600 present had perused it. About half appeared to have read the sections dealing exclusively with the League of Nations.

There was loud applause when the name of the late Colonel Roosevelt was mentioned. The applause was just as vigorous when Mr. Wood accused Mr. Holt of attempting to keep the country out of war. And when Mr. Wood declared that he did his best to get the country into the war the hisses drowned his voice. His attacks on the League were generally applauded.

Mr. Wood charged that the President was sending soldiers to Russia without the consent of Congress and exclaimed: "Have we come to the point where we have a King-President?" Mingled hissing and handclapping followed this utterance. Mr. Holt defended the President from the attack and remarked that practically every President had been maligned in his time in much the same way.

When Mr. Wood asked the audience if it objected to Congress making a reservation on a particular point a young woman shouted. "I don't trust any of them." Whereupon the speaker asked whether the Serbians or Jugoslavs or other foreign representatives were better worthy of trust than American Congressmen. If that were so, he suggested that the young woman go to live in the country whose representatives she trusted or else to vote for a representative she did trust.

Mr. Wood sought to remind his audience that the United States might not have been born had not the French given their assistance, and he said that the League of Nations would prevent the United States rendering aid to a revolting people. Mr. Holt replied that Article X. had been misrepresented, and that, while it spoke of preserving the territorial integrity of the nations members of the League, this would only develop in case of external aggression. If Ireland obtained its independence, he added, there was nothing in the covenant to prevent that independence from being recognized by the United States.

Mr. Holt held that Article X. did not jeopardize a possible revolt in Ireland or Korea and that nothing in it would prevent the recognition of Ireland's independence by the United States. His opponent, who disclaimed being antagonistic to Great Britain or any other nation, replied that the article guaranteed the integrity of the British Empire. If the new Russia should attack India, he said, America would defend the British possession from Russia. Mr. Wood added that an American mandate for Armenia would benefit the British, for Armenia, he said, was between the gateway of Russia and the Suez Canal.

Under a League of Nations, Mr. Wood declared, this country would have to maintain an army of 580,000 men, according to the testimony of General March and Secretary Baker, while without it, according to General Pershing and General Wood, an army of 287,000 would be sufficient. He saw no disarmament in such an arrangement. The countries of Europe were calling on the United States for assistance because they were so gorged with new territory, he asserted, that they were unable to hold on to it all.

Mr. Holt maintained that the United States lost no sovereignty in entering the League. If the treaty should be passed with the Senate's reservations, he declared, the international law of the world would be in the backward state that civil law was in the twelfth century, the world would go back to the old form of competitive armaments, and revolution in the countries of the world would follow.

CHAMPION WAR OBJECTORS.

British Nonconscriptionists Ask Release of Prisoners Here.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A resolution calling on the American Government to release conscientious objectors still in prison was adopted today by the delegates of the Non-conscription Fellowship, now in session here.

Speaking on a resolution demanding the repeal of the military service act, Robert Smillie, the miners' leader, expressed the hope that the whole movement would not hesitate to resort to a general strike if that proved to be the only means of securing abolition of the hateful measure.

O. H. KAHN SUPPORTS LEAGUE OPPONENTS

Banker Writes Poindexter in Favor of "Suitable Reservations" in Peace Treaty.

PREFERS HAGUE MACHINERY

With a Declaration by the Entente and America—Defense Treaty with France Advocated.

Otto H. Kahn, in a letter to Senator Miles Poindexter, which was made public yesterday, declared his opposition to the League of Nations covenant as it stands. Ratification "with suitable reservations, unless prevented by unyielding obstinacy and pride of opinion in high places," is the course which, he says, is called for, "however reluctantly."

The original covenant, Mr. Kahn contends, compels America to act henceforth as "the policeman of Europe and Asia." "Nothing we fought for," he continues, "makes it incumbent upon us to transform the American eagle into an international mongrel." Mr. Kahn, in conclusion, asserts that "Europe needs America's financial aid at this juncture a great deal more than it needs America's participation in the League of Nation."

The letter says:

"I am, of course, cordially in favor of any wise and fitting pact to preserve the peace of the world. I am in favor of America taking her full share in the burden of that responsibility which rightfully goes with power.

"I am in favor of dealing with those nations by whose side we fought in the war, not merely according to the measure of our duty, but according to the measure of our good-will and of our grateful appreciation of their heroism and their sacrifices in the struggle to save the world from Prussianism.

"I am in favor of the proposed defense treaty with our sister republic and ancient ally, France (excepting the provision which makes its duration subject to the judgment of the League of Nations). I am in favor of the most cordial understanding and co-operation with Great Britain.

"Indeed, I believe that no other single element is so vital to the peace, safety and freedom of the world as close, harmonious, and mutually trustful relationship between America and that great democratic empire.

"I am in favor of doing everything incumbent upon us to make secure and to perpetuate that which we and the allied nations fought for.

"But I am strongly opposed to the League of Nations covenant as originally submitted to the Senate. Indeed, I disbelieve in the whole conception on which it rests. I share the opinion of President Nicholas Murray Butler as expressed in a recent speech in which he gives voice to his deep disappointment that, instead of 'setting up a great tribunal by which law shall be substituted for force in the settlement of international disputes,' the peace treaty 'largely relies upon political and diplomatic discussion' and devices as a means of preventing wars.

"Nothing that we fought for makes it incumbent upon us to entangle ourselves in the age-long racial squabbles and intrigues of Europe and Asia, or to become the guardians and guarantors for all time of an arbitrarily and artificially remodeled world, put together in disregard, more or less, of the evolution of centuries or the proved qualities and characteristics of races, according to the judgment and formulae and compromises of a few men assembled in secret conclave, far removed from the informing and vitalizing currents of public opinion.

"Nothing that we fought for makes it incumbent upon us to relinquish our fundamental national policies and traditions, and to transform the American eagle into an international mongrel.

"We helped mightily to win the war. Alone among the victors, we ask for none of the spoils (though, it seems to me, at least we might well and justly have claimed a share in the distribution of those islands in the Pacific formerly owned by Germany which are of strategic importance to America). We are not called upon to set America's signature to an instrument that would leave us poorer in those intangible national assets which we have jealously guarded heretofore and which we rightly prize.

"I fear that our participation in the League, with its infinite and all-embracing complexity, inelasticity and cumbersome machinery, instead of being a breeder of peace and good-will, would be rather apt to be a breeder of misunderstanding, irritatoin and ill feeling, as far as America is concerned.

"Already, in our recent excursion into the field of European politics, we have managed in one short year to convert friendship and trust toward us into misunderstanding and irritation, in the case of too many of those nations with whom we were associated in the war.

"We would be expected by our associates in the League to do things, some of which we know beforehand we shall not do adequately or at all unless they are supported by public opinion in this country.

"We would be expected to take or participate in decisions and actions which, in many cases, would find repercussions in our domestic politics with consequences easily to be foreseen. Whether our representatives on the Council of the League would always be selected according to fitness and experience, or whether at times their qualifications would be mainly that of being 'deserving' party men, is at least open to question.

"I had hoped (and some of those more competent than I in international affairs shared that hope) that in place of creating a wholly novel and untried machinery of vast complexity, the United States, England, France, and Italy would make a short, simple, solemn declaration to the world to the effect that the high and beneficent things we fought for, we mean to preserve and protect and that any one who assails them will find these great European powers and America arrayed for the defense of liberty, peace, and right.

"Such a declaration would have meant neither an alliance with or against anybody, nor a threat toward any other nation. It is true that it would have no perpetually binding force. But neither has the League of Nations covenant perpetually binding force, inasmuch as any member may withdraw from it on two years' notice. I feel that such a declaration, together with the utilization, strengthening and development of the existing machinery of The Hague Tribunal, would accomplish all that we are called upon to do in this respect, and accomplish it more effectively than an ironclad document."

The letter was made public yesterday by the Comittee of American Business Men, of which George Henry Payne is secretary. Senator Poindexter, in forwarding it to the Senate Committee, characterized it as "the most effective statement from an American businessman, which I have seen, in opposition to the passage of the Peace Treaty as submitted to the Senate."

Dinner to Dr. Frauenthal.

The culmination of the drive to raise $1,800,000 for the new building of the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases will be celebrated by a beefsteak dinner to Dr. Henry Fruenthal, founder and chief surgeon of the institution, by the hospital staff in Reisenweber's Hawaiian Room tomorrow night. Leading surgeons, including Drs. Herman Frauenthal, A. A. Berg, J. Bentley Squier, Harlow Brooks, Philip Grausman, Leo Michel, M. Packard, I. J. Newman, and David Levy are among the invited guests.

"The Play's the Thing!"

We never forget that after an advertisement is written and read, the acid test is in the thing itself rather than in the things said about it. We can all write a good advertisement once in a while, but as Shakespeare observed: "The Play's the Thing!" And on that basis Goldwyn is prepared to be judged!

You're the finest girl in the world and I am a thief!!

And in the end he gave his life to save the man she loved, as lightly as once he would have taken the life of any man who crossed his path.

The Kid proves it. He is a thief—he is one of a gang of thieves—all of them redeemed from dishonor and shame by a young and innocent girl playing a lone hand in a land that knows only one type of woman!

A peach of a story!—A Beach of a story!—a story of love and honor rising from the mud of primitive passions and surging through reels of nip-and-tuck suspense, told by one of the greatest photodramatists of his time, and screened with the scenic fidelity and crystalline photography of Goldwyn!

URGES 5-YEAR TRIAL OF RAIL CONTROL

La Follette, in Minority Report on Cummins Bill, Predicts Government Ownership.

DEFENDS RIGHT TO STRIKE

Charges "Systematic and Powerful Propaganda" to Discredit Federal Operation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Asserting that Government ownership of railroads is logical and inevitable, Senator La Follette, Republican of Wisconsin, in a minority report on the Cummins Railroad bill, made public tonight, urged that the roads be retained under Federal operation for an experimental period of at least five years.

The anti-strike provisions of the Cummins measure were assailed vigorously by the Wisconsin Senator, who declared it was impossible to take away the workers' right to strike.

Senator La Follette said the bill proposed to retain most of the vices with few of the virtues of Government control. Private operation had demonstrated its "rottenness and inefficiency," but Federal operation during the war did not get a fair test.

"There has been a systematic and powerful propaganda," the report asserted, "to discredit the Government operation of the railroads and hasten their return to the private owners. The failure of private ownership and private operation leads logically to Government ownership and operation. It is inevitable here. It may be delayed, but it will come."

In urging five years' control Senator LaFoll ette said he understood this period also was favored by former Director General McAdoo, Director General Hines, and two members of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Cummins bill proviso penalizing strikes, Senator La Follette declares, was "fraught with great danger to the public interest." He insisted that the clause declaring that the anti-strike sections should not deny individuals the right to quit their employment was "without meaning or value to the employe."

"You can no more legislate men out of their right to strike in this country," the report said, "than you can legislate them out of their religious faith or their political beliefs. The main object of the strike section may be to check the rise in wages consequent upon the scarcity of labor resulting from the great war."

OPEN ALL-YEAR HIGH SCHOOL

Experiment of New Educational Plan Begins in Newark Today.

The first all-year high school in New Jersey will open today in the Central High School, Newark. The experiment is being watched by the State Board of Education and educators all over the East, and if it proves successful other high schools will take up the plan.

Under the plan ambitious pupils will be able to cut down the high school course from four to three years. This is provided for by condensing the work now done in forty weeks into thirty-six weeks and adding twelve weeks to each year, making three years of forty-eight weeks each.

Superintendent of Schools David B. Corson of Newark expects the new school to be as successful as the all-year elementary schools have been.

"Time is an element in education," said Dr. Corson, "and the speed of the work ought not to be greater than the pupil's ability to assimilate knowledge or more rapid than his mental development. Representatives of the State Educational Department have given assurance that a thirty-six-week year, if adopted in Newark for an all-year high school will be recommended to the State Board, and undoubtedly will be approved.

"Under the plan, less important topics will be eliminated from the curriculum and less time will be taken up by tests and examinations. The plan provides for the terms to start Sept. 8, Dec. 1, March 1, and June 1. The Central High School has an enrollment of 2,025 pupils. The all-year plan will accelerate their time in school and will make room more rapidly for others.

"Trial only can determine whether pupils will drop out in the Summer. Many pupils are eager to gain time and it is believed most of them will attend throughout the year."

THE SCREEN

Apparently Mary Pickford is facing the realization that she cannot go on forever as the sweet, cute, and kittenish little darling of the screen, for her latest motion picture, "Heart o' the Hills," which is at the Strand this week, shows her in more serious moods and with more mature manners than her previous productions. She is still, at times, the hop-skip-and-jumping young thing sh used to be all of the time, but in a number of scenes she makes real emotional efforts, and throughout the photoplay attempts to portray a character of interest to others besides children and adults feeling childish. And it will be good news to the many Pickford fans, as well as to those who believe she "could do something else if she would only try," that she is adequate in every scene. She attempts nothing very exacting, but she does enough to give promise of more, and her progress from juvenility to complete maturity will undoubtedly be watched with universal interest.

"Heart o' the Hills" is an adaptation of the novel by John Fox, Jr., and is faithfully John-Foxy, employing all of the intriguing ingredients of romance, sentimentality, adventure, and atmosphere so successfully compounded into stories of the Kentucky and North Carolina mountains. Despite its unreality of plot and action, however, it approaches the genuine in its characters, the most important of which are delightfully impersonated by Miss Pickford as an untamed mountain girl, Harold Goodwin as her boy companion, Claire McDowell as one of the pathetic clods in every mountain cabin, Fred W. Huntley as the ancient but still active head of his clan, and Sam De Grasse as the scheming traitor to his people.

The picture was directed by Sidney A. Franklin, who brought some of the mountain scenery effectively into it, but not as much as could have been used to advantage. He left little to be desired, however, in costuming and interior settings.

The Strand Topical Review is unusually rich this week, because it contains, in addition to its news pictures, one of Max Fleisher's "Out of the Inkwell" drawings and Pathécolor views of provincial France. Mr. Fleisher's work, by its wit of conception and skill of execution, makes the general run of animated cartoons seem dull and crude, and the colors in the Pathe scenics are pleasing to the eye and remarkably true to actuality.

"Eyes of Youth" is the kind of play that is dear to the hearts of many actresses and a large number of the public. It offers such a variety and intensity of histrionic moments to its actress and is so steeped in "heart interest" and "sob stuff," sweetened by assurance of a happy ending, that it is simply irresistible. It was on a Broadway stage for numerous weeks, and now it has come to the screen. It is at the Rivoli, and Clara Kimball Young, an infrequent visitor this year, is in the leading rôle.

Miss Young has been missed, and if her next picture is as far away from the present as her last she will be missed the more because of her performance in "Eyes of Youth." When she undertook her latest work she promised to do something better than she had done for a long time, and she has fulfilled her promise. Although one may be unmoved by the story, he is bound to feel the force of her performance in the multiple rôle of the girl who images her future along three of the four roads open to her and finally takes, with happy confidence, the one she doesn't investigate. At least, she knows that it cannot be as bad as the other three.

Miss Young does not give much of opportunity to her supporting company, or its members do not take advantage of their chances, despite the fact that many of them are well known. They are Gareth Hughes, Pauline Starke, Sam Sothern, Milton Sills, Ralph Lewis, Edmund Lowe, William Courtleigh, and Vincent Serrano.

Pictorial effects and characterizations by Lon Chaney, Priscilla Dean, and William Stowell give most of whatever entertainment value there is to "Paid in Advance," at the Capitol this week. The picture comes to life in the scenes in which they appear. William Burress also should not be overlooked. The titular star of the production is Dorothy Phillips, who, although equal to some of her scenes, for the most part is too camera-conscious to be convincing. The picture was directed by Allen Holubar and was derived from a story by James Oliver Curwood. It deals with the miraculous escape of a pure young girl from barbaric men of the American Northwest and Alaska.

On the Capitol program are "Such Is Life in Greenwich Village," one of Hy Mayer's Travel-Laughs, and "Speed," a comedy, with Al St. John, Roscoe Arbuckle's former associate.

"The Bandbox," with Doris Kenyon, is at B. S. Moss's Broadway this week, and Cecil B. De Mille's "Male and Female" has moved from the Rivoli to the Rialto.

The Third Newman Travel-Talk, "Belgium Restored," was delivered at Carnegie Hall last night and will be repeated this afternoon.

"The Ideal Fuel for the Home"

Burn Coke

KEEP WARM—KEEP CLEAN—SAVE MONEY

"Koppers" Seaboard Coke

Made in the New York District in the Most Modern and Complete Coke Oven Plant in the World

It is by far the cleanest and most economical fuel on the market today. Its use will mean a warm, evenly heated house with no smoke, soot, dirt or gases. Furthermore, it will mean a substantial saving in your fuel expense, in addition to giving you greater heating efficiency.

"Koppers" Seaboard Coke should not be confounded with ordinary gas coke. "Koppers" Coke is made from a selected mixture of superior coals by the by-product coking process, which removes all impurities. It is practically pure carbon—the heat element—contains more heat units and goes farther, pound for pound, than any other fuel. It kindles quickly, warms the house rapidly, is easy to handle and gives a clean fire, leaving no ashes worth sifting—no clinkers.

Can be used in Any Furnace, Heater or Range suitable for burning hard coal without any change and positively will not burn out grates or linings.

SAYS SMITH CLEARS FARMERS ON PRICES

GAVE MILK AS AN INSTANCE

Declares Executive Plans to Bring Producer and Consumer Together to Effect Economy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—What are represented as the views of Governor Smith of New York on the cost of living situation are set forth in a statement issued here tonight by the National Board of Farm Organization, the national headquarters of the farmers of the country, through Charles A. Lyman, its Secretary, in which it is asserted that Governor Smith does not believe that the farmers are responsible for the high cost of living.

In making its statement, the board explains that it recently sent one of its representatives to New York City to see Governor Smith, and that the Governor so expressed himself to that agent of the farmers.

"Governor Smith," the announcement read, "said he believed the fault lay in the cost of distribution, and wanted to know why the farmers and the city workers had not adopted a plan by which closer co-operation could be established for the mutual benefit of each element. The Governor said he was particularly anxious to reduce the cost of milk to the poor people of New York and at the same time he desired that the dairymen who supply the fluid obtain compensation sufficient to make the business attractive to them.

"He couldn't understand how a farmer could raise his cow, feed it, milk it, and carry the milk to the distributing point at a total cost of 7 or 8 cents a quart, while the distributor insisted on getting 10 to 12 cents a quart for his part of the service. 'It seems strange to me that a man can raise the calf until it is old enough to give milk, tend it in every way, pay for the milking and housing, and carry the milk to the supply station for 8 cents a quart and still make a profit, while the city distributor claims to be making no money when he receives 10 or 12 cents a quart for his service,' said Governor Smith. 'Decidedly the farmer cannot be held responsible for the high cost of milk. There are other elements which enter into this matter, and which cumulatively result in abnormally high costs to the consumer.'

"Governor Smith said he wanted to see the consumer and producer act together in an intelligent, broad-minded way. As long as the present costly system of distribution prevails, the milk producer will be dissatisfied with his returns, and the city milk buyer will feel that he is being robbed, the executive said.

"'I am trying to get the two elements together,' said the Governor. 'It will probably take a long time to effect this junction, but if reasonable satisfaction is to be guaranteed it must be through intelligent and effective co-operation between the farmer and the ultimate consumer. What I say with regard to milk applies in relation to other products. There must be found a means by which the cost of distribution will be materially reduced.

"'Distributors will supply you with data which will support their contention that they are unable to perform their service to the city at less than the prevailing cost. The farmer who at least makes a living on 8 cents a quart must be a particularly efficient individual. He has done all the preparatory work. He has prepared the cow to furnish the milk and has made her efficient for that purpose. And yet the distributor will tell you that he must have 10 cents a quart to break even or make a satisfactory return on his investment.

"'When comparing his claims with the actual results achieved by the farmers one might be excused for indulging in an incredulous smile. I hope the time will come when there will be an established and recognized community of interest between the city worker and the farmer along economic lines. It would be a good thing for both.'"

HYLAN URGES AID FOR ACTORS' FUND

In Proclamation Mayor Asks That Memorial Day Be Marked by Generosity.

PRAISES THEIR WAR WORK

Pastors of Many City Churches Make Plea in Support of Endowment Campaign.

In a proclamation yesterday Mayor Hylan called upon the people of the city to make Actors' Memorial Day, Friday, Dec. 5, "a banner day of appreciation and generosity." The proclamation reads:

"Whereas, during the world war the members of the actors' profession signally distinguished themselves as patriotic citizens, on all occasions generously lending themselves not only to the aid of Liberty Loan, Red Cross, and other worthy drives, but by crossing the seas and braving the dangers and the hardships of the trenches in order to bring cheer to the hearts of millions of American soldiers; and,

"Whereas, from time immemorial the theatrical profession has been synonymous with big-heartedness, ever ready to answer the call of the needy, never hesitant about devoting its talents to any good cause; and,

"Whereas, Friday, Dec. 5, has been set aside as Actors' Memorial Day, the proceeds of every matinée performance in the United States on that day having been pledged to the Actors' Fund of America, out of which is paid the care of indigent members of the actors, profession and the upkeep of the Actors' Home; therefore,

"I, John F. Hylan, Mayor of the City of New York, appeal to the people of this great metropolis to do all within their means toward making Actors' Memorial Day a banner day of appreciation and generosity."

As an appreciation of the services rendered by the actors and actresses in the war and Liberty Loan campaigns, announcement was made in most of the churches of New York yesterday that the Actors' National Memorial Day campaign, which is making a drive for a permanent endowment fund for actors and actresses, should receive the full support of the congregations.

Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, gave his indorsement to the project at high mass yesterday morning. It was also upheld by the Episcopal Bishop Charles S. Burch of the diocese of New York, and the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hollis of the Plymouth Congregational Church, Brooklyn

VALERA ON HIS TOUR.

Says Ireland "Lost 3,000,000 Men" in War, All Deceived.

"The spirit of '76 must support Ireland," said Eammon de Valera in an address before the State convention of the Friends of Irish Freedom in Yorkville Casino yesterday afternoon. Mr. de Valera appeared on the platform near the conclusion of the afternoon session, and was greeted with applause lasting several minutes from an audience of 1,500.

The "President of the Irish Republic" gave a favorable report of his tour through the country, which he has just concluded. He said that in his entire trip he encountered only five cases of pronounced opposition to the Irish cause. He spoke of The Los Angeles Times as "our bitterest opponent in the press," and continued:

"British propaganda has sought to make Americans believe that the issue between Ireland and England is a religious one. It is a purely political struggle. Failing in this attempt at beclouding the facts, England has turned to an attack on Ireland's attitude in the war. Ireland was the most generous nation on earth, for she lost 3,000,000 men, who had been deceived into thinking that they were fighting for the rights of small nations

ARMENIAN PREMIER DINED.

Members of Mission to Ask Government to Help New Republic.

In honor of Premier H. Khehavnuni, head of the new Armenian Republic, and other members of the Armenian Mission to the United States, a dinner was given last night in Odd Fellows' Hall, Hoboken, by the trustees of the Armenian Apostolic Church of West Hoboken. After the dinner members of the mission left for Washington, where pleas for financial aid for the new republic will be [illegible]

Among the speakers were Congressman John J. Eagan, State Senator Alexander Simpson, Director of Public Safety Charles O'Brien, Jersey City, and Judge James Butler, Jersey City. Mayor James C. Agnew of West Hoboken was toastmaster.

Premier Khehavnuni, speaking in Armenian, likened his country to an abused and benighted traveler knocking at the door of a prosperous and hospitable home.

Among those present were General [illegible]akroduni, General Antranig, Dr. G. [illegible]asdermagian, formerly of the Turkish Parliament, and delegate from Armenia to the Peace Conference; Bishop A. Vehouni, head of the Armenian Church in this country, and Dr. M. Enfiadjiantz Financial Minister of the new republic

BAR OUT RHINE "PRESIDENT"

Americans Refuse to Permit Dr. Darten to Reside in Occupied Zone.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—According to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph the American authorities have refused to permit Dr. H. A. Dorter of Bonn, the so-called "President of the Rhine Republic" and leader of the movement for the independence of the Rhineland, to reside in the occupied zone.

In September Dr. Dorten was informed at Army Headquarters at Coblenz that the policy of the Americans was not to permit any propaganda or speechmaking advocating a change in the government of the territory under military control, or any action of a similar nature. The American authorities told him that if the people of the Rhineland desired a change of government the question should be taken up with the Peace Conference. At the time it was stated that Dr. Dorten had been entering the American occupied area and making speeches without the permission of the Americans, who since December had declined to allow the holding of political meetings in the occupied zone.

Keep Young while Growing Old

AFTER all, youth is often more a matter of nerves than of years. You see that proven almost every day—this man of thirty, nerves wrecked and old before his time—that man, sixty but bright-eyed, sprightly because he kept his nerves youthful.

It is in this care of the nerves that Sanatogen is of such signal service. For to the hungry nerves, impoverished by over-drafts, illness, worries and neglect, Sanatogen brings just the foods they must have for speedy restoration to health—pure albumen and organic phosphorus in easily taken-up form.

And by thus nourishing the weakened nerve-cells and tissues, Sanatogen helps bring back the ease of digestion, the restful slumber and the vigorous health of youth.

And you—if the enthusiastic letters of thousands of physicians and the grateful praise of people everywhere—if that testimony means anything—you will not long delay giving Sanatogen its opportunity to help you.

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere, in three sizes, from $1.00 up.

MALARIA CONTROL FOUND TO BE EASY

Rockefeller Foundation Reports Success in Operations Carried Out in the South.

MONEY COSTS SOON REPAID

Experiments in Towns and on Plantations Bring Same Results of Improved Health.

Results in controlling malaria in rural districts of the Southern States are recorded in the fourth chapter of the annual report of the Rockefeller Foundation, made public yesterday.

After telling of destroying the breeding places of mosquitoes and screening houses, immunizing the individual with quinine and destroying the parasites in the blood of human carriers the report reviews its initial experiment at Crossett, a lumber town of 2,129 in Ashley County, Arkansas. Climatic conditions and abundant breeding places favored the offending type of mosquitoes, malaria was widely endemic and physicians of the regions estimated that it was the cause of 60 per cent. of all illness.

The program of eradicating breeding places was restricted to such measures as the community itself well might carry out, and was aimed at a reasonably high high degree of control at minimum cost. The first conspicuous result apparent was the practical elimination of the mosquitos as a pest, the report says. The reduction in malaria as shown by a parasite index taken in May and again in December, 1916, was 72.33 per cent. Physicians calls for the year were reduced 70.36 per cent., compared with the previous year. At the end of the year the community took over the work and carried it on for two years. This table shows the results:

PHYSICIANS' CALLS FOR MALARIA.

Population	2,129
1915 calls (company's records)	2,500
1916 calls (company's records)	741
1917 calls (company's records)	200
1918 calls (company's records)	73
Reduction for the three years	97.1%

PER CAPITA COST.

1916 (omitting overhead)	$1.24
1917 (total cost)	.63
1918 (total cost)	.53

Operations then were transferred to the neighboring town of Hamburg, with these results:

PHYSICIANS' CALLS FOR MALARIA.

Population	1,285
1916 calls	2,312
1917 calls	259
1918 calls	59
Reduction 1916-1918	97.4%

PER CAPITA COST.

1917 (omitting overhead)	$1.45
1918 (total upkeep)	.44

There followed experimental control in four Mississippi towns, the achievements being thus summarized:

	Lake Village	Dermott	Monticello	Bauxits
Population	975	2,760	3,023	2,500
Physicians' call for malaria:
1916	1,817	1,399	1,413	862
1918	83	162	137	172
Per cent. reduction, 1917-1917	94.8	87.8	89.8	78.4

"Comparison of cost of operations with results accomplished in these six towns tends to show that malaria control in such communities, considered merely as a business proposition, pays," the report continues. "At two dollars per physicians' call. Crossett has been paying annually more than four and one-half times as much in doctors' bills alone for the privilege of having malaria as it expended in 1918 for the upkeep of the work which kept it practically from malaria and from the mosquito as a pest. Hamburg's annual doctors' bill for malaria had been eight times the cost of protection in 1918. In the four new communities the annual payment for physicians' calls would cover even the relatively heavy cost of first year operations almost one-and-a-half times over. And the doctors' bill is but an insignificant fraction of malaria's total cost to the community."

Turning to a discussion of the work in rural districts where mosquito elimination is not practicable the foundation reports on the first screening experiment on a group of cotton plantations near Lake Village, Ark. The people were taught the importance of maintaining the screens by house to house visits. Most of the population were negroes of average plantation intelligence, yet from the apparent average infection of 11.97 per cent. at the beginning of the work, a parasite index at the end of the year showed a reduction of 70.6 per cent. The average annual per capita cost of screening was found to be $1.75. Similar results were attained on another plantation at a per capita cost of 57 cents.

Setting forth that since all infected mosquitoes have derived their infection from the blood of infected persons, it is possible theoretically to prevent the spread of the infection in a community by destroying the parasites in the blood of the human carrier, the report tells of a two-year field experiment along this line in Bolivar County, Miss. A large number of blood examinations showed that persons who have had clinical attacks may carry the parasites in their blood for months, and demonstrated that the usual physician's treatment does not sterilize the blood.

These tests established the fact that ten grains of quinine a day for eight weeks sterilized the blood of about 90 per cent. of the carriers to whom it was administered.

PLAN STATE MILK INQUIRY.

Committee to Seek Information for Legislative Recommendations.

Beginning this week meetings will be held in New York and other cities of the State to discuss every phase of the milk situation and to prepare recommendations for legislation to be introduced at Albany during the Winter.

Announcement was made yesterday at the Department of Farms and Markets that President William E. Dana of the Farms and Markets Council, with Commissioner Charles S. Wilson of the Division of Agriculture and Commissioner Eugene H. Porter of the Division of Foods and Markets would hold a series of hearing during December in New York and other cities of the State. Seward A. Miller, counsel for the department, will sit with the committee, of which President Dana is Chairman. Information obtained at the hearings, with other data already obtained relating to milk problems, will be made the basis of legisative recommendations by the council.

Tomorrow night in the Aldermanic Chambers a hearing will be held under the auspices of the Community Councils at which experts will take up the problem of reducing the cost of milk. Preliminary to this meeting, tonight at the Women's City Club, delegates from the local councils in each borough will hear a discussion on the subject by P. D. Fox, Neil H. Strome of the State Agriculture Federation, Herschel Jones of the State Council of Farms and Markets, and Dr. Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Public Markets.

Miss Elisabeth Marbury, Chairman of the Milk for Children of America Committee of the Inter-Allied Art Association, has announced a meeting at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel tomorrow evening where Dr. Royal S. Copeland, City Health Commissioner, and Deputy Police Commissioner Julien Stevens Ulman will discuss the "whys and hows" of the milk situation, especially where it affects children.

To Train Women Social Workers.

A course to qualify girls for social work was announced yesterday by the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street. The course will start on Dec. 5 and will be given by Miss Clare Tousley, for six years identified with the organization ,and last year on the staff of Teachers' College of Columbia University. The instruction will be the equivalent of a college semester of work, and will consist of lectures and practical discussions.

CONSUMERS' ORDERS EXCEED PRODUCTION

General Trade Continues to Expand, Even in Coal and Steel Strike Areas.

STOCKS ARE RUNNING OUT

Manufacturers Complain of Scarcity of Labor and Raw Material, Reserve Board Says.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The prevalence of an unabated business activity throughout the country, due to persistent demand for goods at all stages of production, was announced by the Federal Reserve Board tonight in its review of general business and financial conditions during November, based on confidential reports from the reserve banking districts.

"The eagerness and sustained buying capacity of the ultimate consumer," the board asserts, "appear to be the explanation of a continued expansion of wholesale and retail trade, which is to be found even in those districts most immediately affected by the coal and steel strikes. Curtailment of industrial operations because of the coal shortage had been only sporadically enforced up to the middle of the month, but the imminency of drastic action looking toward the conservation of vanishing coal supplies was already apparent at that date, the shortage being especially acute in the Kansas City and St. Louis districts."

According to the canvass made by the Federal Reserve Board there was virtually unanimous testimony as to the increase in the volume of wholesale and retail trade in terms of price measurement, notwithstanding the demoralizing effect on general business that might have been expected to accompany any widespread industrial disturbance in the basic industries of the country.

"The rapid turnover in wholesale and retail trade," the board declares, "is evidently outstripping increases in current production, as evidenced by depleted or exhausted dealers' stocks and by the often repeated complaints of manufacturers who allege scarcity of labor and of raw materials. Widespread disaffection on the part of all classes of workers is asserted to be a further cause of diminished output."

A growing volume of speculation has developed, paralleling the trade activities outlined. In its October review the board pointed out that speculative activity throughout the country was reaching "dangerous levels." The board says that this speculative activity continued unabated until early in November, when the Federal Reserve Banks advanced discount rates.

"The advance," says the board, "was slight, but accompanied as it was by an announced discount policy it was efficacious in causing a reduction in loans.

"The deterrent effect upon speculation of high call loan rates has been somewhat offset by the action of outside banks in increasing their loans on call in the New York market, thereby to a certain extent counterbalancing the results obtained by local contraction. At a time when high call loan rates in the money centres, coincident with the excess of surplus funds in sections where crops have been harvested and local demands are smaller, the transfer of funds to money centres may not only be a serious hindrance to the effective curbing of speculation, but may go forward at a time when other districts are in need of funds for agricultural or commercial purposes.

"The New York market for commercial paper is reported to be dull, with rates latterly on a 5½ per cent. to 5¾ per cent. basis, dealers finding their best market among the interior banks. Bank clearings everywhere have been exceptionally heavy. The board's figures of volume of check transactions continue to show expansion.

"The issue of new securities by domestic corporations during October is reported by District No. 2 (New York) to amount to about $350,000 000, being in excess of the September figures. A very large number of preferred shares were put out. It is surprising, in view of prevailing high interest rates and the uncertainty as to the length of time that may elapse before the investment rate falls, to find preferred shares to a certain extent taking the place of long-time bond issues.

"During the month sterling exchange, francs, marks, and lire fell to new low levels, marks selling at 2.05 cents on Nov. 18; sterling at 3.99½ and francs at 9.80 on Nov. 20. Lire were quoted at 12.60 on Nov. 12. Since then there have been slight recoveries but no improvement in the foreign credit situation to warrant any substantial or permanent rise in quotations."

Reports from the agricultural sections indicated a considerable amount of crop damage due to excessive rains and insect pests, particularly the cotton crop. The acreage in wheat in the Pacific Northwest, it was thought probable, would largely exceed that of 1918 while the corn crop, although damaged by the rain in certain localities, also would exceed that of 1918, according to the estimates.

The grain movement was reported slow and building activity unprecedented for this time of year.

Salvation Army Busy in Coblenz.

The Salvation Army is continuing its war work for the American Army of Occupation, and has recently opened a rendezvous for American soldiers on Schloss Strasse, Coblenz, according to their announcement made yesterday. The Amaroc News, organ of the Army of Occupation, in an account of the festivities connected with the rendezvous's formal opening, said that the building, five stories in height, was formerly a café.

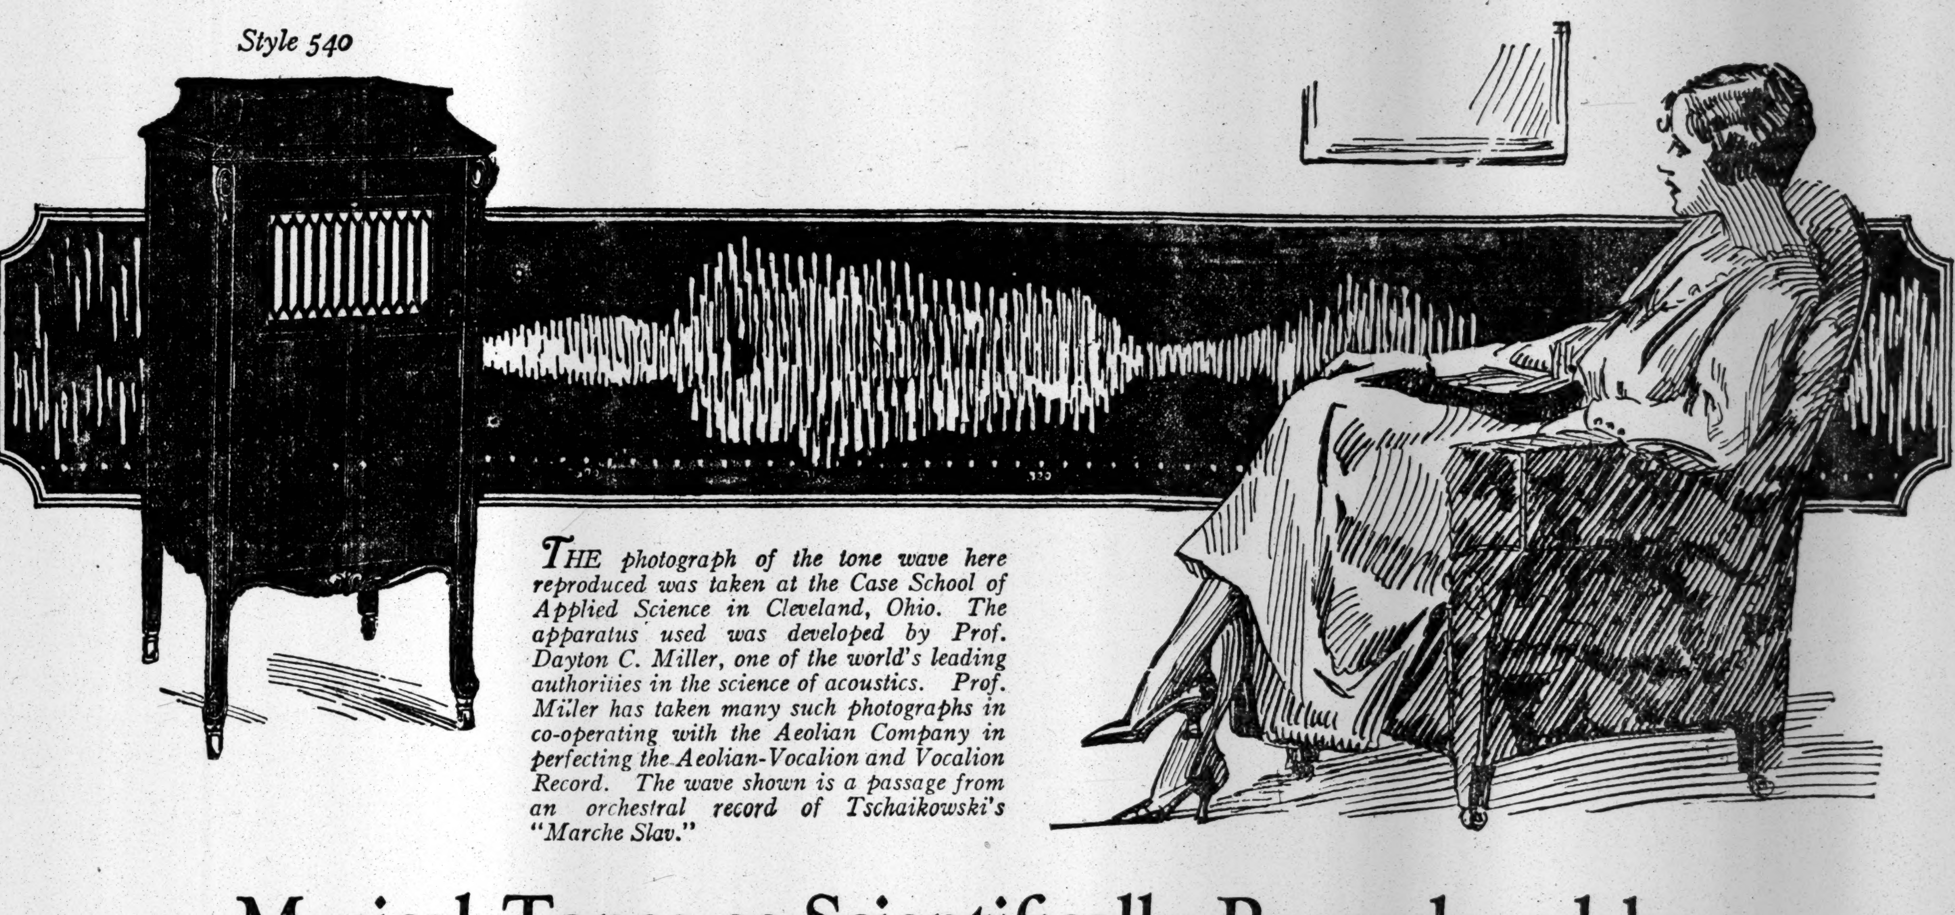
ONE OF THE McK & R HEALTH HELPS



THE photograph of the tone wave here reproduced was taken at the Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, Ohio. The apparatus used was developed by Prof. Dayton C. Miller, one of the world's leading authorities in the science of acoustics. Prof. Miller has taken many such photographs in co-operating with the Aeolian Company in perfecting the Aeolian-Vocalion and Vocalion Record. The wave shown is a passage from an orchestral record of Tschaikowski's "Marche Slav."

Musical Tones as Scientifically Reproduced by

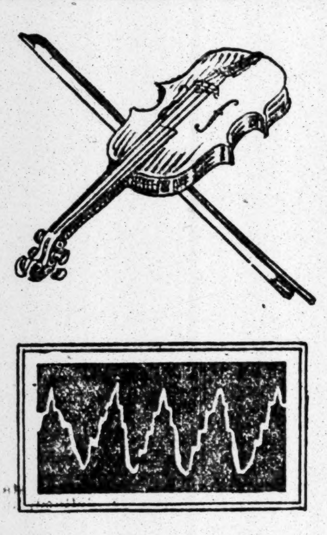
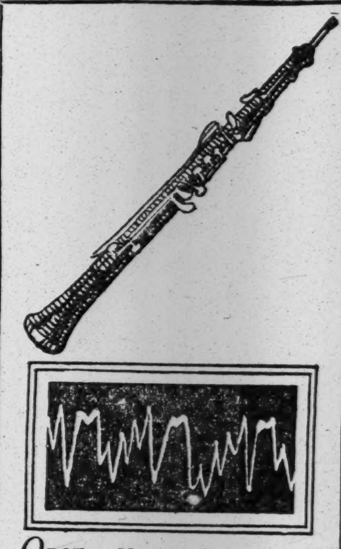
The World's Leading Phonograph



VIOLIN—The tone of the violin has many partial tones. None of these are aggressively dominant, however, hence the fluent, smooth quality of the instrument. This is shown in the photograph of its tone-wave.



OBOE—Here we have a tone-wave which shows unmistakably a tone of very distinct individuality. The pronounced irregularities of the Oboe's tone-wave are caused by the dominance of certain of its partial-tones.

THE purpose of the phonograph is to reproduce musical tones as originally rendered. It is a medium for picturing as vividly as possible the tone colors and peculiarities of different instruments and voices. This is a problem in physics as well as musical art. Musical tones, whatever their source, are simply rhythmic waves in the atmosphere. Each musical instrument, each different human voice, makes its own peculiar wave with definite and individual characteristics, as shown in the photographs reproduced on this page.

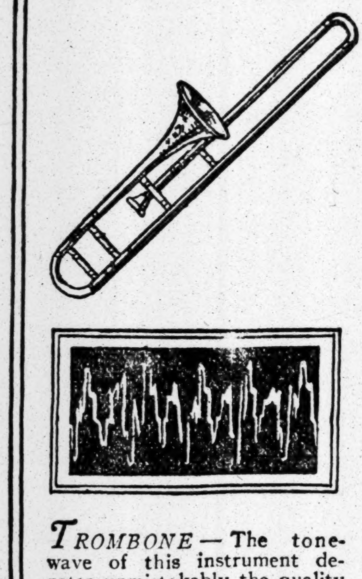
For many years the Aeolian Company has been studying the matter of tone-production from a scientific as well as a musically artistic standpoint. This Company has carried its researches far beyond anything hitherto known in musical instrument manufacture. It commands unique facilities for this work.

And Aeolian instruments show the result.

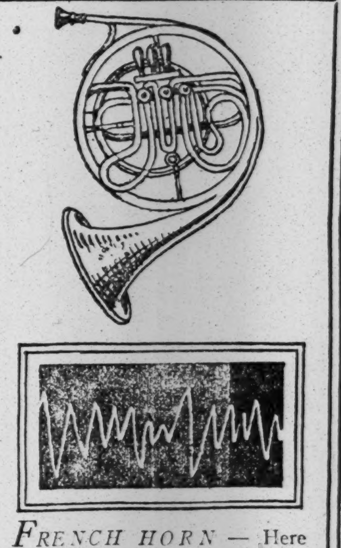
The Aeolian Company's phonograph—the Aeolian-Vocalion, in the matter of tone, is the most perfect phonograph in the world. When a violin record is played upon this wonderful instrument, one hears, not simply music, but a real violin playing.

This is not only true of the violin, but is the case with every instrument and vocal record. The musical tones produced are not only beautiful, they are characteristic. The tones of the flute have the pallid purity that distinguishes this instrument; those of the clarinet are plaintive and mellow, of the trumpet, full, pealing and military; of the trombone, grave and majestic. Human voices sound real and lifelike, with never a question as to whether they are soprano, tenor or baritone, or as to the identity of the singer.

Moreover when an orchestra record is played there is a wholly new sense of fulness and richness, due to the lower fundamental orchestral tones being, for the first time in phonographic reproduction, given their proper emphasis.



TROMBONE—The tone-wave of this instrument denotes unmistakably the quality of its tone. Rich in partial-tones and hence interesting and expressive, it is very characteristic and dominated by a full, pealing note.



FRENCH HORN—Here is another instrument with a smooth, more or less fluent tone, though quite different in quality from that of the violin. From the appearance of its tone-wave, one might almost anticipate its rounded, mellow beauty.

THE GRADUOLA

The wonderful tone-controlling feature that makes the Vocalion the only phonograph that is a truly artistic musical instrument

Artists never play or sing twice with exactly the same feeling. Without actually changing the spirit of their interpretations, they vary them in detail with each performance. This is exactly what anyone can do with the Graduola. Without changing the artist's interpretation (its arbitrary elements, tempo and phrasing, remaining the same) it can be varied in tone-color, thus giving it a freshness, livingness and spontaneity utterly unlike and far more interesting than the performance of any other phonograph.

Other Advantages

Besides its great superiority in tone and the exclusive feature of tone-control it offers, the Vocalion possesses many other advantages. Its new Universal Tone-Arm enables it to play all makes of records and play them at their best.

Its Automatic Stop is the simplest and most effective device of its kind.

And the appearance of both its regular models and beautiful though inexpensive Period Styles sets an entirely new standard for phonographs.

Despite their manifest superiority, the prices of Aeolian-Vocalions compare favorably with those of other phonographs. Easy monthly payments on all models. Some as low as $5 a month

MUSIC.

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Mme. Tetrazzini's Return.

After an absence of several years, Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini has returned to New York, and made her first appearance yesterday afternoon at the Hippodrome. An audience need not fill the Hippodrome to be a large one. Hers was a large one, and, though a considerable number of her listeners were stowed upon the stage, they did not wholly fill other parts of the house. They were primed for enthusiasm, however, and let it loose on all occasions, principally, as was natural, after her singing of the Mad Scene" from "Hamlet" and Benedict's variations on "The Carnival of Venice," the two florid numbers of her program.

This is the kind of music in which she is most at home. She was distinctly not at home in an Italian version of Grieg's charming and simple "Solveig's Song"—a very Italian version, not only of the words but of the music; and only less so in two Italian songs by Mazzones and Cimara, and in an encore that she sang in English.

In the florid airs she renewed the impression she formerly made by the brilliancy of her execution. She is not now and she never was one of the greatest exemplars of that style of singing comparable with the great mistresses of the art the memory of whom is not yet extinct. But it is not too much to say that she is at present the best of those who attempt it: the one who possesses most of the skill, power—the natural aptitude and address that are requisite for success in it.

Mme. Tetrazzini returns with her voice not only not impaired but even in some respects improved during her absence. It seems somewhat more powerful, though the power has been gained to a certain extent at the expense of its quality. It sounded yesterday somewhat harder in its brilliancy. The inferior quality of her lower tones, which on her first appearance here had a singular infantile quality that many will remember, she had succeeded to some extent in bettering before her departure. This quality seems now almost wholly to have disappeared, and the whole range of the voice is more nearly equalized. That she is still not in perfect control of her vocal resonances is shown now and again by the loss of quality, the pinching effect that is to be heard in certain tones and especially upon certain vowels. The upper tones are at their best clear and vibrant; and she still has that unusual command of the "messadi voce," the swelling and diminishing of a note long held, especially of a high note, that is remembered as one of her most admired effects. Her delivery of florid passages, of the various devices of coloratura singing, scales, runs, staccatos, trills, is not wholly flawless nor absolutely certain; it never was; but it has the brilliancy, celerity, the appearance of ease and spontaneity that are enough to make a great effect in a day when such things are scarce. Mme. Tetrazzini is able to impart to such music the entrain and sweep that are its only reason for being. It is a fact that may denote decadence in this particular branch of singing; but Mme. Tetrazzini's present supremacy in it can hardly be questioned.

She was assisted in her concert by Warren Proctor, tenor, who sang "Il Mio Tesoro" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," a serious undertaking, and a group of songs in English; and by Mayo Wadler, violinist, who played two groups of short solos. Mr. Pietro Cimara accompanied her on the piano.

New York Symphony Society.

The New York Symphony Society gave its third Sunday afternoon concert in Aeolian Hall yesterday before a large audience that was especially pleased with the spirited performnce presented by Mozart's Symphony in C. The soloist was Mr. Sascha Jacobsen, who gave an artistic performance of Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," also with spirit and sincerity, a young New York violinist of New York training, one of a number of such who are gaining deserved credit. There was something ebullient in his performance; in one or two passages something a little too much for the perfect finish of his playing. But it was justly much admired and received the applause it merited.

The other orchestral numbers were the prelude to "Lohengrin" and César Franck's symphonic poem, "Le Chausseur Maudit," which was heard here a few weeks ago from the Boston Symphony Orchestra, hardly Franck at his best and most characteristic, but a picturesque depiction of a legend that has engaged the attention of a number of composers.

Philharmonic Society Concert.

The Philharmonic Society gave a second Sunday afternoon concert to an audience that more than filled Carnegie Hall yesterday, when the program brought forward Tschaikowsky's fourth symphony, Debussy's two nocturnes, "Clouds" and "Festivals," and the singing by Margaret Matzenauer of a number of famous songs and airs in new English versions by H. E. Krehbiel, who has also prepared a text of "Parsifal" for the Metropolitan. Before the concert, a man who said he came from the American Legion called at the stage door and inquired if it were true that "a German opera" was to be performed; he was invited to inspect the hall and stage, arranged for an orchestral concert, and soon went away.

Wagner's prelude and finale from "Tristan" have figured on programs since the war, but yesterday, when the music of Isolde's air was reached, both voice and orchestra were heard together, as they have not been for some time. Mr. Krehbiel's translation promised well for the larger experiment already mentioned; his lines had nobility befitting the Wagnerian tragedy, and the choice of English words was at all points admirable for singing.

Mme. Matzenauer also gave English versions of Schubert's "Erl King," two of Schumann's "Bride Songs," and a lyric of Brahms, with texts likewise by Mr. Krehbiel, and accompaniment arranged for orchestra by Mr. Stokowski of Philadelphia.

Destinn and Others Oppear.

The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra concluded its visit here with a third concert last evening, this time at the Hippodrome, where a popular audience heard the 100 men under Conductor Eugene Ysaye, and also greeted the return, after five years' absence, of the Bohemian soprano, Emmy Destinn.

Mme. Destinn, who is to sing in opera next Monday in "Aïda," had selected last night two airs from "La Juive" and "Trovatore," in which her voice showed its remembered warmth, ringing clearness, and power. After Halévy's air she gave as encore the "Vissi d'Arte" from "Tosca," and later the house cheered till she added first one and then another little song, with piano, in her own Czechoslovak tongue. Mr. Ysaye and his orchestra had a lion's share in the long program, with Weber's overture to "Freischuetz," Beethoven's "Ervica" symphony, a "Fantasie Wallonne" by the conductor's brother, the late Theophile Ysaye, and the "Sylvia" ballet suite by Délibes.

The Metropolitan's second popular Sunday night bill drew a large attendance, the added star being Toscha Seidel, who was heard in Mendelssohn's violin concerto and smaller pieces. Claudia Muzio sang an air from Charpentier's "Louise," and Morgan Kingston gave the tenor solo from "Pagliacci" and a Welsh ballad arranged by Kurt Schindler.

Yvette Guilbert gave the first of two recitals at the Maxine Elliott Theatre last evening, assisted by Lenora Sparks of the Metropolitan and Emily Gresser, violin, as well as by a small orchestra under Sam Franko, and by Daniel Maquarre, flute. Mme. Guilbert's pieces included French "dance recitations" and other quaint airs.

Roshanara, the dancer, appeared last night at the Greenwich Village Theatre in a program of East Indian scenes, including the "Punjabi Kite Dance," with two young assistants, Martha Ann and Isabelle Watters; a classic Hindu Nautch, to one of Ratan Devi's melodies, and the Hindu snake dance. There were piano solos by Frederick Cheeswright.

APPRECIATION BY HOWELLS

John Mead Howells, a son of the author of "The Rise of Silas Lapham," after witnessing the dramatization of his father's novel, produced by the Theatre Guild at the Garrick, wrote yesterday to James K. Hackett:

"Although my having to use the mails may prevent my being among the first, it cannot keep me from being the most cordial of the appreciators of your work last night as Silas Lapham. I cannot tell you how much my party were all pleased in the presentation from beginning to end, but your own work we thought without blemish, and I am sure that if my father and sister could have been in our party they would have thought the same."

Mr. Hackett recalled as a coincidence that his father, James H. Hackett, had received a similar letter from Washington Irving after the elder Hackett once played "Rip Van Winkle."

MUSIC NOTES.

John Charles Thomas has received 200 applications for his offer of a year's scholarship in vocal training. He will judge first-comers today in the Hotel Astor ballroom, assisted by Adelin Firmin of Baltimore, and Mana Zucca.

Edwin Franko Goldman has offered a prize of $250 for a new and original piece of band music by an American composer. The work may be an overture, march, or suite, and will be performed in June by the New York Military Band.

The People's Liberty Chorus plans to entertain 10,000 children at its Christmas festival on Dec. 23 in Madison Square Garden. A chorus of 1,000 will sing old English carols and Christmas pieces by Saint-Saens and Sir Arthur Sullivan.

The Police Band, led by Walter B. Rogers, announces its annual concerts in two boroughs, on Thursday next at Prospect Hall, Brooklyn, and on Friday at Hunt's Point Palace, East 163d Street, the Bronx.

The Greenwich House Music Settlement will hold its annual concert at 27 Barrow Street on Wednesday evening, assisted by Aurelio Giorni, pianist; May Mukle, 'cellist, and Helen Kanders, soprano.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The opening of "Three's a Crowd," at the Cort Theatre, will take place on Wednesday night instead of tomorrow.

"Irene," now at the Vanderbilt, will be produced in London by J. L. Sacks and Alfred Blutt, probably at the Gaiety in February.

"Shavings," a dramatization by Marion Short and Pauline Phillips of the novel by Joseph Lincoln, is to be produced by Henry W. Savage.

"Black and White," by James Faller, will have its first performance in Pittsburgh tonight. The play is based upon "Mam' Linda," a novel by Will R. Harben.

Rehearsals of Cleves Kinkead's new play, "The Mood of the Moon," will begin today, under the direction of the Shuberts.

George Grossmith, the English actor manager, who has been here for some weeks, arranging for the production of "Tilly of Piccadilly," and other plays by Al Woods, sailed for Southampton on Saturday by the Cunarder Mauretania, and took the "Little Whopper" with him to produce at one of his theatres in London.

"The Rose of China" is also to have early presentation in London.

SENATOR NEWBERRY'S INDICTMENT.

Intelligent and public-spirited people in Michigan must view with mortification the indictment of Senator Truman H. Newberry by a Federal Grand Jury, for corruption, fraud, and conspiracy in his election over Henry Ford, his Democratic opponent. It was but a short time ago that people in Michigan were congratulating themselves upon the failure of Mr. Ford to become their Senator, because in a libel suit which he had brought against a Chicago newspaper he disqualified himself for the responsibility out of his own mouth, while on the witness stand. It is not necessary to repeat here the evidence of intellectual unfitness that was drawn from him on cross-examination. It was of such a nature that Michigan seemed to have had a lucky escape. There was a feeling that Henry Ford's election would have been a reproach to the State. Now Michigan is in the shadow of something worse, a political scandal that may bring disgrace upon her.

Wisconsin had an experience in 1909 that was not to her liking, when Isaac Stephenson, the "lumber king," spent more than $100,000 in a nomination primary and was chosen Senator by the Legislature on the twenty-third ballot, when the first should have sufficed. It was unpleasant notoriety for Wisconsin, and many of her citizens were never reconciled to Mr. Stephenson's final triumph in the United States Senate by a close vote after a protracted inquiry into the validity of his title. If Wisconsin's cup was full with humiliation, Michigan's in the present case seems sure to brim over, for with Senator Newberry 133 other persons have been indicted in connection with his nomination in the primary and his election at the polls. The baleful promise is that it will be the most celebrated case of the kind ever known in our political annals.

Henry Ford was not suspected of fraudulent expenditures to win the Democratic nomination in the primary, or of violating either the Federal or the State statutes to be elected Senator. It is true that a great many people in Michigan were aghast at the prospect of his success when the nomination came to him without effort, and they realized that a tremendous effort would have to be made to defeat him, so well known was he throughout the State as the architect of his vast fortune and so popular with the labor element as an employer who paid disproportionately high wages, wages far above the market rate. A tremendous effort was made to keep Henry Ford out of the Senate, and it had been admitted that the cost was abnormal long before the indictment of Senator Newberry and 133 others, including men prominent in politics and business in Michigan.

According to the Senator's managers, no less than $176,568 was spent to nominate and elect him, as much as $148,000 for newspaper advertising alone. The Federal laws do not forbid such advertising; the Michigan statute seems to draw the line stringently against it between the primary and Election Day. A study of the Federal and State laws shows that they differ at many points in aiming to banish corrupt practices. Uniformity is a reform that should be effected. This will be one of the lessons of the notorious case.

If it shall prove to be true that Mr. Newberry could not have been elected without the corrupt use of money, the credit of the exposure will belong in large measure, it appears, to Henry Ford, who, nursing a grievance, has spent, it is said, large sums of money to collect evidence. A poor man would have had to rest satisfied with the concern of prosecuting officers and the Senate's scrutiny of Mr. Newberry's credentials. The nomination primary and the popular election of Senators, from this point of view as well as from others upon which it is not necessary to dwell, have been somewhat of a disappointment. Convention nominations and choice by Legislatures were condemned because tainted by vicious control and corruption. Great hopes were built upon direct popular action, but it becomes a question whether those hopes have been realized; whether the new way is better than the old. Certainly the new way does not give the country an intellectual and practical Senate, and it is seen that it lends itself to excessive outlay of money by rich candidates.

THE WAY TO DO IT.

Kansas was never lacking in courage, readiness of resource, and public spirit. Her Governor, Henry J. Allen, took possession of the coal mines in the State on Nov. 17. Since then he has been forming an organization for their operation. To his call for volunteers thousands have responded. The college undergraduates are most numerous among them, but all ranks are represented—workmen, farmers, transportation men, professors, miners, steam-shovel engineers.

Work begins today. By the middle of the week the Governor expects that a daily output of 10,000 tons will be reached. Just as the British people sprang to defend themselves from the paralysis of communication and transportation threatened by the railway strike, so the Kansas people spring to the relief of the State from a similar paralysis threatened by the strike of the bituminous coal miners; and the people of other States dependent upon bituminous coal will show the same willingness to lend a hand. State authorities, Federal authorities have been and will be, no doubt, vigilant, energetic; but it is the cool self-reliance of private men that is most admirable and vital.

CONGRESS MEETS AGAIN.

The regular session of this Congress, which will begin today, will have before it such grave and serious problems that it should, for the welfare of the country, abandon its regular custom of adjourning for "the holidays" and beginning business some time in the middle of January. Congress has been in the habit of meeting the first Monday in December, perfecting a fraction of its organization, listening to a few speeches, transacting some unimportant legislation, and adjourning at the first possible moment for "the holidays." That phrase is an elastic euphemism. Ordinary people think they are spending the holidays if they get a few days to themselves about Christmas or New Year's. So far as the actual business of Congress is concerned, the "holiday" period often stretches over pretty nearly a month, for it adjourns as near Dec. 15 as it can, and even if it meets before Jan. 15 no business of any importance is transacted or even fairly begun.

Whatever may be said for this custom in ordinary times—and we have never been able to see anything to say for it that was not outweighed by the things to be said against it—there is nothing to be said for it now. There is nothing to organize. This Congress is already organized. It organized in the extraordinary session just ended. What is more, there is no preparation needed for the taking up of business, the usual excuse for the "holiday" adjournment. Unfinished business was left over at the adjournment a few days ago, in such shape that it can be taken up again at any moment. The measures that require to be reintroduced are in proper form for reintroduction. The principal committees are not only organized, but are already familiar with the business that is to come before them. There is no reason for a day's delay. As for the holidays themselves, if ordinary men can get along with three or four days of them, so can Congressmen. The adjuration to the people of Europe, "Go to work!" applies to the people of the United States, and to none more than to members of Congress.

The first unfinished business is the reaching of an agreement on the Peace Treaty. A treaty there must be, and a League of Nations most Senators have declared in favor of. It is impossible to put the Treaty through without reservations, but agreement cannot be reached unless the reservations are reasonable and are in their tone and content not obviously hostile to the Treaty itself. It is foolish to think of adopting a Treaty for any purpose and at the same time adopting reservations that kill it. The reservations must be such as do not obviously have for their purpose the nullification of the Treaty itself. Such reservations, we must believe, will ultimately be found acceptable to a sufficient number of Senators who do not actually intend to destroy the Treaty under the pretense of making mere reservations to it.

If the railroads are to be turned back to their private owners by Jan. 1 or any near date, it will not be possible for Congress to take a long recess in December. Certainly this return is generally desired, but no one desires that the roads shall be tossed back into the laps of their former owners in such a way as to insure a failure of management and bankruptcy. The people have borne with as much patience as is needed the deterioration in the old standards of management and conduct, and will not view with pleasure any action tending to bring about even worse conditions. Such an outcome is inevitable unless Congress immediately buckles down to the consideration of what should be done in order to preserve, or rather restore, the interests which the public have in the railroads.

The Army bill cries out for early consideration. With the war ended a year, we do not know so much about what kind of army we are to have as Germany does about hers. Enormous demands are made upon the taxpayer for the maintenance of a military establishment, and yet Congress has not yet informed him to his satisfaction how the money is to be spent or what his army is to be like.

The great appropriation bills never get under way very early, and when they do they shoulder all other legislation out of the way, except such as can slip in through the cracks. Important business of other kinds should be advanced as far as possible before these measures begin to block the way. Unless this Congress wishes to vie with the bad record of its predecessor, it should have all the appropriation bills out of the calendar long before the beginning of the fiscal year, so that they can be considered fully and not hastily.

ITALIAN SOCIALISTS.

The directors of the Italian Socialist Party have passed a resolution asserting that the Socialist victory at the general elections "is an act of complete solidarity with the Soviet Republic of Russia, clearly expressing to the Italian Government an order to recognize immediately the Soviet Republic of Russia." To live and die for and with that so ironically named "republic" seems to be the most fervent aspiration in the Socialist breast. The realization of the Maximalist election program of the party is called for by the directors.

It remains to be seen whether many Socialist Deputies will take the advice of the directorate and go to the opening session of Parliament for the purpose of making an anti-monarchical manifestation, and how many will follow the etiquette of their party and stay away from the opening as a testimony against conservatives and the Constitution, royalty, order, the present frame of things so to be changed by the wisdom of Socialism. It is possible to suspect that the Italian Socialists are much less uncompromising and violent than they talk. The revival of economic, industrial, and financial progress is as necessary as the yearning of the Italian Socialist for the Soviet is mad. A certain union for the benefit of all might be hoped for were the Socialists less doctrinaire and dogmatic.

Meanwhile, the eagerness of some of the monarchical societies to rally the people about the King is patriotic, but may be superfluous. Everybody knows the historic place of the House of Savoy as the leader of Italian unity. Garibaldi, a republican by preference, saw that Piedmont and the House of Savoy were indispensable to the triumph of that unity. Of that united Italy the royal house is the sign. There has been no multitude of republicans in Italy. Universal suffrage has made complete the democratization of the Italian polity. If there were to be a republic, democratic, representative, though not more so than the democratic monarchy, the present King would be elected the first President. The admirers of the Soviet hate a real honest republic as much as they hate an honest democratic monarchy. An oligarchic autocracy, despotic rule by a minority, is their idea of the best form of government.

FEDERAL BUDGET REFORM.

The present method of providing funds for support of the Government is so bad that there was ample excuse for the general approval of the passage by the House of a bill proposing reform under the direction of the President. The vote in the House, 283 to 3, was so overwhelming that the Senate's concurrence seemed assured, but now it seems that the Senate prefers another way, for reasons which Senator McCormick sets out in The Annalist. It is true that any amendment of the present method must be better than none, but it does not follow that therefore there should be excess of haste to accept the first proposal. Any change made now is likely to stand for a long time, and a little delay is preferable to acceptance of anything short of the best amendment that can be had.

The House proposal came from outside sources of theoretical authority, but of little experience in public affairs. The Senate proposal cannot be called academic, for it has the approval of Secretary Glass, and comes from the Senator who provided Illinois with its budget. The difference between the two bills is that the draftsmen of the House bill shrank from putting the powers over the budget in the Treasury. The Senate bill prefers enlarging the powers of the Treasury to overburdening the Executive with duties less germane to its proper functions than to the Treasury's. The House bill implied, although it did not intend, a slur upon the Treasury in taking from it duties which already are in its charge and well performed. A budget is not necessary because of any shortcoming on the part of the Treasury, but because of defects in the methods of Congress.

All measures of budget reform propose retracing in some degree the distribution of the appropriation bills among twenty-eight committees instead of one. That was done in 1885 for personal and political reasons, which long ago were outgrown with the disappearance from public life of the actors in that incident. There is so little novelty in the present measures that they merely propose to restore to the Treasury what it had in the time of its most illustrious Secretary, Hamilton. There is no opposition to some sort of budget reform, and it is desirable that there should be agreement upon the best method.

Even that may come with better understanding of the Senate bill. It does not create a Czar of finance in the Treasury, but merely gives the Secretary powers similar to those now exercised and which cannot be taken away. These budget powers are to be exercised in co-operation with the President and the Cabinet. Thus it consolidates powers which the House bill divides and distributes, the very fault which it is desirable to cure in the present method of Congress. The Senate bill provides that the Treasury shall propose methods for proportioning Government income to expenses, thus uniting the halves of a duty now separate. As the budget is required to have the sanction of the President and the Cabinet, it becomes a party proposal; and the budget as prepared will include both routine expenses and such measures of policy as have had the support of the voters at the election. It is made the duty of the whole Executive to make this proposal, but its disposal is left to Congress, from which, in fact, it cannot be taken, and where it should be left. In proportion that the proposal is excellent it will be difficult for Congress to err in its amendment, which is made a conspicuous procedure.

Perhaps out of the rivalry between the houses there may emerge a bill better than that of either. Senator McCormick himself mentions one omission—the provision of better methods of audit. He thinks that there is need of codification of the twoscore statutes which now cover the matter, and of close relations between the Auditor with increased powers and committees of Congress on the subject. Also the House should adopt ordinances of self-denial in the way of difficulties of obstructing or deforming the budget when prepared symmetrically. Senator McCormick's contribution in the form of his bill, together with his support of it, is made interesting by his treatment, and should have influence on the result.

A "WEAK" GERMAN PEACE.

Among the bits of information brought out by the German Parliamentary inquiry into the responsibility for the war are the terms which Germany would have been willing to offer the world in the Winter of 1916-17, just before the Russian revolution, the intensified submarine campaign, and the American declaration of war. Bethmann Hollweg and others have told us that the German peace offer of Dec. 12, 1916—an offer in which no terms were mentioned and which gave offense by its tone no less than by the suspicion aroused by this vagueness—was hurried up to head off mediation by President Wilson. It evoked an allied statement of war aims which covered a program very much the same as that which was finally put into effect by the treaties of Versailles and St. Germain.

The German terms, never given to the Allies, were handed by Count von Bernstorff, so that gentleman now tells us, to Colonel House on Jan. 30, 1917—one day before the announcement of the submarine war—"for the private information of the President." And they were formidable terms. Germany was to keep Alsace-Lorraine; occupied French territory was to be restored, but there were to be "strategical and economic frontier rectifications." Economic rectification undoubtedly meant annexation of the Briey mines to Germany; strategic annexations might mean anything up to Verdun and Belfort. Belgium was to be evacuated, "with definite guarantees for the security of Germany, which would be laid down in negotiations with the Belgian Government"—again a phrase which might cover anything up to a German naval base in Flanders. The eastern frontier must "protect Germany and Poland strategically and economically from Russia." The Germans and Austrians had just proclaimed the independence of Russian Poland; whether Austria or Germany should dominate the new satrapy was still in dispute, but it would have belonged to the German bloc.

There must be, furthermore, a colonial agreement which would insure to Germany "colonial possessions commensurate with its population and the importance of its economic interests," which means extensive German annexations, probably in Africa. The freedom of the seas was to be guaranteed—how, was not explained, but most plausibly by the surrender of the British Navy—and there must be no commercial discrimination, but on the contrary "proper commercial treaties." The treaty which Germany forced on France in 1871 would doubtless have served as a model. Above all this there was to be "indemnification of the German enterprises and private persons damaged by the war," and a special French indemnity by way of ransom of the occupied provinces.

Here is the sketch of a German victory such as must have satisfied almost any German—a victory which would have left Germany mistress of at least two continents and reimbursed for much of the cost of the war. One might suppose that the Germans did not mention these terms because they knew that the Allies would reject them without discussion; at the time, it will be recalled, there was general distrust of the German proposal for a "blind" peace conference, at which all sorts of secret bargains could be made while undermining propaganda went on outside. But this is not Bethmann Hollweg's reason for the suppression of the terms. Germany could not make them public, after the statement of the allied terms, "for fear of being considered weak." So attempts to get this "weak" peace by negotiation were abandoned, and the submarines were let loose to win a "strong" peace. It serves to remind us, now that we are bedeviled by sentimental sympathy for "fallen" Germany, what a German victory would have meant.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

She Is Not Viewed Politically.

There is significance, and perhaps a little of the ominous, in the fact that though Lady Astor carried on her campaign for a seat in the House of Commons distinctly and avowedly as a party candidate, and one who, if elected, would work and vote with a party, the London papers, in their comments on her victory, have not been divided by their party affiliations into the glad and the sorrowful. In other words, they all congratulate her on her success, and express pleased interest in her attainment of a place never before occupied by a representative of her sex.

This unanimity makes evident that the several editors see in her election the triumph of a woman, not of a Unionist, and it is as a woman that they discuss her, what she is going to do, and what she is going to wear. Whether or not she, like other members of the House, will take off her hat when she addresses the Speaker receives much consideration in exactly the tone to be expected in treating such a subject, but nobody seems to view her as adding strength either to his political friends or his political enemies.

It is all done very courteously, but it ought not to be exactly satisfactory to Lady Astor, or to the woman suffrage leaders anywhere, that this election is not regarded as are other elections—as affecting the balance of political power. What the suffragists want or ought to want—and who would be bold enough to see any difference between those two phrases?—is perfect equality. That implies, of course, an equality of criticism and antagonism as well as of commendation and support in the field of politics. It is not really a compliment to Lady Astor, therefore, that Liberals and Unionists alike welcome her as a member of Parliament. It more than hints the absence of apprehension on the one side and of expectation on the other as to what her presence in the House of Commons will bring to pass.

She Asked No Odds of Anybody.

For the fact that Lady Astor is treated by the political writers merely, or chiefly, as a woman in a position whence women hitherto have been excluded is not her fault. In the course of her campaigning she occasionally did refer, indeed, to herself as a woman candidate, and claim that Parliament would be the better for having women in it. Moreover, on some of the drier and more complicated subjects of Parliamentary controversy she confessed to lacking knowledge commensurate with their importance, and a consequent absence of settled opinion. But in none of her speeches, as reported, did she appeal for votes on the ground of sex, nor did she demand, or seemingly expect, from the rival candidates that they treat her otherwise than a rival candidate herself.

And that is the way they did treat her, apparently, for her plurality over her one real competitor, though large, was by no means overwhelming.

None of the London papers has taken the trouble to find out just why Plymouth chose Lady Astor to represent it. Some of them suggest that it was because of her many benefactions—because she has been a Lady Bountiful of a new and more practically helpful type—and that a decrease of her interest in the city's needs was feared as a result of thwarting her ambition. But that theory is too cynical for acceptance. It is altogether too simple to be plausible. Perhaps we would have the key to the little mystery if we knew more about the other candidates.

Four Days Enough for Them.

It is not surprising that the Reds interned on Ellis Island, after vowing that they would die of hunger if a wire screen to which they objected were not removed, found four days of starvation as much as they could stand and on the fifth day called for something to eat—and ate.

One reason for expecting this to be the end of their strike was that they were not the stuff out of which either heroes or martyrs are made. A second reason was that the grievance against which they protested—their immediate "cause"—was a petty one and to their own knowledge unreasonable. But more decisive than either of these two arguments for surrender before undergoing any severe suffering was a third—the discovery that nobody outside of their own little group had shown the slightest anxiety as to the result of this particular hunger strike.

Indeed, everybody, with the same slight exception, was prepared to hear with perfect equanimity for any number of days that the Reds were still resolute in refusing their rations, and everybody more than easily would have controlled his grief had the rebels carried out their plan to a desperate end.

The island authorities, knowing the state of public sentiment, awaited the result without apprehensions of being called murderers. They felt under no obligation to resort to forcible feeding, which is almost as painful to the feeders as to the fed, and that, too, had a most depressing effect on these strikers.

There is no satisfaction at all in voluntary starvation when it meets with general approval and loud cries of "Keep it up! keep it up!" Then, the only way to get even is not to keep it up, and the wild islanders didn't. They gave it up instead.

Volunteers Must Be Careful.

Coal mining is an industry ill fitted to be carried on by inexperienced workers, and especially is this true when the coal to be mined is bituminous, which gives off gases that are extremely dangerous in confined spaces. Any extensive use of "volunteers" for this sort of mining is, therefore, something to be contemplated with disquietude, and would be justified only in an emergency as nearly desperate as will be that of the whole country if its scanty stock of fuel is not replenished at once.

Fortunately most of the Kansas mines, where the volunteers are first to be tried in large numbers, are of the open or "strip" variety, and can be worked by anybody with little or no danger, either of explosions or of collapses. The actual mining of coal is a trade not difficult of acquisition by the sort of men who are now coming to the public's rescue and defense.

ARTICLE X. AND POINT XIV.

This Country Morally Bound to Accept "Heart of the Treaty."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The reservations to the treaty of Versailles adopted by the majority of the Senate have been the subject of widespread discussion, but apparently one point has been entirely ignored. As this point involves the honor of the American people, the writer ventures to bring it to your attention.

Much might profitably be written about other phases of the question, but here the purpose is to concentrate on one point only. Article X. of the covenant provides that "the members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League." The reservation adopted by the majority of the Senate, whatever way its delphic meaning be construed, emasculates this article of the covenant to the verge of extinction.

As is well known, Article X. of the covenant is of American origin, and constitutes the kernel of the projected new world order. In the opinion of the writer, it is not sufficiently realized to what extent this policy is already binding in a moral sense upon the American people. In the negotiations that led to the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, it was agreed that the future peace should be concluded on the basis of President Wilson's address to Congress of Jan. 8, 1918, and the principles subsequently enunciated by him. The last of the Fourteen Points provides that "a general association of nations must be formed under specific covenants for the purpose of affording mutual guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small States alike." This is virtually identical with Article X. of the treaty except that the guarantee stipulated here is a more definite obligation than is the mere undertaking to respect and preserve as against external aggression of the covenant.

It is well known that there was considerable opposition on the part of the Governments associated with the United States to accepting the Fourteen Points as the basis of the peace, and in securing their acceptance America incurred both toward them and toward the enemy Governments an unquestionable obligation to carry into effect the Fourteenth Point. As soon as this point was by definite agreement accepted as one of the bases of the peace, Article X. of the covenant, or one with a more definite guarantee, became morally binding upon the United States. Any attempt to evade this obligation after it had served its purpose in securing the cessation of hostilities and in determining the fundamental terms of the settlement will inevitably lay the United States open to the charge of bad faith.

It cannot be maintained that President Wilson was exceeding the powers conferred upon him by the Constitution when this obligation was incurred. The principles that he advocated as the basis of the settlement were, in general, enthusiastically acclaimed by the American people. When he announced them to the preceding Congress there was manifest no opposition and no hostile action was attempted. No candid student of affairs can contend that the Fourteenth Point played a part in the elections which brought into being the present Congress. The Senate has undoubtedly the legal right to disavow this obligation, despite the fact that it was incurred in the normal course of international relations with the acquiescence of the American people and Congress, but it can do so only at the cost of national honor.

HISTORICUS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article under the above heading quotes General March as saying that gas on the front in France was, after all, a humane weapon of war.

The use of gas was damnable and diabolical.

In April, 1915, at the second battle of Ypres, where the Germans used it for the first time, the British and French forces were literally murdered. They were without any protection whatsoever. You say that against the Sudanese or any wild people it would have to be regarded as cruel and abhorrent. The Turcos, poor patriotic French colonial native troops of North Africa, were in this battle and many died, groaning and choking, for liberty—cursing civilization.

In 1918 all armies were using gas and possessed excellent counterprotection; but no one but a Hun would have used it in 1915.

"ONE OF THE OLD CONTEMPTIBLES."

Newark, N. J., Nov. 27, 1919.

FAR BE IT FROM ME!

Far be it from me to discourage the man
Who wears whiskers and hair too long
From thinking that he can improve nature's plan
And that nothing he does can be wrong!

It would not occur to a cell in my brain
To discourse on the truth or on lies
With any fanatic from Texas to Maine
Who had a wild light in his eyes.

Far be it from me to attempt to deny
That the moon is made out of green cheese!
I'm perfectly willing that others should try,
But I'll let folks think what they please.

There is not a folly so great but some brain
Is fitted, and glad, to believe it,
But why should one bother to preach or explain,
When intellects fail to receive it?

The fool will be deaf till your teachings are through,
Then he'll offer disdain or abuse,
While the man who will listen is wiser than you,
So I ask you, my friend, what's the use?

Far be it from me to enlighten the race,
However depraved it may be,
For nothing more jars on my own spirit's grace
Than to have some one preaching to me!

LURANA SHELDON.

TAFT PLEADS FOR CHURCH.

Former President Indorses Episcopalian Campaign for Membership.

Coincident with the launching of "Intensive Week" yesterday in the Every Name Campaign of the Episcopal Church—designed to mobilize all resources of that denomination in behalf of religious reconstruction—the local committee issued a letter from ex-President William Howard Taft. He wrote as follows:

"The reaction from the war to material things has been natural but discouraging. The hopes of many were raised by the many evidences individuals gave of being roused to a love of mankind, a sense of responsibility to society for one's brother, and a quickening of the religious spirit. The reaction has been natural, but he would be a pessimist, indeed, who concluded that the lessons of the war and the spirit engendered by it did not furnish an opportunity for the church and a foundation upon which to build. For that reason, I welcome in every church the effort to extend its influence to bring within its organization the indifferent and the inert laity and all associated with them and to stir them to a consciousness of the good they can do, and therefore the good they ought to do. I wish for the campaign every success."

A pageant, "The Builders of the City of God," was given at Calvary, St. James's and a score of other churches.

In addition, prominent laymen occupied the pulpit in many churches, explaining the purpose of the Every Name campaign. Among the speakers were James W. Gerard, Judge Alton B. Parker, George Zabriskie, Supreme Court Justices Vernon M. Davis and Edward H. Finch, R. Fulton Cutting, Charles E. Hughes, Jr., William Fellowes Morgan, Stephen F. Bayne, Justice Frederick Kernochan and Prof. C. D. Briggs.

SEEK SUPPORT OF WOMEN.

Reconstruction Commission Plan to be Outlined at Luncheon.

Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Secretary of the State Reconstruction Commission appointed by Governor Alfred E. Smith, will be hostess to a group of women prominent in club and political circles at the Woman's City Club today to enlist the interest of women voters in the reorganization of the State Government as planned by the commission.

"Women should be vitally interested in a program which calls for improvement in the administration of State government along lines of efficiency, and for retrenchment along all lines," Mrs. Moskowitz said yesterday. "All the important men's organizations have appointed committees to lend aid and give their views on the commission's plan, but not a single women's committee has come forward, although their suggestions and ideas are of extreme value.

"The luncheon will be the first step toward organizing such women's committees. These will be nonpartisan and will have no other object than the betterment of the State and its people through the perfection and carrying out of the Reconstruction Commission's program."

Mrs. Moskowitz said the program called for the consolidation of 187 boards and commissions into twenty great departments, vesting the power of appointment and removal, as far as possible, in the Governor. It also called for the creation of a consolidated State budget system, with accounting control over spending officers.

Among the women at the luncheon will be Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Miss Mary Garrett Hay and Mrs. James Lee Laidlaw, representing the State League of Women Voters; Mrs. John Blair and Mrs. John Russell, representing the Women's City Club; Mrs. Travis Whitney and Mrs. F. H. Hodgson of the Women's Municipal League; Mrs. V. G. Simkhovitch of the United Neighborhood Houses, and Mrs. Irving Lehman of the Council of Jewish Women.

RECALL OF TEUTON MISSION.

German Trade Delegates Ordered Home After Boarding Steamer.

The officers of the Swedish-American liner Stockholm, which arrived yesterday from Gothenburg with 900 passengers, said that the German delegates to the International Trade Conference held recently in Washington boarded the ship at the Swedish port with the other travelers arriving by train, but did not sail, as they were ordered back to Berlin by telegram from their Government.

The names of the German delegates, according to the passenger list of the Stockholm, were as follows: Theodor Brauer, editor; Anton Erkelenz, member of the Reichstag; Professor Ernst Franke, State Secretary Peter Grassmann, Gertrude Hanna, Herman Leymann, Carl Lewinski, Professor Alfred Manes, State Secretary August Muller, Dr. Friedrich Tanzler, Minister Rudolph Wissell, and Commercial Secretary Hans Vogel.

Several Swedish diplomats were on the ship, including Olaf Lamm, newly appointed Consul General to New York, and Allan Holm, attaché to the Legation at Havana, who said he had seen several thousand tons of sugar in France which had been turned over by the United States Government to France.

John Hamilton Prince, attaché to the United States Legation at Stockholm, arrived on his way to see his wife, who is ill at Spartanburg, S. C.

On account of the longshoremen's strike when she was here on her last voyage the cargo of the Stockholm was not unloaded, and Captain Hokensen brought it back again yesterday.

VOTE TO AID "YESHIVOH."

Orthodox Jewish Union Indorses the Rabbi Elchanan Seminary.

The convention of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, at the Young Women's Hebrew Association yesterday afternoon, was taken up with a heated discussion on the advisability of the orthodox congregations' indorsing and financially aiding the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Seminary, at 9 Montgomery Street, which is known as the "yeshivoh."

Rabbi Moses Hyamson, former chief rabbi of England, said he did not believe that the "yeshivoh" needed the financial aid of the union because its annual income was nearly $100,000, and the indorsement of it morally would be a "slap in the face and an insult" to the other institutions of higher learning.

The reason that Rabbi Herbert Goldstein gave for favoring the "yeshivoh" was that some of the graduates of the Jewish Theological Seminary had taken pulpits in conservative and reformed congregations and that the institution itself, therefore, should not have any place in the minds of the orthodox delegates present. This view was taken by many of the others, and finally the resolution was adopted.

A dinner was held last night at which a campaign for $1,000,000 for the needs of the union was launched. The speakers were Harry Fishel, Dr. Herbert Goldstein, Albert Lucas, Morris Engleman, Marion M. Travis, and Charles H. Shapiro, the Chairman.

CORNELL INVOKES TAX LAW.

Shows How Rich May Give and Save from Income Levy.

The deduction privilege of the Federal income law was invoked yesterday in behalf of Cornell's $10,000,000 endowment drive, in an announcement issued by the New York Campaign Committee. Under the law, it is pointed out, a man with an income of $1,000,000 can give the fund $125,000 at an actual cost to the donor of only $42,000.

The law permits an individual to deduct from his taxable income the aggregate amount of his gifts for educational purposes up to 15 per cent. of his income.

SAYS VOTERS ONLY SHOULD RAISE FARES

ANXIOUS FOR A SETTLEMENT

Asks What Constructive Action Receivers Have Taken in the Interest of the People.

Answering the recent criticism of Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the B. R. T., regarding his attitude toward increased fares on the traction lines of the city, Mayor Hylan in a statement declared yesterday that one million men and women voters in New York alone have the right to order that the five-cent fare contracts between the traction companies and the city shall be broken. The Mayor said that speaking for himself he did not feel that he had the moral right to "be generous" and break the five-cent fare contracts "unless and until the whole people of New York shall instruct me as their agent to do so." This is the Mayor's statement in part:

"My attention has been called to the recent public statement of Receiver Garrison concerning the unsettled condition of the local traction situation, and I can quite well understand his state of mind as a receiver and a trustee.

"As Mayor of New York, I, too, am extremely anxious for a settlement of the increased-fare question, which must be considered in all of its aspects before any intelligent understanding of it can possibly be reached.

"In September, 1918, the Interborough officers and J. P. Morgan & Co. offered for sale to the public $33,000,000 of 'short-term notes' of the Interborough and published a glowing and flattering statement of the Interborough's assets and earning capacity. On the face of this statement in writing, the public bought these 'short-term notes.' Shortly after selling the notes the Interborough began to agitate for an eight-cent fare, complaining that it could not earn enough on a five-cent fare.

"The people reached the conclusion that both statements could not be true, that either the statement in writing upon the face of which J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Interborough sold $33,000,000 worth of 'short-term notes' was true, or the contention of the Interborough that it was growing poor on a five-cent fare was untrue.

"Whenever I read some of the higher-fare propaganda in the newspapers I can realize that many of my fellow-citizens have formed a wrong impression about me and are not familiar with all the facts. The mistake is not at all uncommon these days of assuming that I have set myself up as an unreasoning, unreasonable, official despot who is trying to destroy the traction service of the city or, what would be more indefensible, that I am conniving to have the city confiscate the traction properties and ruin the holders of traction securities in a cold-blooded attempt to play municipal ownership politics.

"Yet, if those who feel that way will stop for a moment and fairly review the situation they must come to understand that my duty as Mayor is as plain as my personal position is difficult.

"The Mayor of New York is the trustee for the rights of its six million inhabitants who have a certain contract with the traction interests. The traction interests made this contract gladly as a desirable business transaction whereby in exchange for certain exclusive privileges the people of New York were to be carried for a five-cent fare. When these contracts were signed they looked so good to the financiers that they would not sell them except for millions of profit. Some of them cashed in, some of them held for more, some of them builded great speculative pyramids on those contracts that made them the exclusive owners of the traction service of New York. Then the people of New York could not have gotten a release from these five-cent-fare contracts at any price.

"Then came the war and other things not calculated or miscalculated, to some extent reducing the profit on the five-cent-fare contract. Then followed the plea to the Board of Estimate, the trustee for the public, 'Be generous to the traction companies, they are losing money!'

"Speaking for myself I do not feel that I have the moral right to 'be generous' and break the five-cent fare contracts unless and until the whole people of New York shall instruct me as their agent to do so. I feel that if I agreed to a higher fare without their definite mandate I would be a faithless steward, untrue to my conscience, and false to my only master, the people of the City of New York. There are one million men and women voters in New York who alone have the right to order that the five-cent fare contracts shall be broken.

"The demands of paid agents and accelerators or even of a few thousands of unselfish advocates of higher fares make no convincing sound in my ears.

"It is difficult to withstand the clamor and to resist the pleadings of men and women when they say, 'everything else has gone up, why not let the traction companies charge a little more; they have to pay more for materials and labor.' It is difficult to argue against that, but I am the servant of all the people, and I must take my commands from them alone. I repeat, the million men and women voters of New York, or a majority of them, alone have the right to order their trustees to break the five-cent fare contracts.

"What suggestions or recommendations have been made by Receivers Garrison or Hedges in the interest of the people of the City of New York? I have failed to hear any expression on their part leading to any policy of retrenchment in the interest of the public."

608,574 AT FREE LECTURES.

Bureau Co-operated with Many Organizations in Last Season.

More than 600,000 people attended the Board of Education's free lectures during the last season, according to the annual report submitted to the Board of Education by Acting Director Wendell M. Thomas. The actual attendance was 608,574, or an average of 167 per lecture. These figures do not include the lectures given in co-operation with the College of the City of New York and with various health bodies.

Some of the organizations with which the Lecture Bureau co-operated, as indicated in the report, were the Community Council of National Defense, the Jewish Welfare Board, the Y. M. C. A., the Boy Scouts of America, the Government loan organization, the New York State Women's Land Army, and the evening schools.

Residents Plan Publicity Campaign to Show Americanism.

A committee of east side business men and women and social workers was organized yesterday in the office of the Bank of the United States, in Delancey Street, to plan a "boost the east side" campaign. The aims of the drive are expected to bring results, by means of publicity, far beyond the boundaries of New York City.

The campaign idea is the result of a growing feeling among east side residents that their section should not be allowed to rest in the public mind as the home of Bolshevism. Joseph S. Marcus, President of the Bank of the United States, was elected Committee Chairman, and Harry Schlacht secretary. Regarding the movement, Mr. Marcus said:

"The time has come for us to see to it that the public gets at the truth about the east side. It is not right that we should be judged, or our locality judged, by the efforts of a minority or a vociferous few who do not represent east side sentiment at all."

OPEN RED CROSS CHRISTMAS DRIVE

CITY ASKED FOR $650,000

Ex-Secretary Shaw, Senator Wadsworth, and Others Speak at Metropolitan Opera House.

The New York City Red Cross Christmas Seal Campaign was opened at a mass meeting yesterday afternoon at the Metropolitan Opera House, where addresses were made by Leslie M. Shaw, ex-Secretary of the Treasury; Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Abram I. Elkus, Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals; Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, State Health Commissioner; Dr. James Alexander Miller, George Gordon Battle, and David A. Lyman.

Mr. Battle, the Chairman, announced that the receipts from the Christmas Seal Campaign would go toward financing the Red Cross work against tuberculosis. The sum of $6,500,000 will be sought in the United States by the sale of seals. The quota of New York City is $650,000. He spoke of the great increase in tuberculosis as one result of the war, and said it was fitting that as the nation was getting back to a peace footing this scourge should be fought.

Dr. Miller, an authority on tuberculosis, explained the nature of the fight against it. Remarkable results have been obtained in the field of prevention, he said, by taking children predisposed to the disease and placing them in institutions like the Preventorium, near Lakewood, N. J., where they have an opportunity to lead healthy lives. He called several children between 4 and 14 years old on to the stage, and said that they had spent from three to six months at the Preventorium. The children appeared in excellent health.

Another phase of prevention work, he said, consisted in taking children early in life from mothers who had the disease before the children were infected. He illustrated the effectiveness of this work by calling on John Columbia to stand. John was a little apple-cheeked boy of three, whose antics as he tumbled over the stage drew the eyes of the audience. Children like John, said Dr. Miller, were kept at the Farmingdale sanitarium for a year at a time.

Dr. Miller called on a group of men and women who had been treated for tuberculosis to stand. One of them, Mrs. A. Crowninshield, 85 years old, had had tuberculosis seventy years, but had been cured.

Mr. Shaw said the work of the Red Cross was fraternal rather than charitable. He said if the Government were to do all the things that have been suggested to be done, including feeding the people, clothing them, giving them unemployment and old age pensions, there would not be much left in man to develop. He asserted that the Government should furnish opportunity for the citizen to take care of himself.

"We have wellnigh become a nation of idolators," he said, "and the object of our idolatry is the worship of the statute law." In the last ten years Congress has passed 60,000 laws, he added. Even in a republic, with a democratic form of government, economic, natural, and social laws could not be controlled, he said.

Governor Alfred E. Smith sent this message:

"I am sure I would like to do my part in the battle against tuberculosis. I would like to do it, both as a plain citizen and as Governor of the State. The meeting today I fully expected to attend, but illness in my home prevented. I can only repeat what I said when I accepted the Chairmanship of the New York Christmas Seal Campaign. We must educate the people to realize the menace of tuberculosis. They must be made to know that it is curable and preventable."

Senator Wadsworth described revelations made by the physical examination of men in the draft that nearly half of the young men of the country suffered from some physical defect. Referring to his position as a member of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, he said he hoped the United States would soon have a military policy, "for it never had one."

"How would a little physical training applied to the youth of this country help in this problem?" he asked. "Even if I were convinced there never would be another war, I would favor military training for the effect it would have on the young men of the country. When you make men stronger physically you make for a happier nation."

Justice Elkus said he believed in the physical training of youth, and, "if it needs a military policy to do that, let us have it." But he thought the country did have a military policy, and referred to the deeds of American soldiers abroad as nothing less than the result of that policy.

Bazaar for Little Mothers.

Fifteen hundred young women and matrons are to take part in the Patriotic Festival and Bazaar to be held for the benefit of the Little Mothers Aid Association on Saturday at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson has sent a gift for the children's table. The four home making circles of the association care all the year round for the children of working mothers.

LOUIS R. SOUTHWORTH DIES.

Last Story by Former Ship News Reporter Was Lusitania Sailing.

Louis R. Southworth, for twenty-five years on the staff of The New York World, died Saturday night of a complication of diseases at his home in South Woodstock, Conn. He was 63 years old.

Mr. Southworth was born in the old Benedict Arnold Inn, where he died, and was the son of a clergyman, descended from an old New England family. After graduating from Brown University he joined the staff of a New Haven newspaper, and came to New York in 1890 to join The New York World. After doing general work for several years he was assigned in 1897 by Charles Edward Russell, then city editor, to cover ship news. He was one of the best known figures along the waterfront from that period until he retired in the Summer of 1915. His last story was the departure of the Cunarder Lusitania in May, 1915, on the voyage on which she was torpedoed by the Germans.

James W. Graff Funeral.

Funeral services for James Witherspoon Graff, known as "Pop" Graff, who was said to have been the oldest newspaper reporter in New York, will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the chapel of the Home for Incurables, 183d Street and Third Avenue. He died at the home Friday night. The Rev. Dr. George W. Deyo, rector of the Church of the Advocate in the Bronx, will conduct the services.

Ask Fifty Thousand

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

Said a gentleman to me the other day:

"Supposing you were to stand at the corner of Forty-second Street and Broadway and were to ask fifty thousand passers-by: 'Tell me the names of two New York Undertakers,' I will wager that forty-nine thousand nine hundred and sixty would say: 'Frank E. Campbell and ——' but they would hesitate to think of the 'and ——.'"

"How many 'Undertakers' are there in New York City," I asked.

"There are about sixteen hundred, considering that most Church-Sextons, who arrange with a casket dealer for the burial of one or another of the members of their church, call themselves 'Undertakers.'"

"To what, then, do you attribute the success of Frank E. Campbell and The Funeral Church?"

"You probably expect me to say: 'In the first place, to advertising.' This, however, is not the case, notwithstanding the fact that the name of Frank E. Campbell, during the thirty years of uninterrupted service as an 'Undertaker,' has appeared in print probably more often than that of any other man in New York City.

"One cannot keep up such a campaign of publicity as does Frank E. Campbell without making good, without fulfilling every promise made, without rendering plus-service to satisfy even the most fastidious.

"And to this giving of plus-service, to the doing of the unexpected, to the relieving of those in sorrow of all worries and troubles, to those wonderful faculties of changing heart-sickness into heart-ease and the dread of the morrow into pleasant memories, I attribute the reason for Frank E. Campbell's great success."

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

A Meal in the Woods

There isn't much variety to the menu of the wilderness, but this doesn't matter since the meals are eaten with such good appetites Bacon and beans are the great standby as they are the most portable and nourishing of foods and these with tea and jam answer every ordinary requirement. There is always plenty of delicious fresh fish to be had for the catching, and most travelers carry a sack of flour from which pancakes can be made.

OFFERS THE STRIKE AS NEGRO'S WEAPON

ARKANSAS CASE DENOUNCED

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn Tells Meeting Negro's Status Is That of the Russian Worker.

Negro strikes as a protest against lynchings were suggested last night at the Church of the Ascension by James Weldon Johnson, Field Secretary of the Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Mr. Johnson asserted that the negroes possessed in their economic force a powerful weapon which might be employed in communities where they were not treated with justice.

Protests against the death sentence passed upon eleven Arkansas negroes after a seven-minute trial were formulated, following Mr. Johnson's address, and they will be sent to the Governor of Arkansas. Similar protests were made at an afternoon mass meeting at the Harlem Casino, 116th Street and Lenox Avenue, where Mr. Johnson also spoke.

"If the negroes in a city like Jacksonville, Fla., for example, would get together," Mr. Johnson said, "they could do much to better their condition. For example, they could send a committee representing 10,000 negroes to the city government and tell them that if they did not receive protection they would not cook or work in any way. Such a course would be a method more effective than the shotgun.

"The American Federation of Labor will admit the negro only when it is absolutely necessary. The attitude of the I. W. W. is much fairer than that of the A. F. of L. The labor unions have refused to take them in, and that is why they have remained at their posts during many strikes."

Mr. Johnson said President Wilson was greatly to blame for not having taken a decided stand against lynchings in the South. "Coming from a Southern man, his protests would have carried great weight," he said.

At both meetings yesterday Mr. Johnson related the circumstances surrounding the conviction of the Arkansas negroes, and asserted that the convictions were the result of a conspiracy. He recounted the condition prevailing in the various cities where race riots have occurred, asserting that in Washington assaults upon white women were only used as excuses for the disorders that were fomented. The Washington newspapers, he declared, had fanned the flame and it had burst into a conflagration when one of the papers announced that service men would congregate on a certain night to "clean up."

"At the bottom of the whole affair," the speaker said, "was the determination on the part of politicians to discredit the Police Department and the effects of prohibition. In Arkansas 58 negro tenant farmers who united to bring legal action against the landlords who were robbing them every year, tenant farmers who were intent upon using the forces of law and order to obtain justice, were the victims of a combination of white men who would not permit such action, and as a result of the disturbances eleven negroes have been sentenced to the gallows, and not one white man has suffered.

"I know we cannot settle this by taking out shotguns and shooting up people, but I also know that if we are shot at, matters will be helped by shooting back. Fifteen million people in this country cannot be weak, they cannot be ignored. We must agitate, we must protest until we whip and sting the conscience of this country to a realization that the negro knows what he wants and that he intends to get it. No change can bring itself about of its own accord. The negro must discover the elements of force within himself, for he will get only so much as he will take, only so much as he will go out and lay his hands on, to seize and to hold."

Norman Thomas urged the education and organization of the negro industrially as a preliminary requisite to securing justice for both whites and negroes. He concluded with an appeal to Federal officials for the reprieve of the convicted Arkansas negroes, and for a Congressional investigation of the facts not only in this particular case, but of the "whole system of peonage."

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn compared the change in attitude toward the negro to the change toward the Russian workers. She said that the praise of both was sung by the poets of this country so long as they were good, docile servants with all the virtues of children, but as soon as they rose to demand the rights of grown-up people they became very fiends, a menace to civilization and fit subjects for Americanization. Americanization, she said, had become a camouflage for every kind of atrocity.

DEFER NEW BEDFORD STRIKE

Unions Will Resume Negotiations with Owners Today.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 30.—After a day of conferences and union meetings the Textile Council late tonight voted to defer strike action to enforce the demand for a 25 per cent. increase in wages, pending further negotiations with the cotton manufacturers tomorrow afternoon.

At the second conference of the day between the manufacturers' committee and union representatives the manufacturers informed the Textile Council that if the operatives would delay the taking of a strike vote the manufacturers would be willing to continue negotiations tomorrow. This word was taken to the fourteen unions, which were waiting to take a strike vote. Nine unions voted in favor of a strike tomorrow, and five in favor of further negotiations. A two-thirds vote of the union is necessary to declare a strike, and the Textile Council ruled the proposal to defer the strike adopted.

DOHERTY WANTS TO EXPLAIN

Offers to Tell Mayors "Inside of Street Car Business."

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 30.—Offering to meet with them and explain the "inside of the street car business," Henry L. Doherty, who controlled the street car system here, today sent telegrams to the Mayors of the cities asked by Mayor James Couzens of Detroit to meet in conference here. No date has been set for the conference.

Mr. Doherty today also addressed a meeting of bus drivers, in which he advised them to look for other fields of business when he brings back the street cars he took into Michigan three weeks ago. There was no move today in the negotiations between city and company officials over a resumption of service.

GERMAN BARK, THOUGHT LOST, MAKES HALIFAX

First German Craft Seen There Since War Began Was Aided by a British Steamer.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 30.—The German bark Paul, believed to have foundered with all on board in midatlantic when calls for help either could not or would not be answered by passing vessels, arrived here today, the first German craft to enter Halifax since the outbreak of the war.

She brought with her a tale of misery endured at sea that was ended by the gallantry of the Captain of a British steamship whose former vessel had been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine and her lifeboats fired upon.

The Paul is commanded by Captain Wulf Krüger, pilot of a German seaplane that operated in the North Sea during the war. His craft passed through several gales. Her sails were torn to tatters and her masts carried away. Passing ships refused to take her in tow, and when the fate of her crew seemed to be sealed the British steamship Manchester Merchant came along, and Captain Musgrave sent out wireless calls and gave other assistance.

Captain Krüger brought his disabled craft to port without proper charts and was ignorant of the coast. His wife was on the vessel.

On Nov. 1 the Paul was forced to lay to for four hours in a violent gale, in which a sailor fell from the foremast and broke a leg and an arm. The British steamship Idaho took him off, but the German skipper said he could not induce passing vessels to take him in tow. The bark lost twenty-one sails and reached port under a mainsail, a lower topsail and a foresail.

TO BRIDGE DETROIT RIVER.

Movement on Foot in Detroit to Connect City with Windsor, Ont.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30.—Under the leadership of Gustave Lindenthal, a Swedish engineer of New York, a movement is on foot here to organize a corporation under the charter of the American and Canadian Governments for the purpose of constructing a $28,000,000 suspension bridge across the Detroit River, connecting Detroit and Windsor. A fund has already been provided for investigation purposes to collect data on the traffic possibilities.

It is proposed to build a bridge supported from towers on either side of the river, with double deck suspension, the span to be capable of handling railroad, street car, automobile, and pedestrian traffic and connecting on the Canadian side with the Essex Terminal Railroad and on the American side with the terminal tracks of the Fort Street Union Depot Company.

There would be one span 110 feet above the water level, which would allow any of the great lakes carriers to pass underneath. It is understood there will be no opposition from the Lake Carriers' Association or from the Canadian or American authorities if this stipulation is carried out.

FORCES I. W. W. BAND TO PLAY NATIONAL AIR

Detroit Police Head Also Compels the Audience to Stand and Listen.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30.—On command by Police Commissioner Inches the large audience gathered here tonight for an I. W. W. meeting stood during the enforced playing, by their band, of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The hymn was called for by American Legion members who had pre-empted the first ten rows in the hall after the crowd had stood and cheered for "The Marseillaise" and a Russian anthem. Four hundred policemen and 500 American Legion members attended.

William D. Haywood, forbidden by Inches in a telegram to Toledo last night to address the meeting, did not come here.

"When the Nations Whisper"

IN the land of the Bible—the land the Christian cherishes, and Jew and Mohammedan worship as the sanctuary of righteousness—once more the nations are whispering. Once more, the old outcast terror of cut-throat diplomacy is threatening to lift its head. These backward Syrian people, thrust aside by the on-marching world, lie an easy prey. Arab and Jew, Kurd and Armenian are caught up in the net—and it spells complication and intrigue in Paris and London, Rome and Berlin—and danger in Washington. It will be an evil day for our country if the whispering plotters win around the world again. You must know about it. The story, startling in its effects, spectacular, romantic in its setting and personalities—is in

ASIA

The American MAGAZINE on the Orient

Jackson Fleming, special correspondent for ASIA in the Near East, is one man who is telling of it in Asia—and this month he unfolds the story of Syria as the tiny centre of the most delicate situation between France and England since the war's end. Next month he tells of the Turk. Now he has gone up into the Caucasus.

You and every man or woman who earns a living in this country are dealing directly with the peoples of the Orient—the Chinese, the Japanese, the Indian and the Turk—in business and in politics.

Do you know the Chinese? How his mind works? John Dewey, probably the most eminent psychologist and philosopher in the United States, is living in China and telling in ASIA the answer. To understand the Chinese and other Orientals is to understand how to deal with 900,000,000 of people politically to avert wars, how to deal with them commercially to make millions for them and us.

Live in the Orient

Take a trip to the Orient through the pages of ASIA. You will swap horses in Turkestan, make a pilgrimage to Mecca, dwell in the enchanting atmosphere of the Vale of Kashmir, live under the spell of the East, fascinating with its mystic magnificence—varied peoples—treasures untold. You will live and move in the marts of Bagdad or in the endless kaleidoscopic processions of brilliant colors along the dusty, wind-blown streets of Peking. You will watch bald-pated priest and silk-gowned official, hard-working coolie and ragged beggar, ancient, be-spectacled scholar and modern progressive student, pass along the city ways.

Art Gallery of the East

Most Beautiful

Your periodical ASIA is certainly the most beautiful and attractive of many periodicals that come into my house. I always find in it not only travelogues and descriptive articles of great interest, but material on diplomacy and national conditions, which is grist to my mill, as a professor offering lectures in diplomatic history and international relations. Of Inestimable Importance

The work which you are doing through the publication of ASIA is of inestimable importance. The great majority of us in this country know comparatively little of the ideals and manners of life of the great Asiatic peoples and, by issuing in attractive form such a great variety of useful information in this field and thereby spreading the understanding of Oriental conditions and points of view, you are helping to further in the most fundamental and far-reaching of ways the peace of the world. STATE INSURANCE FRAUD DETAILS

Investigator's Report Charges That Injured Workers Have Lost $5,000,000.

PHYSICIANS ARE ACCUSED

Held Back Reports of Injuries in Collusion with Runners, Connor Says

BUT BOARD IS EXONERATED

Individual Commissioners Are Found Honest, Efficient, and Hard Working.

Methods of administration in some cases amounting to a "travesty on justice," and in others "scandalous and reprehensible," the defrauding of injured working men and women of the State of at least $5,000,000 through underpayments, and the failure to detect an organized system of grafting are the principal findings in a report to Governor Smith by Jeremiah F. Connor, who was appointed last February to investigate the management and affairs of the State Industrial Commission and the State Insurance Fund. The final report was made to the Governor on Nov. 17 and was made public yesterday.

While the Commissioner finds the individual members of the commission "honest, efficient public servants, devoting much hard labor to the performance of their public duties," he declares the outstanding circumstance of his investigation to be "the injustice and frauds practiced on injured employes under a law enacted for their special benefit."

As a result of the investigation one employe of the State Insurance Fund has confessed, another has pleaded guilty on an indictment previously obtained, four more have been indicted on charges alleging graft, and F. Spencer Baldwin, manager of the Fund, and his Secretary, William A. Heady, have resigned. The employes implicated are:

Samuel Epstein, an interpreter, who pleaded guilty to the indictment charging graft; William A. Herman, claim adjuster, who confessed his share in the alleged graft ring, and Harry Jacobson, claim adjuster; Frank J. Elwood, underwriting clerk, assigned to the claims bureau; Abraham Bernstein, chief accountant, and Barney Wayneck, former employe of the commission, who are under indictment.

Recommendations for Reform.

For the correction of the numerous abuses which had grown up in connection with the determination of awards to beneficiaries under the Workmen's Compensation law and with the management of the State Fund, Mr. Connor makes twenty-seven specific recommendations, fifteen of them advocating changes in the existing legislation and the other twelve dealing with reorganization of the fund. He is convinced that the benefits of the compensation laws have now been so thoroughly demonstrated that the law should be extended to cover all employes without regard to the character of the employmen and that the amount of compensation and death benefits should be generally increased, particularly as regards limits.

To obviate the injustices that have been suffered by workmen the Commissioner calls for changes in the rules regarding the payment of lump sums to employes so that the awards will be made only after careful investigation and after they have been passed upon by a member of the State Industrial Commission, and also calls for a careful review of cases where claims have been disallowed.

In connection with the system of graft which was discovered to have grown up through the employment of "runners," it is urged that an amendment to the law be enacted making it a misdemeanor for any one to receive a fee in connection with a claim for compensation except in an amount determined by the commission, and that all checks issued in payment of claims by the State Insurance Fund should be mailed to the claimants instead of delivered personally.

To give the employe a fair chance for the presentation of his case to the commission through his own physician, Mr. Conner urges an amendment to the law requiring that a panel of physicians be designated by the commission utilizing the advice of recognized medicaul societies, among whom injured workmen may have free choice, with power conferred on the commission to add to, or remove from, such panel at their discretion.

The other recommendations are principally concerned with the improvement of the technique of administration to the end that the employe shall be fully protected both from the advantages enjoyed by the employers and from his own ignorance.

As the result of a preliminary report made by Mr. Connor the method of direct settlement between the employer and employe was abolished by the Legislature, for the Commissioner found that, on rehearing, the majority of these awards were found to be much too low. In 114 cases the amounts paid under direct settlements by the insurance carriers (which included stock companies, mutuals, and self-insurers, but not the State Fund, which made no use of direct settlements) amounted to $13,712.40. The Industrial Commission, as a result of the rehearings, awarded additional compensation in these cases amounting to a total of $52,279.84, the underpayment averaging about $450 in each case. Upon the same basis it is calculated that "the direct settlement law enacted by the Legislature in 1915 has been the means of defrauding injured working men and women of the State out of at least $5,000,000."

Similar injustices are indicated in the method of making "final adjustments." Mr. Connor points out that the intent of the law was to provide for payments of compensation periodically, instead of in one lump sum, and that on a rehearing of twenty of these cases, the total amount of the award was raised from $29,618.67 to $52,086.97, indicating an average underpayment of $1,100 per case. In one case an award was increased from approximately $3,000 to $10,000, and in another from $3,000 to $9,000.

Deputy Commissioner Criticised.

In this connection Deputy Commissioner Thomas J. Curtis comes in for criticism. "When the attention of Deputy Commissioner Curtis was called to the Helen Doyle case on the witness stand," says the report, "his excuse was the fact that he did not have sufficient time to handle the cases properly. . . . In my opinion, one reason for the underpayment in the final adjustment cases is pure carelessness on the part of the Deputy Commissioner, and I believe it is also due to the fact that the Deputy Commissioner is either unable or unwilling to resist the persuasion of the representatives and physicians employed by the insurance carriers."

Mr. Connor presents in detail the system used by those who profited by graft. Threats were made to claimants that their cases would be held up unless they agreed to split the money they received. After the award had been made, the investigator says, the claimant was directed to return on a certain day to receive his check from the cashier. Upon that day, he would be identified by either Herman or Jacobson, and would receive his check. Is cases handled by Wayneck, the claimant was usually met in the hall and Wayneck cashed the check then and there out of the money carried in his pocket, retaining the fee he charged for his services.

About 150 claimants were held up in this manner for a total of about $50,000. Mr. Connor states that some cases were particularly shocking, and then continues:

"It seems almost impossible that this extensive system of graft should have existed since early in 1918 without having been detected by those charged with the administration of the Fund. The gift of a $3,400 automobile to the wife of the manager, the generally loose management, the fact that charges of graft had been repeatedly suppressed, encouraged the grafting ring to continue and grow bolder. And the whole picture of mismanagement of the State Fund and the easy way in which explanation of alleged wrongdoing were accepted, lead to the conclusion that there was little desire to learn the exact truth and weed out the grafters."

The report shows that a system of "runners" has grown up, taking the place and following the methods of ambulance chasing lawyers. They appear at the homes of injured workers and persuade the claimant to let him act as representative at the hearing. Sometimes the runners worked in collusion with physicians, who held back reports of minor injuries until several months had elapsed, with the expectation that an award would be made dating from the time of injury. This hope was often realized and the contingent fee of the runner was increased, so that in some cases he made as much as $5,000 a year.

"A number of unfortunate conditions" are reported in the Medical Division of which Dr. Raphael Lewy is chief. Bills of experts employed by the commission are higher than for the same service when the physician is employed by a patient or an insurance carrier, directly, and the service is condemned because of "a constant effort to take claimants away from the hospitals in New York City in order that they might be treated by dressing stations of Dr. Meyer Wolff." The income of Dr. Wolff from the State Insurance Fund is placed at $75,000 a year, and the report points out that the new Medical Adviser, Dr. Henry T. Radin, was general manager of Dr. Wolff's system prior to his appointment.

The so-called Wynkoop service is attacked on the ground that it was enabled to do business because of substantial favors received at the hands of the manager of the State Insurance Fund, one of them being the privilege of getting data from the files of the State Fund, a procedure prohibited by law and made a misdemeanor. The attachment of the Wynkoop service to the State Fund is condemned as "scandalous and reprehensible."

Former Miss Vanderbilt Also Wants Commons Seat

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Duchess of Marlborough, who was Consuela Vanderbilt of New York, is anxious to enter Parliament and will take the first opportunity to become a candidate, according to The Mirror.

In view of her interest in the poorer classes, the paper adds, she would like to represent some typical working class constituency.

Lady Astor Takes Seat Today.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Lady Astor, accompanied by her son, left today for London, where tomorrow she will take her seat as a member of the House of Commons. Speaking with The Associated Press correspondent just before her departure, Lady Astor said:

"The people will be disappointed if they think I shall speak and act in Parliament as I have done during the election campaign. You don't talk too much if you want things done. Electioneering is one thing and legislating is another."

7 MEN IN LAUNCH DRIFT TO SEA; RESCUE FAILS

Police Boats Seek Helpless Craft Off Rockaway—Report of Rescue.

Returning from a fishing trip yesterday afternoon, the sloop Captain Tinkett sighted a disabled naphtha launch off Rockaway Beach drifting out to sea. Seven men on the launch were waving distress signals, but their shouts died in the gale that was blowing and the breaking of the whitecaps on the shore.

The fishing sloop stood by in the rough water and managed to throw a line aboard the launch. No sooner was the line made fast, however, than it snapped. Another line was cast and caught. It also broke.

The Captain Tinkett, unable to make further efforts at rescue, turned for the shore and put in to Sheepshead Bay. At 7 o'clock last night Herman Neaderland, from the Captain Tinkett, reported the plight of the seven men aboard the launch to Edward Blicher, a policeman on duty in a booth near the docks. Blicher notified the Harbor Squad, who sent out two boats to search for the crippled launch.

A report this morning that the men had been picked up outside Sandy Hook could not be confirmed.

RESOLVED TO REFUSE SCAPA FLOW DEMAND

German Government Organ Says the Cabinet Won't Surrender Tonnage to Allies.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 29, (Associated Press.)—The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, mouthpiece of the German Government, a copy of which has been received here, says it learns in Cabinet circles that the Imperial Government is firmly resolved not to yield to the Entente on the question of the surrender of 400,000 tons of dredgers, docks, and tugs as compensation for the vessels sunk at Scapa Flow, on the ground that such surrender would absolutely undermine Germany's economic system.

"The Government," the newspaper continues, "finds equally unacceptable the clause of the annex to the protocol under which France may, whenever she will, march troops into Germany. The Government wants peace, but not a one-sided peace."

GERMANS FEAR BIG LEVIES.

Business Interests Call the Proposed Taxation Ruinous.

BERLIN, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The Chamber of Commerce has sent an energetic protest to the National Assembly against adopting the projected measures for taxing incomes and capital before the effects have been observed of the emergency sacrifice levy on the German economic position.

The Chamber argues that to apply all these burdens on capital simultaneously would pauperize the nation, prevent any reconstruction, arrest all enterprise, deprive the industrial world of its life's blood, leave nothing for the development of the arts and sciences, result in wholesale unemployment and the emigration of millions and destroy the balance of vitality left to Germany by the armistice and the Peace Treaty.

The Trade Committee of the Diet has sent a similar protest to the Assembly. The Tageblatt's financial writer, Dr. Felix Pinner, also voices a protest, illustrating his contention with figures showing the probable operation of the projected taxes, and predicting that the Finance Minister will be disappointed in his expectation of realizing 8,000,000,000 [illegible] great fortunes.

HOOVER'S RELIEF COST $11,250,000

Bulk of America's $100,000,000 Fund Covered by Notes Given by European Countries.

FIRST ACCOUNTING GIVEN

Of the $100,000,000 fund appropriated by Congress for relief of starving Europeans, only $11,250,000 was disbursed for free charity, according to the preliminary accounting made to President Wilson by Herbert Hoover, head of the American Relief Administration. For the remaining $88,750,000 various European countries have issued notes, which Mr. Hoover expects to turn over to the United States Treasury.

The report gives tables showing the preliminary estimate of expenditures from the appropriation and the countries to which the supplies purchased were sent.

The expenditures on food shipments are roughly divided in the following proportions:

	P. C.
F. O. B. cost of food and other relief commodities at American ports	77.37
Transatlantic freight on above	20.67
Demurrage	1.10
Handling and transhipment in Europe	.85

The report in part follows:

"About 88 per cent. of the relief supplies furnished were sold under contract to the various Governments in the relief areas. For all such sales these Governments gave their special treasury notes in a form approved by the United States Treasury, bearing 5 per cent. interest, due June 30, 1921, to June 30, 1924. It was impossible to obtain reimbursement in cash because the currency in the countries to which these supplies were sent was impossible to convert into foreign exchange, except in comparatively insignificant amounts.

Poland the Biggest Debtor.

"I give herewith approximate list of the notes of each Government, which we expect to turn over to the United States Treasury.

Poland	$57,000,000
Czechoslovakia	6,750,000
Armenia	10,000,000
Russia	5,000,000
Esthonia	2,300,000
Latvia	3,000,000
Lithuania	700,000
Finland	4,000,000
Total	$88,750,000

"The remaining 12 per cent. of the supplies were donated in assistance to private organizations set up in each country under direction of the American Relief Administration for the purpose of furnishing food on a charitable basis to undernourished children. For such supplies it was, of course, impossible to obtain reimbursement. This service has contributed greatly to stabilizing the situation in those countries, aside from the physical benefits to more than 3,000,000 undernourished children, to whom the war threatened serious and permanent injury. Certainly this service is one for which the name of American will always be held in deepest gratitude.

"In addition to the children's relief, the American Relief Administration paid approximately $550,000 for freight and expenditures on old clothing contributed by the American Red Cross and the Commission for Relief in Belgium, which was transported to the liberated countries and distributed without charge. The character of this clothing is so varied and uncertain that it has been found most unwise to attempt any sale on a commercial basis, and as it goes to the poorest classes it is a proper subject for charity.

"The American Relief Administration also expended $550,000 on freight in transporting from France to Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Esthonia United States Army bacon which the Governments of these States were able to purchase on a credit from the Liquidation Board in France. This is covered by the treasury notes of those countries.

Freight Charges Unsettled.

"It should also be noted that a question remains unsettled with the United States Shipping Board regarding the freight charges. The President and the board have approved the policy of fixing these on a cost basis, but as yet no reduction has been made in the tentative rates of freight which were originally fixed at considerably above this cost.

"The relief supplies purchased by the American Relief Administration were all of American origin, and none of the appropriation, therefore, was expended outside of the United States, except to some extent for local freight and handling charges in Europe.

"I regret exceedingly that it is impossible to submit at the present time an itemized statement of the receipts and expenditures. Although the commodities required for relief shipments were all purchased prior to July 1, 1919, marine workers strikes in the Port of New York delayed the sailing of the last relief vessels until Aug. 25. It was, therefore, necessary to continue our accounting staff in Europe until these vessels had been unloaded thirty days later. The transfer of the accounting forces and records from various countries to the London office for credit required further time, and thence from London to the United States there was also serious delay by the strikes in England and finally the unloading of the records was long delayed in New York by the longshoremen's strike. Combination of the European and American accounts is now in process and will be audited before presentation. These delays, together with the complicated nature of the accounts, make it impossible to present an itemized statement of receipts and expenditures for some little time. At that time the final and complete report will be filed. The totals will not, I believe, vary materially from those given in this report."

How the Money Was Spent.

Name of Country to Which Shipped.	Amount.
Poland	$56,900,000
Czechoslovakia	6,700,000

BELGIUM LEANS ON FRANCE.

But Premier Says That Economic Union Is Not Practicable.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 29 (Associated Press).—In an interview concerning the international part of the Government's program, Premier Delacroix said that Belgium must lean on France and Great Britain. Nevertheless, he added, an economic union with France was out of the question, Belgium's industrial and commercial interests being opposed to participation in the French economic system.

The Premier said that Belgium's commercial treaties were to be based on political accord and the safeguarding of Belgian independence. The Government, he asserted, was hostile to the nationalization of mines, but was ready to try State administration with the new Limbourg collieries. The Premier declared that military service in Belgium would be of the shortest possible duration.

Political Murders Increase in Ireland While Government Policies Are in Conflict

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Sir Horace Plunkett, who was Chairman of the Dublin Convention, has issued a warning that the announcement that hunger strikers will not be released from the jails in Ireland hereafter, if it is intended to break the spirit of the Sinn Fein, will have the opposite effect.

Advices from Dublin say that conditions in Ireland are most disquieting. Lawlessness has not been discouraged by the recent proclamations, and crimes of violence are increasing in number.

The English papers call attention to the numerous murders, specifically the assassination of another Dublin policeman Saturday night, and point out that the Government is apparently carrying on at the same time two policies toward Ireland—one the policy of conciliation embodied in the Home Rule plan which is being framed by a Cabinet committee, the other a policy of repression, expressed by successive proclamations from Dublin Castle, curtailing certain liberties of the people.

The two policies are supposed to represent the two parties in the Coalition Government—Premier Lloyd George's Liberal wing, and the Unionist faction, of which Andrew Bonar Law for a long time has been an outspoken leader.

"Proclamation without action" is the description some critics give of Lord French's rule. His latest manifesto proclaimed the Sinn Fein and kindred societies throughout Ireland as illegal bodies. The Sinn Fein had already been proclaimed such in Dublin and other parts before the recent meeting of the Sinn Fein Congress there; yet the Sinn Feiners held their congress—even advertised it and boasted of it—and nothing happened in the way of measures against them.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 30.—Addressing a Sinn Fein demonstration here today Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein organization and acting President of the "Irish Republic," accused the authorities in Dublin Castle of trying to goad the Irish people into armed revolt and inviting them to murder by issuing a secret order to the police to shoot dead any prisoner whose release was attempted.

W. L. FLANAGAN ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

Relatives Deny That Estrangement from Wife Was Motive for Suicide.

William Livingston Flanagan, son of the late brewer, William L. Flanagan, and nephew of former Representative De Witt Clinton Flanagan of New Jersey, who was a pioneer of the original Cape Cod Canal, died in Bellevue Hospital yesterday from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

Flanagan, who was 36 years old, had been married eight years, but, according to his uncle, had not been living with his wife since early in 1917, though there had been no legal separation. A note scrawled on a piece of blotting paper in Flanagan's room in the Hotel Grenoble, where a watchman found Flanagan lying unconscious with a pistol beside him on the floor, after a guest had reported hearing a shot, read: "Notify Edith."

De Witt C. Flanagan declined last night to tell the wife's name or to say whether the note was addressed to her. He deprecated the idea that marital troubles had anything to do with the suicide and declared the wife was "a lovely young girl."

The uncle professed himself as at an entire loss to account for the act, saying that his nephew had accompanied him and his wife to the theatre Saturday night and that after uncle and aunt and nephew had dined at the Plaza the nephew had started for his own hotel apparently in high spirits.

The suicide owned a large ranch in Wyoming and operated it himself until America entered the war, when he leased it in order to join the army. He became a First Sergeant and then was sent to the artillery officers training school at Fort Zachary Taylor, Kentucky. Before he could be commissioned the armistice was signed. After his discharge he came to New York and lived at the Grenoble.

A woman telephoned to Bellevue after an ambulance surgeon had taken Flanagan there, directing that no expense be spared in efforts to save his life. A few moments later, while the surgeons were searching for the bullet which he had fired just under his heart, his uncle arrived with his mother, Mrs. Lusini Ferrier. Her address the police learned incorrectly as 14 West Fifty-seventh Street.

Flanagan died on the operating table.

SAYS SOCIALISTS WON'T GIVE UP RIGHT TO REBEL

But Leon Blum, French Deputy, Says Russian Bolshevism Can't Flourish in France.

PARIS, Nov. 29.—"We refuse to renounce our right to revolution," said Léon Blum, one of the Socialist leaders, in an interview with the Havas Agency today. "When shall we put it into execution? Shall we be forced by circumstances to take blunt measures? The future will tell."

Blum is one of the few Socialist leaders to find a seat in the newly elected Chamber of Deputies. He is a high official in the conservative body called the Council of State, the origin of which goes back to the days of the Romans, and which under the republic has taken the place of what was the King's Council.

Unlike Paul Boncour, former Minister of Labor and a leading member of the Extremist Party, who advocates moderation, Blum favors extreme means by the Socialists in order to attain their ends.

Blum added that there need be no fear of Bolshevism, which now meant what radicalism meant in the elections of 1872, no more and no less, and served the same purpose, which was the defeat of the working classes.

"Within a few months," Blum continued, "we shall have a Bolshevist Ambassador in Paris. None of us, even those who are called Bolsheviki, favors for one instant the adoption, pure and simple, in our country of the methods employed by Lenin and Trotzky in Russia, which were caused by particular circumstances, political, military, economic, and moral, obtaining in Russia when the Bolshevist movement succeeded.

"Lenin himself would have acted differently in a country like ours. The setting up of a republic itself is an acquisition of the right to revolution. Suppose that tomorrow we should have a legal majority of the votes of the country; would the capitalist class guarantee never to use against us any other weapon than the ballot? We can wait, as it is in our interest, before putting our right to revolution into effect, that the Socialist organization shall have reached the interior of society and attained a sufficient degree of maturity. Circumstances will rule."

STYLES SHOCK LT. MAYNARD

"Flying Parson" from Pulpit Condemns New York Women's Dress.

Lieutenant B. W. Maynard, the "flying parson," last night in the course of a sermon delivered in the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, sharply condemned the styles of dress worn by women in New York.

"I have been shocked," he said, "by the lack of clothes worn by women at receptions I have attended in New York. Raised in the peace, security, and modesty of country life, I could not but be displeased by the costumes of women whose dresses are cut so low in the back that one can count every verterbra from the waist up."

Lieutenant Maynard also declared that the supreme glory of women is motherhood, and that women whose minds are set on cabarets and similar amusements are disinclined to assume the duties of motherhood.

Lieutenant Maynard preached at both the morning and evening services at the Hanson Place Church.

KOLCHAK TO FORM COALITION CABINET

Influence of the Military Over Civil Matters Will Be Eliminated.

MORE POWER TO ZEMSTVOS

Admiral Reorganizing His Siberian Armies—Huge Losses in Retreat from Omsk.

IRKUTSK, Nov. 24 (Associated Press).—Victor Pepeliaeff, formerly Minister of the Interior of the Kolchak Government, who has been intrusted with the formation of a new Cabinet, has been instructed to organize one with the greatest possible socialistic tendencies compatible with Admiral Kolchak's stand against Bolshevism.

It is proposed to give larger powers to the recently created Zemstvo Congress, and every effort will be made to placate the Cossack atamans and the Czechs. With this program Admiral Kolchak hopes to be able to survive the crisis brought about by the collapse of his military campaign in the west and the outburst of social revolutionary activities in the east.

In reforming the Cabinet it is proposed to eliminate entirely the influence of the military over civil matters, which is generally conceded to have been one of the notable weaknesses of the Kolchak Government.

When the Kolchak Ministers arrived at Irkutsk on Nov. 19, with their armies fleeing before the Reds and the Gaida revolt progressing at Vladivostok, they found most serious opposition on the part of the social revolutionary elements here to continuance of the functioning of the present Government. This and the political aspirations of General Semenoff impelled the Ministers to telegraph Admiral Kolchak an outline of reforms which were considered essential.

Admiral Kolchak, according to John Soukine, the Acting Foreign Minister, has given his assent to the program, which Mr. Soukine hopes will result in the formation of a coalition Cabinet which will gain the support of all factions. Selections of Cabinet members have not yet been announced by M. Pepeliaeff, but it can be stated on good authority that virtually half of the former Ministers will be replaced.

Admiral Kolchak still is at Novo Nikolaevsk, where he is expected to remain until the military situation clears up. Efforts to reform the Kolchak armies there are meeting with some success, it is reported. Kolchak still has a force of reserves which have not been utilized.

Eleven Generals and 1,000 other officers of the army of Admiral Kolchak, and thirty-nine thousand troops, were captured by the Bolsheviki at Omsk, according to Colonel G. H. Emerson, assistant to John F. Stevens, head of the American Railway Commission. Material seized by the Bolsheviki, his informants say, included 2,000 machine guns, 30,000 uniforms with overcoats, 4,000,000 rounds of ammunition, seventy-five locomotives, and 5,000 loaded cars.

An army of 30,000 partly trained draft troops has been withdrawn to guard the Novo Nikaelovsk and Tomsk district.

The presence of approximately 20,000 Czechs at Irkutsk is regarded as a guarantee that there will be no serious disturbances here over the political situation. This fact has impelled Ernest L. Harris, American Consul General, who arrived today, to countermand orders issued by Colonel George H. Emerson of the American Railroad Mission directing the evacuation to Verkhniudinsk of forty American nurses still at Irkutsk. Thirty nurses already have left Irkutsk for Verkhniudinsk.

VLADIVOSTOK, Nov. 26 (Associated Press).—A proclamation calling upon the civilians of Siberia, especially the peasants, to join the army of the All-Russian Government to resist the Bolsheviki has been issued by Admiral Kolchak. It said:

"Red bands have invaded Siberia, carrying anarchy and devastation. These, with the help of deceived Russians, are carrying on the international cause of a band of outcasts of every nationality, endeavoring to destroy our motherland as an independent State. The Soviet Government also is composed of outcasts, mostly non-Russian, pretending to call themselves the Workmen's and Peasants' Government.

"Until now, you believed the Government and army should defend you. But the time has arrived when you must enter the ranks of the army. I declare the country, also the Russian cause, in danger."

PARIS, Nov. 30.—The news that the Polish Army has formed a junction with the army of General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist leader in Southern Russia, is confirmed in a dispatch received by La Presse de Paris from Warsaw.

SOVIET NOTE TO POWERS.

Charges Recruiting of War Prisoners for Anti-Red Armies.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A Moscow wireless message says that the Soviet Government has sent a note to the Governments of France, Great Britain, the United States and Japan, protesting against the interallied mission for the repatriation of Russian prisoners engaging, as it alleges, in recruiting prisoners for the anti-Bolshevist armies.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 30.—Maxim Litvinoff, representative of the Russian Bolshevist Government in conferences here concerning an exchange of prisoners, admitted today that he had been approached by Denmark and other neutral countries with regard to their nationals in Siberia. He said that their return home would depend upon the result of the negotiations for an exchange of prisoners with Great Britain. He denied that he was negotiating with Germany on any such subject.

Litvinoff added that the Soviet Government was prepared to liberate all British prisoners and to permit British nationals to leave Russia, provided Russia's nationals in foreign countries, cut off by the blockade, were permitted freely to communicate with Russia and the Russian Government permitted to attend to the interests of these nationals.

TELLS NEW PLAN FOR TRAINING ARMY

Secretary Baker Outlines Fundamentals of Reorganization in Annual Report.

REVIEWS WAR ACTIVITIES

System of Military, Educational, and Social Training Counted On to Bring Future Enlistments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Fundamental reorganization of the army and of the War Department itself, preserving "the efficient instrumentalities which have been developed during the war," is recommended by Secretary of War Baker in his annual report, made public here today. He advocates that the emergency organization, reduced to peace-time size, be made permanent, and approved the General Staff bill for a regular establishment "adequate in size, to be the nucleus of any great military mobilization the country may be called upon to make," backed up by a system of universal training.

"The accent is not upon the soldier. "The military policy recommended by the War Department," he states, "involves a new army created with a new spirit, having wide civic usefulness, and of such size and organization as to be an adequate reliance in case of need."

Denying any danger of militarism in having an efficient army, Secretary Baker says that "it is difficult to believe that any army could be formed of Americans, educated in our common schools, raised in this free and democratic atmosphere of our institutions, which would still be hostile to those institutions and liberties. The world war has shown quite clearly that armies reflect the spirit of the people from whom they come rather than create a spirit of their own, so that the size of the army is not so important from the point of view now under consideration as to the kind of an army."

"The country has accepted," the Secretary continues, "the principle of the selective-service law as the fair and democratic mode of assigning men to military service in war, but compulsory service in time of peace the country has not accepted and its application would be a poor substitute for the volunteer principle properly applied." He added that the raising of a standing army by financial inducement is too costly to contemplate and brings the volunteer in upon a lower basis than compulsion, as there is no idea of national service, and none of personal development or advantage beyond the mere pay received, leaving, therefore, only the method of "making enlistment in the army an educational opportunity" to furnish the troops.

Secretary Baker asserts that the recommendation for an increased standing army "has been suggested to indicate a disinclination on the part of the War Department toward the prospect of international disarmament, but the suggestion is without real basis."

New System of Training.

The plan recommended, Mr. Baker explains, is "in harmony with the genius of our institutions. It contemplates the establishment of a system of training divided into two parts, the first military and the other educational and social. The second part of the plan looks to the establishment of systems of schools adapted to the needs and aptitudes of the men, teaching the formal branches of education and adding to them the skilled trades, so that at the end of a term of enlistment the young man entering in his nineteenth year will go back to civil life with the physical setup which the open athletic life of the army gives, and with the education and training which will make him more valuable in civil pursuits than he could otherwise have been."

Operations of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, Secretary Baker said, would be dealt with in a comprehensive report now in process of preparation by General Pershing. Not even the Allied War Council, he said, had realized the effect upon Germany of the accelerated movement of troops and supplies from the United States, and all plans had been prepared for a vigorous campaign in the Spring of 1919.

"Had not the great troop movement of the Summer of 1918 been carried out," he said, "the practically continuous battle on the western front from March to November would not have been possible. The conflicting armies would have stabilized their positions, spent the Winter in fresh preparations, and in the Spring of 1919 would have opened the decisive campaign. As it turned out, however, the combined strength at the disposal of the supreme commander enabled him to assume the offensive in July, and to hold it aggressively until the exhausted and beaten enemy was obliged to surrender.

"The saving to the world in thus shortening the war is incalculable alike in life and treasure. The end came when America had completed but half of her program. It was enough to turn the tide. The full splendor of the strength of our people, however, appears only if one doubles the marching millions who passed through the Argonne Forest, and rested their arms when the armistice was signed. Had the campaign of 1919 been fought, our army in France would have numbered 4,000,000 men; they would have been supplied from American sources (with artillery as a partial exception) with arms, munitions, and subsistence; they would have had adequate motor and animal transportation and American-built ships would have insured the safety and adequacy of their supply."

Firm in Critical Hour.

"There were elements in the problem which might well have caused grave apprehension. The armies of France, Great Britain, and Italy had borne for three years the furious and deadly assaults of the great German military machine, the toll levied by battle upon the man power of these nations had been appalling, and it was becoming increasingly difficult for them to maintain their divisions at full strength. The submarine peril menaced the supply of munitions of war and of foodstuffs to great civil populations. Rigid economies were being enforced on every hand to make the scanty importations of food cover the wants of peoples wasted by war.

"Meanwhile the German armies had crushed long-planned offensives by the allied armies with apparent ease and by the collapse of Russia were daily being strengthened by divisions of trained soldiers brought from the Eastern Front until the menace of superior numbers and apparently inexhaustible supplies of the munitions of war haunted the councils of the Allied Powers.

"General Pershing and his associates gave no room to doubt and accepted no counsel except that of determination. When the critical hour came and the combined energies of the United States and Great Britain did surpass all previous estimates and land 2,000,000 men in France, the arrangements made for their reception and for their maintenance were found inadequate; and had the war gone on and the eighty division program been carried out, the imagination and daring of these early plans would still have been adequate.

"The detailed description of the things done in France must necessarily be left to the full report which General Pershing is preparing. It is a wonderful story and exhibits at its best the confidence in their institutions which Americans may justly have."

Secretary Baker opposes the creation of a Department of the Air because of the undeveloped state of the industry, necessitating 'Federal regulation," as well as because of military considerations. It would be just as fatal to separate forces from the army, he maintains. "A sound national policy, however, would seem to involve a generous attitude on the part of Congress in the matter of appropriations," he believes, "recognizing the commercial possibilities of the airplane by encouraging its use in the Postal Service and of course recognizing its tremendous importance both to the army and the navy. Having determined how far these various possibilities justify support, an aggregate appropriation might be made to be expended under the direction of the President upon the advice of a board of which the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, the Postmaster General, and the Secretary of Commerce would be members."

France and the Vatican May Resume Diplomatic Ties

ROME, Nov. 29.—Negotiations are in progress for the resumption of diplomatic relations between France and the Holy See. Prospects seem good for restoration of friendly intercourse between the Vatican and the French Government, which was broken off when President Loubet visited the King in Rome in 1904 and Pope Pius X. protested against this recognition of Italy because that country had deprived the Vatican of the papal dominions.

A POLITICAL PLOT, SAY NEWBERRY MEN

SENATOR ON WAY TO CAPITAL

Expected to Take His Seat at Opening of Congress—Has Made No Statement.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 30.—No arrests have been made on the warrants issued yesterday following the return of indictments in the Federal District Court charging United States Senator Truman H. Newberry of Detroit and 134 others with fraud in the election by which Senator Newberry obtained his seat. Assistant Attorney General Frank C. Dailey of Indianapolis specifically requested that no arrests be made today to obviate the possibility that some of the defendants might have to spend Sunday in jail through lack of ability to furnish bonds.

It was considered probable that a host bond would be accepted for all the 135 men indicted. It is not expected that any of the defendants will be brought here to perfect arrangements for bail, as they probably will have an opportunity to deposit bonds before commissioners in the districts wherein their arrests are made, in case a host bond is not approved by Judge Sessions.

Should a host bond be accepted by Judge Sessions it would relieve the individual defendants of the necessity of obtaining separate bail. It would be a bond in such sum as the court might approve covering all the defendants in the one instrument, and all of them would be released from jail pending their preliminary hearing at least. In case any defendant wilfully failed to appear at the preliminary hearing the entire sum of the host bond would be forfeited to the Government.

United States Marshal Herman O'Connor stated tonight that he expected warrants would have been served on all defendants by the close of the present week.

There is much interest here as to whether Senator Newberry will claim the constitutional immunity from criminal prosecution which is granted him as a United States Senator, and an announcement from him on that point is eagerly awaited by politicians and others who have been watching the Grand Jury investigation closely. Senator Newberry has been spending a vacation at Hot Springs, Va., and it was understood here tonight that he is expected to be in Washington tomorrow morning for the opening session of Congress.

DETROIT, Nov. 30.—None of the bench warrants issued by Judge Sessions, following the indictment yesterday of Senator Truman H. Newberry and 134 others, including several Detroit men, had been served, so far as could be ascertained here tonight.

John S. Newberry, brother of Senator Newberry and one of those indicted, is said to be in New York City.

Paul H. King, Newberry's campaign manager and also one of those indicted, declared today that the Grand Jury's action was "political in its inception and designed for political effect in the coming campaign." He maintained that the indictments are "not well founded and therefore cannot be sustained," and expressed confidence that court developments will show that "the agents of the Department of Justice employed outrageous methods in their efforts to bring about the desired results."

Allan K. Templeton, President of the Newberry Campaign Committee, and another of those indicted, declared there was nothing in the indictment that "I need fear," but would not discuss it further.

While the conviction of Senator Newberry would probably cause his removal from the Senate, it would not result in the seating of Henry Ford, who was Mr. Newberry's opponent in the election of 1918, in the opinion of men familiar with the situation and the precedents in Senatorial election contests, unless a recount of votes showed he was actually elected.

The fact of the indictment of Mr. Newberry and some of the evidence supporting it will undoubtedly be put before the Senate in connection with the contest of Mr. Newberry's seat, which attorneys for Mr. Ford have instituted. If Mr. Newberry's seat is declared vacant Governor Sleeper will be called on to name his successor to serve until the next general election. Of course, the Governor would appoint a Republican.

Michigan Democrats declare that the wholesale indictments mean the end of Republican rule in Michigan.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Senator Newberry left Hot Springs, Va., tonight and is due here tomorrow. Friends of the Senator said he would be on hand when the Senate began its regular session at noon, but that they did not look for any statement from him, and that he had declined thus far to discuss the indictment.

LOTTERY LOAN PROJECT EXCITES GREAT BRITAIN

Strongly Opposed by Bankers and Clergy — Proposal Comes Before Commons Today.

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press)—The question whether the Government shall embark on a policy of raising money by lottery methods will come up before the House of Commons tomorrow, when a proposal for an issue of premium bonds will be discussed.

The proposal has a warm popular following, but it is being strongly opposed by bankers, churchmen and others on the general ground that it would constitute gambling, lower the national financial prestige, and demoralize the public. Supporters of the measure contend that the lure of the big prizes would draw out at least £100,000,000 which the Treasury could not get by ordinary loans.

The Cabinet has adopted an attitude of neutrality in the matter and will simply put the question before the House of Commons and let the members decide it. David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister; Andrew Bonar Law, Lord Privy Seal and Government leader in the Commons, and other leaders are believed to disapprove of the scheme. The Archbishop of Canterbury has denounced it and sermons were preached against it in many of the Nonconformist churches throughout the country today.

TO AFFRONT KING BY FAILING TO RISE

Italian Socialists Will Then Walk Out as Victor Emmanuel Addresses Parliament.

QUEEN WILL BE PRESENT

Court Dress Waived for Occasion, and Monarch Will Appear in Field Uniform.

LOYALISTS PLAN OVATION

Liberal and Monarchical Associations to Join in Great Street Demonstration.

ROME, Nov. 30 (Associated Press)—When King Victor Emmanuel enters the Chamber at the opening of the twenty-fifth session of Parliament tomorrow morning the Socialist Deputies will not rise. They will leave the Chamber when the roll call begins and hold a meeting of the Socialist bloc in an adjoining room while the King delivers his address.

The Anti-Bolshevist League is organizing a great demonstration of loyalty to the King as a counterdemonstration. All the liberal and monarchical associations will join in the manifestation, which is timed to take place when the King returns to the Quirinal Palace.

It was by a vote of 105 to 23 that the Socialists adopted a proposal made by Signor Modigliani to attend the first sitting of the new Chamber, but to abstain from all homage to the King and to leave the Chamber before the delivery of the speech from the throne. Those casting the negative votes favored a proposal by Signor Mazzoni not to attend the sessions at all. The Socialists will take the oath at Tuesday's session, with mental reservations, and present a motion to eliminate from the Constitution the requirement that the Deputies shall take such oath.

This is the program agreed upon by the Socialist caucus after a long discussion. Some of the Deputies say that this moderate program, as they term it, may be modified if their opponents offer an affront. Just what might be regarded by the Socialists as an affront has not been made clear, and there is much speculation as to whether the King's reception, with the customary loud applause by sympathetic Deputies and Senators, will be considered as justification for a more extreme expression of disapproval by the Socialists, who hold 156 of the 508 seats.

The Catholic Party has 100 seats, the Republicans 12, while the remaining seats are divided among various anti-socialistic parties. Many of the Socialist Deputies before the election promised the electors extreme action against Parliament. Deputy Grandi, whom the Socialists elected in Mantua, is an artisan and pledged his electors that he would enter Parliament "carrying a pick for the purpose of demolishing it." Deputy Modigliani and other well-known Socialists also have been somewhat extreme in their expressions. The more temperate Deputies, however, apparently dominated the caucuses and framed the party program.

Although Parliament normally should have met in 1918, the last session was waived because of the war, and the approaching session will be the first in six years. The new session will in most respects be quite as democratic in its opening as the American Congress. All court dress has been waived. The Queen will enter the Chamber before the King and will have a seat in the special tribunal.

The King, wearing a field uniform, will enter accompanied by members of the royal family and the military and civil household. After bowing to the Queen and to the right, centre, and left of the Chamber, the King will be seated.

Premier Nitti then will request the Deputies and Senators to be seated and the roll call will begin. Following the roll call the King will deliver his address.

Peter Jay, American Chargé d'Affaires in Italy, will represent the United States, appearing in the special tribune, where the heads of forty foreign missions will sit, attired in plain morning coats by request of the Government, which considers the occasion too soon after the close of the war for full dress.

The Italian public is especially interested in the fact that for the first time Senators from Trieste and Trent will appear in Parliament. There are no Deputies representing those regions, however, as no elections have been held there.

A suggestion that the King might not appear at the opening session had created much comment, and general satisfaction is expressed at the announcement that the King will deliver an address as usual. On only two occasions has Italy's King failed personally to read a message at the opening of Parliament. King Charles Albert was fighting in Austria when Parliament opened in 1848 and Prince Carignano read his address. In 1860 King Victor Emmanuel, grandfather of the present King, was ill and was represented by the Minister of Justice.

LITHUANIA SIGNS TRUCE.

Germany Agrees to Evacuate That Country at Once.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—An armistice stipulating the immediate evacuation of Lithuania by the Germans has been signed by Germany and Lithuania through the medium of the Inter-Allied Military Mission.

TELLS OF SOVIET IDEAL.

Federation of Russian Peoples, but Not by Coercion, Litvinoff Says.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—In the course of a long talk with The Daily Herald's Copenhagen correspondent, Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian Soviet Government representative here, outlined Soviet Russia's situation. He declared that the Government was absolutely without imperialistic designs and did not desire to extend its frontier in any direction.

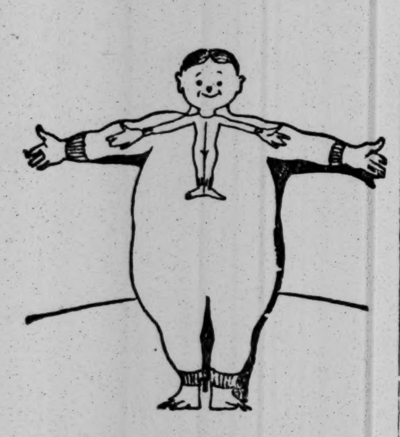
The Soviet ideal was a federation of the peoples attached to Russia by position and economic relation. The Government, he added, did not wish to coerce the Georgians, Letts, Ukrainians, or others. "Secession will be allowed to all, in the hope that a natural economic alliance will bring us all together in time," he said.

Regarding the internal situation in Russia, Litvinoff said work would be nationalized as far as possible and wages fixed to a scale according to occupation. Everybody will be permitted to follow their own profession under the State. The lawyers, however, possibly would have a hard time, as the old law had lapsed and there could not be many disputes about property when nearly all the property was nationalized. The State, he said, would provide lawyers for the defense in criminal cases.

Gaida Leaves Siberia for Home.

VLADIVOSTOK, Nov. 27 (Associated Press).—General Rudolph Gaida, commander of the Czechoslovak forces, who led the revolt which was suppressed here a week ago, departed today with four officers of his staff for Shanghai on the steamer Jenza. They will remain at Shanghai a few weeks before returning to Czechoslovakia via the United States. General Gaida last night received from Prague word of his decoration with the War Cross, the highest Czech award, for his services with the Czechoslovak army.

FIFTEEN TEAMS BEGIN SIX-DAY CYCLE GRIND FOR GLORY AND PELF AT GARDEN



My! My! How our one-piece underwear business has grown!

The story's interesting.

It was just six years ago that we decided to give New Yorkers a real chance to see whether they liked "combinations."

For, six years ago, all New York dealers, ourselves included, had only dabbled, playing safe with scanty stocks.

We combed the market; bought "combinations" in such a variety of fabrics and styles, and in such a range of sizes, as, we believe, New York had never seen gathered together.

Of course we still sell great quantities of two-piece underwear—carry all weights the year 'round—but "combinations" are our own particular pet—and it's small wonder when you see the hundreds of new friends they make for us every year.

Promptly at 12:01 this morning fifteen international bicycle riders, fresh and strong in appearance, started on the long whirl about the saucer-shaped track in Madison Square Garden in the twenty-seventh annual six-day bicycle race. A pistol in the hand of Charles Hanson, one of the promoters of the race, who took the place of Benny Leonard, world's lightweight boxing champion, as starter, barked as the sixtieth second was tolled off on the first minute of Monday, and the cyclists were away on their mad, tedious task of 144 hours.

A crowd of 10,000 persons turned out for the opening. This was one of the biggest crowds which ever watched the beginning. Every nook and cranny of the big Garden held its portion of humanity, male and female, all eager to be present when the endurance cyclists started in quest of the prizes. Women were prominent in the boxes, and scattered through the arena and upper tier seats, and yelled just as lustily when the race was started as did the men.

The riders had made eleven laps of the saucer before Starter Hanson's gun barked its signal. Gene Chardon of the French team was in front leading the riders around at a dizzy pace, but on the second lap he gave way to Oscar Egg, the Swiss rider. Willie Coburn went to the front on the third lap, maintaining the same terrible pace set by the preceding leaders, but the lead reverted on the next lap to Egg and the pace dropped off as a result of an accident to Chardon, who went down in the first spill of the race.

Song Birds Are Present.

The spacious amphitheatre presented all the old scenes typical of six-day races, and a couple of new ones. For instance, the song murderers—some people call them "boosters"—were aided in their nefarious endeavors by the music-distributing medium of Billy Sunday's sounding board, which was utilized by the evangelist two years ago when he established headquarters for trail-hitters at the old American League Baseball Park. This huge agency for deflecting the noise of the piano player and his cohorts hung suspended by long ropes from one of the great steel girders of the Garden, and was worked by a pulley arrangement which enabled the warblers to adjust it.

There was no board covering to nature's floor of the inclosure about which the circular saucer is built, and the standees who packed the ring stood on the dirt floor, which in previous years was carefully boarded over.

The familiar band was in the Madison Avenue end of the ring, blaring forth its music when the songsters stopped for a breathing spell. The band leader divided his attention between popular airs and some old time ballads and drew rounds of applause. In the ring, too, was the inevitable candy man. Off to one side of him was a strange counter on which rested snugly a huge barrel, carefully varnished and with red and white rings about its top. The barrel provided somewhat of a mystery for a time, but investigation proved it to be nothing more dangerous than apple cider. The vendors are observing the prohibitive prohibition religiously.

Familiar Places Are Changed.

Downstairs were the same old trappings, familiar to all survivors of previous six day races. The rifle gallery met you as you descended into the pit, and immediately after was the inviting lunch counter. On the turn to the right was the bar, not nearly as attractive or popular as before the prohibition act got in its work.

The management lengthened the track by constructing the inclined curves at the east and west ends of the Garden further back than in former years and bringing the sides of the track bang up against the boxes. A remnant of the recent Horse Show was visible in the freshly painted boxes, whose enameled sides and interiors shone out brilliantly, and a rim of green cloth added to the attractiveness.

Carpenters were still engaged in giving the track and temporary boxes about the saucer final strengthening blows of their hammers when the vanguard arrived shortly after 8 o'clock. The big amphitheatre filled up slowly thereafter, but by the time the riders took to the track to begin their chase of the lucrative prizes every nook and cranny had been occupied, while policemen outside struggled courageously to keep order among those scrambling for admission. The topmost gallery was the first to fill with its seried rows of faces. A majority of these tenants in the highest tier are here until the sweepers get busy Thursday morning.

Spill During the Tune-up.

The riders came on the track at 11:30 for the traditional parade. Hector Tiberghien of the French team hopped aboard a wheel and started a whirl of the saucer. He attracted only passing attention until he suddenly crashed to the floor while rounding the Fourth Avenue turn—the famous "death curve"—at a fast clip.

Instantly there was turmoil. Crowds in the ring rushed to the railing for a look at the fallen rider, while camp attendants hurried to the spot with assistance. Tiberghien was freed of his bike and assisted to his feet with nothing more than a shaking up.

Shortly after followed the parade. Tieberghien and Chardon were the first pair to circle the saucer amid scattering applause. Tom Bello and Lloyd Thomas followed and the crowd became more generous in their acclaim. Thereafter the applause grew in volume until the final pair, Alfred Goullet and Eddie Madden, had circled the track. Following Bello and Thomas came Fred Hill and Pete Drobach, Willie Coburn and Boekopsky, Willie Hanley and Percy Lawrence, Emile Aerts and Alfred Beyl, Clarence Carman and George Lang, Willie Keller and Fred Weber, Arthur Spencer and George Chapman, Maurice Brocco and Francesco Verri, Marcel Buysse and Alphonse Speissen, Oscar Egg and Marcel Dupuy, Reggie McNamara and Frank Magin, Ray Eaton and Harry Kaiser, and, last, Goullet and Madden.

The riders who started the grind for their teams were: Goullet, Eaton, McNamara, Dupuy, Buysse, Verri, Chapman, Weber, Lang, Beyl, Hanley, Kopsky, Dorbach, Thomas, and Chardon.

Chardon was riding in sixth position near the top of the embankment on the Twenty-sixth Street side of the Garden, when he suddenly slipped and landed with a thud on the flat part of the track. Stunned for a moment, the Frenchman quickly regained his composure and jumped to his feet, rubbing a lacerated arm. His partner, Hector Tiberghien, relieved him and rode for the opening two miles while Chardon recovered from the shock of his fall.

First Sprint Comes Early.

Before the expiration of the first ten minutes the huge crowd was treated to a series of sprints which had the spectators on their feet yelling madly. Oscar Egg and Francesco Verri were the alternates in a series of spurts which lasted for about a mile, and resulted in the partners of many of the riders taking the track in expectation of a "jam." The action subsided quickly, and soon the pedalists were following the tedious, steady grind which has characterized the first hours of the race for years. George Chapman was showing the way at the fifth mile, and his time was 12 minutes and 57 seconds.

On the sixth mile another spill occurred. This time on the Fourth Avenue turn, when Willie Keller had a blowout on the front tire of his wheel, and went crashing down the incline of Death Curve, carrying Percy Lawrence with him. Both riders were badly shaken up, but not injured, and mounted their wheels after a short relief.

Tiberghien in a Crash.

At 12:35, when the riders were entering the seventeenth mile, another spill occurred, the third of the first hour. Speissen of the Belgian Bear Cat team started a spurt and suddenly shot to the head of the field. The pack quickly picked up speed, but the sprint ended on the Madison Avenue turn into the Twenty-sixth Street side of the track when Hector Tiberghien went to the boards with a crash.

Chardon, who had fallen previously, was hurriedly summoned from his cot on the side of the track and rode while his partner recovered from the effects of the fall.

During the first hour the fourteen teams had covered twenty-three miles. This is three miles and six laps behind the record of twenty-six miles six laps, hung up by the Kaiser-Cameron combination in the 1915 race.

An enthusiastic fan offered the first "prime," a prize of $10, at 1 o'clock. The riders jogged along at a lazy pace for eight laps and on the bell Tom Bello jumped to the lead and went around at a dizzy pace, crossing the line a half a wheel's length in front of George Chapman. The officials decided Bello had ridden foul in not holding the pole position, and disqualified him, awarding the prize to Chapman.

YOUNG WINS ROAD RACE.

A brilliant piece of running in the closing mile of his journey landed Edwin Young of the Alpha P. C. C., the premier prize yesterday in the Harlem Heights Athletic League's handicap road race held over a course of about five miles, under the auspices of the Alpha P. C. C. The colored harrier, husbanding his strength through the first four miles of the race, while he gradually picked up ground on the runners in front of him, summoned all his reserve in a final effort which started when the finish line was about three-quarters of a mile away. He carried off first prize in an interesting battle with J. Magee of the Morningside A. C. Young's margin of victory was measured by the length of a city block. His actual time was 29 minutes 41 seconds.

W. Goode, another Alpha P. C. C. runner, finished third, and in doing so carried off the fast time prize. Goode started from the two-minute mark and covered the course in 28:57, a matter of twenty-seven seconds faster than the time of Wilson Jackson of the St. Christopher Club, who started off the 1:45 mark, and was virtually the scratch man. Jackson finished tenth.

The team prize was also captured by the Alpha P. C. C. athletes, who finished the race with the low winning score of 33 points, separated by a margin of eight points from the Morningside A. C. harriers. The Harbrook Heights A. C. quint was third with 46 markers.

Pos., Name, and Club.	Hand'p.	Actual time.
1. E. Young, P. C. C.	3:15	29:41
2. J. Magee, Morningside A. C.	4:00	30:56

ADELMAN LEADS HARRIERS.

Pastime A. C. Runner Finishes First in Bronx A. L. Handicap Event.

M. H. Adelman of the Pastime A. C. scored his first road-running victory yesterday in a career that has extended over a period of nearly two years, when he led home twenty-two rivals in the Bronx Athletic League's handicap chase, held over the Pennant A. C. course of about four and three-quarter miles. Adelman received the limit handicap of five minutes and this allowance played a prominent part in his victory. He held the lead from start to finish, and, beating off a challenge of B. Schiavone, Mohawk A. C., in the final quarter mile, won by a margin of fifty yards. Adelman's time was 28:03.

McCAHILL IS HIGH GUN.

Leads in Weekly Shoot of Larchmont Yacht Club with 90.

P. J. McCahill captured his second prize as high gunner in the second of the weekly shoots for members of the Larchmont Yacht Club, at Larchmont, N. Y., yesterday. McCahill led a field of sixteen rivals with the top score of 90. The high gunner competed from scratch together with W. B. Short and L. W. Thompson. Short was four "birds" behind McCahill with a score of 86, while Thompson trailed five back, returning a score of 85.

The high handicap prize went to A. B. Alley, whose score showed a gross of 78, to which was added a handicap of sixteen, bringing his total to 94.

The summaries:

A. B. Alley, 78, 16—94; L. C. Dalley, 71, 20—91; P. J. Cahill, 90, 0—90; J. G. Alley, 39, 28—87; W. B. Short, 86, 0—86; L. W. Thompson, 85, 0—85; E. P. Unitt, 69, 16—85; A. C. JOHNSON IS AGAIN ENJOINED BY YANKS

Court Order Obtained to Prevent Holding of American League Meeting in Chicago.

The latest move of the Yankees in their battle against Ban Johnson, President of the American League, is a new injunction which was obtained from Justice Newburger of the Supreme Court of New York on Saturday restraining Johnson, together with the St. Louis and Cleveland Clubs, from holding any annual meeting of the league other than the one which the majority members of the Board of Directors have called for this city on Dec. 10.

Johnson and the five clubs which now support him have made it known that they will take no notice of the call for the annual meeting which Comiskey, Ruppert, and Frazee, of the Board of Directors, have issued for this city. It is stated that Johnson plans to call his five clubs together in Chicago on that date.

The reason for obtaining the new injunction against the Cleveland and St. Louis clubs is to prevent the gathering of a quorum in Johnson's proposed meeting in Chicago. With only Detroit, Washington, and Philadelphia able to act, there could be no quorum and consequently no legally binding action taken by the Chicago meeting. The Cleveland and St. Louis clubs were singled out because both had been served in New York County with injunctions in the Carl Mays proceedings, out of which the present American League difficulties have arisen.

Effect of the Order.

"The injunction is incorporated in an order requiring Johnson and the St. Louis and Cleveland Clubs to show cause before the Supreme Court on Monday, Dec. 1, why an order should not be made restraining them from calling or holding any annual meeting of the members of the American League other than that heretofore called by the Board of Directors to be held at the Hotel Biltmore in this city on Dec. 10. They must also show cause why an order should not be made restraining them from taking any action to influence the National Baseball Commission from continuing to refuse to pay to the Yankee players the third place money due them from the world series games, as decided by the Board of Directors of the American League, and why an order should not be made restraining the defendants from denying or evading the validity of the actions and resolutions of the Board of Directors of the American League adopted since Aug. 1, when the controversy about Carl Mays arose.

"The order signed by Judge Newburger restrains the defendants from doing any of these things until the determination of the motion arising on the order to show cause. The defendants are also directed to show cause why the plaintiff should not have leave to serve a supplemental complaint which alleges that the defendants, and particularly Johnson, are endeavoring to do the things as to which the injunction order is issued.

"Attention is called in an affidavit of Colonel Huston to the fact that the National Baseball Commission decided on Oct. 29, in connection with a protest filed by the Detroit club, that the question of title to third place was for the Directors of the American League to decide, and that, subsequently, the American League Directors did decide that third place belonged to the New York club. Nevertheless, the National Commission, of which the defendant, Johnson, is a member, still withholds from the players of the New York club the third place money.

Information Withheld.

"The affidavit also alleges that Johnson has failed to acquaint the Board of Directors, notwithstanding the board's repeated demands for the information, with the details of the arrangements made by him on behalf of the league with the Western Union Telegraph Company and its affiliated companies and with other companies, looking to the sale of news privileges in connection with games played on the various American League grounds. It is further alleged that at a special meeting of the board, on Nov. 19, the sending of one of its attorneys, Nicholas F. Lenssen, to Mr. Johnson, was authorized to obtain an inspection of all papers in the custody of Mr. Johnson which undertook to establish any contractual or other relationship between him and the American League, the object of the board being to ascertain what his real relations to the league were.

"When a letter containing this request was presented by Mr. Lenssen at Mr. Johnson's office in Chicago, the request was refused, and Mr. Johnson caused to be published in the press on Nov. 20 a statement that he did not propose to recognize the call for the annual meeting of the members of the league to be held at the Biltmore, in this city, on Dec. 10, but proposed to have the meeting in Chicago, at which, according to Mr. Johnson's statement, 'the proper punishment will be meted out to the offenders,' meaning thereby the Chicago, Boston, and New York clubs.

"The affidavit further alleges that the Board of Directors has duly called the annual meeting to be held in New York, and that, under the constitution of the league, the Board of Directors is the only body authorized to call the annual meeting and fix the place for holding it.

"It is contended that the holding of such a rival meeting in Chicago 'will break up the American League and permanently injure the plaintiff's large property interest in the league and organized baseball as conducted by the league.' At the proposed meeting in Chicago, it is argued that Johnson intends and threatens 'to nullify and attempt to nullify the action of the court in protecting by injunction the property rights of the plaintiff pending litigation, and plans to take steps which will constitute "punishment" of the plaintiff for the appeal for the court's protection'; and further intends to have the third place money awarded to the Detroit club, and the acts and resolutions of the Board of Directors of the league nullified and his own course in suspending Mays approved, notwithstanding the decision of the Supreme Court of this State holding that the suspension was illegal."

GRUNDY HAS SPEED OVER HAVANA TRACK

Wins Oriental Park Handicap in Easy Fashion—Record Gathering Sees Events.

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 30.—A record crowd turned out at Oriental Park this afternoon. It was the largest gathering which ever witnessed the races here. The boxes were filled by Havana's most exclusive social sets and between races the promenade in the rear of the boxes reminded one of a big day at Saratoga.

C. A. Stoneham and John McGraw were occupants of boxes. The racing during the afternoon was excellent. The different events were keenly contested.

Ex-Jockey H. G. Woods, who is here with a couple of horses, and G. E. Wright showed up a shifty little plater, Polar Cub, which won the opening event in handy fashion. The Armonia Stable scored its first victory of this meeting when Riverside won the second race. The winner was ridden by a young Cuban apprentice, Penalver. John, Jr., and Money scored easy victories. Marse John had to be hard ridden to beat Point to Point by a head.

Grundy showed keen speed in the Oriental Park Handicap, which was won in easy fashion, the distance being run in 1:45 3-5. Baby Cal made a runaway affair of the seventh, beating Yenghee by a wide margin.

The stewards suspended Jockey Lux for five days for not keeping place with Corydon in the last race on Saturday when he blocked Berlin at the sixteenth pole. H. R. Shares of New York was down for the opening of the meeting. He sails for New York tomorrow. E. R. Thomas arrived from New York as a visitor this afternoon and expects to remain some time.

The summaries:

GOTTLIEB IN THE VAN.

Clark House A. A. Runner Wins Lower Manhattan Road Race.

J. Gottlieb of the Clark House A. A. showed his heels to fourteen rivals yesterday in the third handicap road race of the Lower Manhattan Athletic League, conducted over the Paulist A. C. course of about four miles. The Clark House runner, in receipt of the limit handicap of three minutes and thirty seconds, set the pace from the start of the race, and finished the course in the net time of 23:30. At the finish he enjoyed a lead of about twenty yards over M. O'Meara of the Paulist A. C., who started with the three-minute handicap.

Gottlieb's leadership was only threatened once during the run. At about the three-mile mark O'Meara, running strongly, came on even terms with the Clark House runner, and together they raced along for about one-quarter of a mile. Gottlieb then shot away to the front again and retained his position at the head of the pack to the finish.

The order of finish follows:

J. Gottlieb, Clark House A. A. (3:30), 23:30; M. O'Meara, Paulist A. C. (3:00), 23:20; T. Ruffino, Paulist A. C. (3:30), 24:10; F. Neubert, Paulist A. C. (3:30), 24:15; W. Burke, Paulist A. C. (3:00), 23:15; F. Krusies, Greek-American A. C. (3:30), 24:22; G. Richards, unattached (3:00), 23:59; C. Mulcahey, Paulist A. C. (1:45), 22:57; S. Devine, unattached (2:45), 24:03; G. Sweeney, Paulist A. C. (3:30), 24:55; F. Lavery, Paulist A. C. (scratch), 21:07; J. Cerino, Paulist A. C. (1:00), 22:55; W. Schippel (0:15), 22:27; J. Sweeney, Paulist A. C. (1:45), 23:57; J. Youngtofolus, Greek-American A. C. (3:30), 26:15.

NOVICE CAPTURES ROAD RUN

Arnheiter, in His First Start, Wins Pastime A. C. Handicap Race.

The spectacle of a runner scoring a victory in his first road race was furnished yesterday in the Pastime A. C. members' handicap race conducted over a course of about four and one-half miles in the Bronx. The successful harrier was C. Arnheiter, who was allowed the limit handicap of five minutes because he was competing in his initial chase. Arnheiter made good use of the handicap, for he led the field from end to end of the run and finished with an advantage of about 200 yards over S. Morse, who also started with the limit handicap. O. Phillipson, the scratch runner, was third in the fastest time of 24:24. Arnheiter's actual time was 27:57.

The order of finish follows:

C. Arnheiter (5:00), 27:57; S. Morse (5:00), 28:38; O. Phillipson, (scratch), 24:24; M. Barish (3:00), 28:07; L. Klepstein (5:00), 30:10; B. Mason (3:00), 28:12; R. Waller (5:00), 30:23; A. Miner (5:00), 30:43; L. Wechtman (4:00), 30:03; M. Kohler (5:00), 31:11; F. Allen (3:00), 30:42.

O'DOWD TO BOX IN LONDON.

Will Meet English Champion After Bout with Ratner.

Prompted by his victory over Mike Gibbons, Paddy Mullins, manager of Mike O'Dowd, has consented to take O'Dowd to London and box the English middleweight champion twenty rounds in the National Sporting Club of London. Preparatory to sailing for England Mullins announced last night that O'Dowd would participate in one more bout before the trip overseas. That bout, Mullins said, would be between O'Dowd and Augie Ratner, and would be staged either before the United Veterans' Club of Toronto, Canada, or in the City of Detroit.

"This fellow Ratner," said Mullins, "has been the only stumbling block that O'Dowd has struck up to date, and as long as we intend going over to the other side I want Mike to go over with a clean slate so that Ratner's previous bout with Mike will not be used against us in London."

Phil Bernstein, manager of Ratner, has practically accepted the terms for the last match that the champion will engage in before sailing. The two clubs mentioned above have already submitted bids for the bout.

SOCCER GAME ENDS IN GENERAL MELEE

Crowd Takes a Hand in Battle Between Robins and Federal Eleven.

A mixup, in which some of the crowd indulged, broke up the game between Robins Dry Dock of Brooklyn, leaders in the National League, and the Federal Ship team of Newark in the second round of the United States Football Association's Cup competition at Clark's Field, in East Newark, yesterday.

The trouble started after the Robins, in the second half, cut down a 2-0 lead, and culminated two minutes from time, when a Federal player made a lunge at Referee Walders of Philadelphia, who had ordered Ward off for fouling McGuire of Brooklyn. Ratican, former star on the famous Bethlehem team, who had shot the two goals that tied the score, was the centre of attack, as well as Van den Eynder, the Robins's right half back.

The Robins won the game by 3 goals to 2, although not allowed to finish, and they afforded what protection they could to the referee in getting him to an automobile outside the grounds.

The lineup:

ROBINS D. D. (3).		FEDERAL SHIP (2).
Renzelli	G.	Douglas
Robertson	R. B.	Houston
Brownlee	L. B.	Forsyth
Van den Eynden	R. H.	Stewart
Clarke	C. H.	Muir
Lance	L. H.	Neil
Garside	O. R.	Ellis
McGuire	I. R.	Logan
Ratican	C.	Richardson
Miller	I. L.	Ward
Shanholt	O. L.	Cullerton

Goals—Ratican (2), McGuire, Richardson, Cullerton.

FOOTBALL SEASON OF 1919 CLOSES WITH AMAZING RECORD OF CONSISTENT INCONSISTENCIES

WEAKNESS OF ARMY ELEVEN SURPRISING

SOME UPSETS ON HOLIDAY

Columbia, Penn State, and West Virginia Do Unexpected in Closing Week of Campaign.

The 1919 football season has taken its place in gridiron history as a campaign of upsets, surprises, and form reversals surpassing in these respects any season of recent years. Before the schedule had been half completed football followers had suffered more shocks than usually come to them in an entire season, and the closing weeks showed no letup in this condition of affairs. Even the big games which mark the close of the Eastern campaign furnished surprises. Princeton did the unexpected in tying Harvard and beating Yale, while the heavy Army team ran a poor second to the Navy in the final game of the year.

The closing week of the season, with games on Thanksgiving Day and last Saturday, was not without its surprises. While it cannot be said that the Army figured to defeat the Navy in the game at the Polo Grounds, or that the Navy figured to defeat the Army, there is no getting away from the fact that the contest developed some surprising features. Chief of these was the inability of the cadets to show at least enough attacking power to gain one first down.

West Point teams have met some of the strongest teams of the country in recent years, yet it is doubtful if any was ever so powerless against an opponent as was this team which came down to the Polo Grounds Saturday. The line caved repeatedly before the assaults of the Navy backs, and the cadets' attack was impotent to the extent that not once was a first down registered. In these days of open football, when the supposedly weak elevens so frequently display unexpected power against an adversary, it is strange indeed to see a team fail to show at least one play of ground-gaining value. The West Point team had size and previous games led to the belief that it carried a real attack, but the offense was a negligible quantity in Saturday's game.

Harder Schedule No Help.

The Army eleven had gone through a schedule that shaped up as more difficult than that of the Navy and this fact was frequently advanced as a reason why the cadets might be better fitted for their big game of the year. They had lost to Syracuse and Notre Dame, but defeats had proved the needed tonic for Princeton and the argument was advanced that West Point would profit likewise. The Navy's last game was that 121-point affair with Colby, which hardly could be dignified with the name of contest. Then came two weeks of preparation by each team. The Navy displayed a powerful attack between the 20-yard lines, but twice found it expedient to trust to kicking for scores. The successful kicks decided the game.

In two respects this game at the Polo Grounds on Saturday was the most unusual of the season. Neither team suffered through a fumble and neither was penalized. The only fumble of the game was made by a Navy player and he quickly recovered the ball. Only once was off-side play detected and in that instance both teams were at fault, so no penalty was inflicted. Considering the weather and ground conditions this performance of two teams playing an entire hour with only one fumble to mar their work, and that not costly, was remarkable.

The futility of looking to comparative scores was further emphasized in the other game of last Saturday, played at Boston by the teams of Georgetown University and Boston College. Georgetown, the only eleven to conquer the Navy this year, was opposed by one of the teams which the Army defeated, yet Boston College triumphed, while the cadets, who had defeated Cavanaugh's men, were being downed by the midshipmen.

Those Comparative Scores.

Comparative scores have been worse than useless all season, as may be gained from the following instances:

Georgetown was easy for Georgia Tech, the Yellow Jackets were defeated by Washington and Lee, yet the last named team was easy picking for Georgetown.

Wesleyan scored an impressive victory over Williams, and Amherst beat Wesleyan. Then Williams trounced Amherst badly.

Syracuse ran up a big score against Pittsburgh, the Panthers defeated Washington and Jefferson, and the Presidents took the measure of Syracuse.

Amherst beat New York University, but was defeated by Columbia. Then N. Y. U. scored a decisive victory over Columbia.

Syracuse, defeated by Indiana, scored a victory over Rutgers, a team which trounced Northwestern a week after Indiana had lost to Northwestern.

Colgate defeated Brown, but was held to a tie by Dartmouth, and Brown defeated Dartmouth.

Rensselaer defeated Hamilton, the latter scored a victory over N. Y. U., and the Violet defeated Rensselaer.

These are but samples of how the dope went wrong in the topsy-turvy season just closed.

Upsets on Holiday.

The Thanksgiving Day games furnished their quota of upsets. The most striking was the showing of Columbia against Brown. The Providence eleven had reached unexpected heights through a victory over Dartmouth, its last game prior to the contest on South Field. Columbia had gone through a season that bore the mark of failure, and was thought to be easy picking for the Brunonians. When these teams got together Columbia outplayed Brown, showed its best form of the year, and went far toward making up for past failures.

The Penn State-Pittsburgh contest furnished another shock. Bezdek's team had run up higher scores than had the Panthers in games against Penn and Lehigh, yet it was not believed that Penn State would display superiority oved the Warner machine to the extent of a 20 to 0 score. The absence of Morrow and De Hart may have been contributing causes, but they hardly explained the difference in figures shown by the scoreboard at the close of the game. Pitt had shown signs of recovery after the Syracuse débâcle and was expected to give Penn State a real fight.

The triumph of West Virginia over Washington and Jefferson was another surprise. The Presidents had lost only one game up to Thanksgiving Day, that by a one-point margin, to Pittsburgh. Failure to kick a goal after touchdown cost the game. Washington Jefferson had beaten Syracuse, Syracuse had swamped Pittsburgh, and Pitt had smothered West Virginia. It was another instance of Old Comparative Score taking a jolt in the solar plexus.

Centre College, down in Kentucky, closed its season Thursday with another of those scores which lack impressiveness because they are too big. Centre went through the season unbeaten, meantime giving demonstrations of real ability in the two games which produced the lowest figures. These were the 12 to 3 victory over Indiana and 14 to 6 triumph over West Virginia. Other opponents were sadly lacking in class.

NAVY IS WELCOMED HOME.

Victorious Football Team Gets Rousing Greeting at Annapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 30.—The Navy's football warriors were welcomed home tonight in the way deserved by those who turned the tide after four successive victories by the Army. Owing to a delay in the return and the fact that it was Sunday some features were not allowed and the more formal ceremony of "burying the Army" will take place in a few days.

The section carrying the football party was the last of the five trains to arrive, and the other midshipmen were drawn up inside the King George Street gate to receive them. The players were carried from the cars and placed in vehicles and dragged by the midshipmen to the front of Bancroft Hall, the only stop being by the old Japanese gong, where the custom of sounding the number of points scored against the Army was observed. In front of Bancroft Hall the coaches and players responded to the insistent demand for speeches.

Besides the trappings of the army mule, the midshipmen brought back with them to Annapolis a West Point banner, the saluting cannon used by the cadets, and any number of West Point caps.

HARVARD TEAM FAVORED.

May Be Invited to Play Game at Pasadena New Year's Day.

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 30.—The football team of Harvard University is the Eastern eleven most likely to be invited to meet a Western team here New Year's Day, according to a statement made tonight by S. A. Simons, Chairman of the Football Committee of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association. A definite selection is expected to be made tomorrow night.

The choice of the Western team will be made tomorrow. Three football squads are under consideration—the University of Southern California, the University of Oregon and the University of Washington. It is possible Governor William D. Stephens will be asked to join the city of Pasadena in formally inviting the Eastern team selected.

Wilhide to Captain Army Eleven.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Glenn C. Wilhide, quarter back of the Army foot ball eleven, today was elected Captain of the team for next season. Wilhide, who is a member of the second class, entered the Academy in June, 1918. He is 21 years old and a native of Maryland.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

Play Clean This Fall.

Through the entire length of the game between the Army and Navy at the Polo Grounds on Saturday but two penalties were imposed by the officials, and those two, as it turned out, both of them for holding, occurred in the same play, and so neutralized each other. This exceptional observance of the rules of the game was a splendid comment on the cleanness of the play between the two service elevens. But it is also pleasant to report that cleanness of play, though possibly in no other instance so conspicuously exemplified, has none the less been characteristic of the other games between the leading college elevens this Fall.

In advance of the season, certain Gloomy Gus commentators upon the sport opined that many of the games would be marred by rough tactics because of the number of men in them who had just returned from military service and who, it was unjustly contended, had subordinated all else in the service games to a desire to win. As a matter of fact, the reverse has been the case.

No players of football have evinced a finer brand of sportsmanship than those who acquired or who complemented their knowledge of the game on the improvised gridirons of France and Germany and at the cantonments in this country. In fact, no less an observer of the game, particularly in the West, than Walter Eckersall, states that the majority of penalties inflicted this Fall have been occasioned by men who never got any nearer the army or navy than a position on the curbstone during a victory parade after the armistice.

However this may be, the fact remains that never in the history of the gridiron game has sportsmanship been more consistently in evidence than this Fall. If anything finer could be said of the football season than that, one wonders what and how it could be.

Havana Sees a Chance.

It was little thought a few years ago that Havana, Cuba, would one day bid fair to become a sporting centre which would rival anything of its kind in this country. We have long been inclined to regard Cuba as rather snugly asleep in a strictly American sporting sense. But owing to recent developments Havana promises to be a very popular resort within another year or so.

There was something significant in the enthusiasm that attended the opening of the racing season at Oriental Park, just outside Havana, on Thanksgiving Day. Not but what racing is always welcomed there, but this time it signalized the beginning of a movement to make Havana a mecca for American sportsmen during the Winter months, a movement in which both Cubans and Americans are interested.

The Cubans and the Americans who are associated with them in various enterprises are taking advantage of an opportunity which conditions have placed in their hands. With the aid of the liberal laws of the Cuban Government they see a chance to attract thousands of Americans to Cuba during the Winter if they can offer such recreation and inducements as can not be had at home. The Cuban Government not only encourages all forms of legitimate sport, but it has provided against the possibility of a prohibition bill being enacted within the next thirty-five years. It hopes to make Havana a gay city which will remind Americans of the well-moistened Broadway of palmier and balmier days, and will also suggest a mixture of Monte Carlo and Paris. And no matter what the private opinion may be on the question of prohibition it can not be denied that a sheltered oasis on the very edge of the broad American Sahara will prove an attractive spot.

However, Havana has sufficient natural adantages for a resort place which have only awaited American ingenuity, and Americans are now taking a hand there. The racing plant has passed into the control of John McGraw and Charles A. Stoneham of the Giants, and will next year be under their direct management. The Cubans know McGraw well and he is popular on the island.

The present racing season at Havana promises to be more successful than those of other years, but it may be expected that in another year, when the Cuban capital has had a chance to prepare to take care of American visitors, better horses will race on the island and this sport, along with others, will enjoy a big boom.

Dempsey Not in Terror.

England's problem of producing a heavyweight boxer who possesses the necessary qualifications to acquire the world's championship in this class appears as far from solution as ever before, if the impressions based on the experiences and personal observations of Fred Fulton, Minnesota heavyweight, are well founded. The big plasterer returned to this country the other day with opinions on the British crop of heavyweights which reflected nothing but contempt for the foreigners. Particularly was this attitude shown in Fulton's expression of opinion on Joe Beckett, the man who now holds the English title.

The remarks were significant in view of the fact that Beckett and Georges Carpentier will clash Thursday night in a battle which is expected to produce an opponent for Jack Dempsey. The result of the match will stir up the promoters in this country and abroad who are agitating for an international match. In the event of a Beckett victory, which is the expected result in England, Jack Dempsey, world's champion, will have no cause for worry, according to Fulton. Beckett, says Fulton, is only a crude fighter whose ability to take and give, principally give, damaging blows has landed him at the top of an inferior collection of heavyweights.

That they are inferior is more than probable from the reports which have come to this country. For over a decade the British Isles have been scoured for a heavyweight suitable to enter in a world's championship bout and there has been no progress in the search. Bombardier Wells, clever and a heavy hitter, loomed up several years back as a possibility, until he invaded this country. He returned to England sad but much wiser. Now Beckett is the man of the hour in England, but his qualifications are doubted here. Fulton and his manager, Tom O'Rourke, concur in the opinion that Dempsey would have little trouble in disposing of the Britisher. Since Fulton and his manager have had an opportunity to obtain first-hand knowledge, their views are worthy of consideration. Fulton boxed Townley, Curran, and Coghill, rivals of Beckett in England's heavyweight crop, but all comparative novices when judged by their performances against Fulton. The American, it is reported, was forced to "go easy" in his bouts instead of finishing his opponents as quickly as he could. Beckett avoided Fulton consistently, disregarding the American's repeated challenges. The reason, Fulton says, was that Beckett feared a contest with him. In view of the circumstances and the fact that Dempsey toppled Fulton without waste of time, it seems reasonable to suppose Beckett would be a toy in the hands of the crashing, smashing Dempsey, if the two ever met in the ring.

Great Wielders of Cue.

When play in the national pocket billiard championship tournament begins in Philadelphia this afternoon, the third of the big events which have given such a pronounced impetus to the sport this season will be under way. It will be the last professional titular tourney to be held until next season.

Like its predecessors, the balkline and three-cushion events, held in New York and Cleveland, respectively, this tournament is attracting widespread interest. Out of it will emerge the player who will hold the championship for a year.

Ten of the best players at this style of game are entered. Frank Taberski, the most recent champion, is missing, and his failure to enter is cause for regret. With him among the contestants the list would be utterly satisfactory. However, it is representative, and compares favorably with the standard set by past tournaments.

There is quality a-plenty among the players. To the pocket billiard enthusiast the names of Bennie Allen, Ralph Greenleaf, James Maturo, Jerome Keogh, Joe Concannon, Edward Ralph, John Layton, Louis Krueter, Charles Seeback, and Morris Fink mean much in the world of the cue.

With such an array of cue wielders competing, the ultimate winner is hidden by a cloud of doubt. Allen, Keogh, Greenleaf, and Maturo undoubtedly carry the bulk of popular support. Allen, Keogh, and Maturo are veterans. They have undergone the acid test before.

Greenleaf has engaged in championship matches ere this, but he is young, being only 19 years of age. However, in the last year he has shown great improvement in his playing. It has been marked by greater consistency. Whereas he formerly was inclined to be erratic, showing his best form spasmodically, he seems to have overcome this, and recently demonstrated a consistency that augured well for his efforts in this tournament.

The New York entries, Louis Krueter and Joe Concannon, are capable of great things. Both share the same fault, however. They play in streaks. At times they are virtually unbeatable, but at other times they slump dismally. Ralph, Layton, Seeback, and Fink rate high. They are performers who can be depended upon to make their opponents play at top speed to show them the way on the green cloth.

The Appeal of Squash Tennis.

Although the squash tennis season officially begins today with the annual Fall scratch tournament at the Harvard Club, the popular game has already been in progress on all the club courts of New York since the coming of real Autumn weather put a stop to the majority of outdoor sports. A new life has been injected into squash tennis this year by the return of a number of veteran players from military service, as well as by the steady development of the novices recently added to the list of devotees. With an invitation scratch event at the Yale Club already completed, and two handicap club championships well under way, there is every reason to believe that a record-breaking Winter will be put in on the squash courts.

The galleries overhanging the varnished boxes in which the playing goes on through the late afternoon of every day are constantly filled with interested spectators, many of whom are athletes in other lines, seeking a pleasant and effective way of keeping in condition during the cold months. It is not long before these onlookers become active participants in the game, and once caught, they are not likely to escape its consistent fascination.

Charles S. Landers, President of the West Side Tennis Club, considers squash "the greatest of all indoor games," and the plans for enlarging the club quarters at Forest Hills are sure to include a liberal provision for squash courts. "More exercise, more fun, and more satisfaction" is the way the game's superiority has been summed up by other propagandists.

Today's tournament opens a series of matches in which the leading experts of America will compete, and offers a splendid opportunity for possible recruits to establish a favorable acquaintance with high-class squash. Lawn tennis players, in particular, will be attracted by the contests at the Harvard Club, a great many of them having already joined the ranks of the confirmed "squashers." With a number of old football men also interested, the week promises a real gathering of college sportsmen.

Moot Points for Gunners.

Questions of supreme importance in trapshooting will be decided this week. At a joint meeting of the Executive Committee and the Amateur Committee of the American Trapshooting Association, to be held in this city on Tuesday, vital matters will be definitely settled and provision made for what promises to be the greatest season in the sport's history next year. Trapshooting is another of the several sports that were given a decided impetus by the war. Marksmanship, naturally, was closely identified with soldiering, and the game felt the increased interest that was centred in it during the season now rapidly drawing to a close. More persons took active part, and the shoots were witnessed by larger galleries than ever before. But the prospects for next year are even brighter.

At last the amateurs are to take an active part in the management of the tournaments. For years the sport has thrived principally through the efforts of the professionals, but at the last meeting of the association at the Hotel Astor in this city the amateurs evinced a growing desire to be associated with the control, and their stand was welcomed. It is because of this that the joint meeting assumes such an importance.

How this control shall be divided is one of the momentous questions to be considered. The American Trapshooting Association is of the opinion that the sport can best be controlled by dividing the country into zones. By appointing managers for each of the zones there will be a head who will have absolute charge of the various activities in this district, a man who will be responsible for the conduct of the sport in the territory under his jurisdiction.

There are others who advocate giving the State associations supreme charge of the sport in their territory. They contend it could be efficiently managed by these associations, and that the scheme is far more feasible than the zone idea.

During the last season many new organizations took up the sport; in fact, there is scarcely a country club that does not boast of its traps now. And many golf clubs have installed traps. It is evidence conclusive of the ever growing popularity of this great sport, and there is every reason to believe that in 1920 the ranks of the shooters will be augmented by hundreds of newcomers.

Holy Name Five Wins Again.

In a closely contested basket ball game at the Manhattan Casino yesterday afternoon, the Holy Name Big Five won its seventh consecutive victory, defeating the strong Lyceum quintet by a score of 27 to 20. The Holy Name players led, 16 to 10, at the end of the first half, and had to go at top speed throughout the remainder of the contest to maintain their advantage. Connolly, Wassmer, and Driscoll starred for the victors, whose good team work was conspicuous. The Lyceum lineup included Smythe and McIntyre, professional players from the Penn State League. One of the biggest crowds of the season was in attendance. The Holy Name will play the Hollywood A. C. next Sunday afternoon at the same place.

O'NEIL IS HIGH MAN IN N. Y. A. C. SHOOT

Carries Off Scratch Prize at Travers Island Traps—Wind Bothers Contestants.

High winds were responsible for low scores at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club, where thirty nimrods gathered yesterday afternoon to decide the final Sunday shoot of November. The winds were so high that not a single straight string of 25 targets was made during the afternoon. Even the shoot for the high scratch prize, that generally has a half dozen or more gunners with full scores of 100, saw only a few with perfect scores yesterday. These will shoot off next week for the prize.

The high scratch gunner was J. O'Neil, who had 91 out of a possible 100 targets. It was an excellent total, considering the weather conditions. A special was taken by H. J. Thielman. Being the final shoot of the month, all of the regular fixtures came to an end. R. D. Sloan did the best work, winning the Tournament and the President's Cups. The Byronel went to H. E. West.

A. L. Burns and B. Dillon tied in the shoot for the Buermeyer Cup. Each had 45 out of 50, shooting from scratch. It was impossible to shoot off the tie, so it was postponed until next week. The shoot for the Lyon Cup also was put over until next Sunday.

The scores made yesterday are as follows:

	Tour. Cup.	Byronel Cup.	Pres. Cup.	Lyon Cup.	Scr. & Hdc. Cups.
C. T. Sum'rson	0 19	0 19	0 19	0 21	78, 0— 78
H. J. Thielman	3 22	2 24	3 18	3 22	75, 12— 87
A. L. Burns	1 23	1 24	0 21	1 25	90, 8— 98
G. J. Corbett	1 22	1 23	1 20	1 22	83, 8— 91
E. D. Anders'n	1 23	0 22	0 20	0 24	88, 8— 96
G. W. Gluck	5 22	6 21	6 23	6 20	63, 26— 89
F. W. Finch	4 24	5 23	5 25	5 23	78, 20— 98
W. R. Deleh'ty	4 25	4 25	5 24	5 25	82, 21—100
B. Dillon	1 25	0 20	0 24	1 22	89, 10— 99

BILLIARD TITLE IS WON BY BRUSSEL

Defeats C. Steinbugler in Play-off of Tie for Metropolitan Class C Honors.

Sidney Brussel won the championship of the Metropolitan District in Class C 18.2 balkline billiards last night by defeating Charles Steinbugler by a score of 150 to 142. This match brought to a conclusion the tournament conducted at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn, under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, and was a playoff of the tie that resulted when both Brussel and Steinbugler completed their tournament play with a record of five games won and one lost.

Last night's match ran forty-two innings and was closely contested all the way. Brussel took the lead at the start and held it most of the time to the finish. In the thirty-eighth inning Steinbugler passed him with a run of 26, which made the score 140 to 138 in his favor. Brussel ran 10 in his next inning and regained the lead, finishing the job with the necessary two points in the succeeding inning. Both men were in excellent stroke, and the winner was in doubt to the end.

Brussel's high run was 17 and his average was 3 24-42, while Steinbugler gathered in 49 in a single cluster and averaged 3 19-41.

The standing of the men as the tournament concluded was as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
*Sidney Brussel	5	1
Charles Steinbugler	5	1
Robert Steinbugler	4	2
Louis Servatius	3	3
F. W. Boyd	2	4
John Low	2	4
A. F. Jameson	0	6

The Efficiency of the Chalmers

Quality First

So much favorable comment has been made on the engine of the Hot Spot Chalmers that we are inclined to feel that many overlooked the other great essentials of this magnificent car.

Radiator to rear axle, it indicates perfect design, superior material, rare skill in workmanship, and an attention to detail that lifts it far above competition in price.

Service department records prove this high efficiency in a Chalmers by figures; it averages in cost to owners less than one per cent per year of the list price of the car for repair parts.

As a matter of fact once an owner's license plate is bolted on the Hot Spot Chalmers the car seldom returns for service.

Give it gas, oil, grease, water, and fair treatment and it'll respond like the fine "creature of steel" it is.

Invest
Your Money
Conservatively

Do not overlook the fact that railroad bonds, hydro-electric bonds, electric light and power bonds, government and municipal bonds, industrial bonds and many investment preferred stocks are now obtainable at prices far below intrinsic values. Securities of this character, selected with proper discrimination, offer unusual opportunities, not only as to enhancement of value, but also as to the return on the invested capital.

PREFERRED
STOCKS

Why do investors favor preferred stocks at this time?

When properly safeguarded by strong protective provisions, Preferred Stocks compare favorably with high grade industrial bonds as to security, income return and market marketability.

We are recommending a number of Preferred Stocks for investment.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Speculative State of Mind Depresses Stocks More Than Economic Factors.

Insistent sales of railroad stocks last week brought a new element into the reactionary market situation, without, however, uncovering influences which had not been at work before. The rail shares stood still in the main, or lost ground slowly, in the period from July 1 to Nov. 5, when the industrial group was being lifted under tremendous speculative operations. This being the case, it was no less than natural that the deflation of industrial stocks should proceed quite a distance before the rails joined the procession. The fact that stocks of the carriers had been little inflated, perhaps not at all, proved no barrier against the forces which carried down quotations of companion stocks in the last fortnight and longer. Nor did anything develop when selling of the rails was heaviest on Friday, which indicated fresh unfavorable matter affecting the further outlook for these securities. The crux of the railroad situation lies in legislation to be prepared by Congress in the session beginning today. That has been known for a long time. Opinion veers to the belief that a temporary statute will be evolved to enable the President to turn the roads back to stockholders by Jan. 1 and that an interval of quasi-Government control will follow during which permanent laws may be passed. This thought had been in the minds of railroad stock owners since the Esch bill was hurried through the House. The railway situation was the same last week as the week before and the month before, yet the stocks turned weak with a suddenness that caused considerable surprise in the market and aroused rumors of a disturbing quality. Back of this month's declining movement, which has eliminated 14 points from the average price of fifty representative stocks of all classes, there lie considerations of fundamental economic events, but it is doubtful if they have had the primary influence in the liquidation of speculative accounts. The deadlock in the soft coal controversy, the threat of trouble with Mexico, the renewed weakness of the foreign exchanges, shortages of labor in some localities, the emphasis laid upon accumulating supplies of copper, these were among the array of disturbing subjects of the week. Quite likely they accelerated sales of speculatively held stocks and urged liquidation of investment holdings to a degree. Yet only a few days ago stocks persistently rose to new high records under buying which ignored the falling exchanges, paid little attention to the loss of production caused by the steel strike, and only reluctantly heeded the signs supplied by heavily increased costs of stock market credit. A state of mind was largely responsible for the rise of quotations in October and early November which paid scant attention to danger signals. Stocks of the highly speculative class then moved forward so fast that they seemed to have no top. After the reaction began it was all the more drastic because delayed, and shortly the condition of the speculative mind reversed itself. Last week it was as blue as it had been rosy before the "break," a condition propitious for the professional short seller. Speculative Wall Street is always going to extremes. Inasmuch as the rise of the Summer and early Autumn went too far in discounting the prosperous condition of various industries, the prophecy is fairly safe that the reaction will also be carried too far. And whether stocks are high or low, business activity, which is now reported great despite the handicap of strikes and fuel scarcity, will progress unmoved by security quotations.

The decline of several Liberty bond issues to new low points during the week stirred up a variety of explanations. The sight of Government bond issues selling so low as to yield the purchaser more than 5 per cent. certainly told of heavy pressure. To the casual subscriber at 100, the establishment of a market value at 92 and lower is, perhaps, more potent than the mention of investment return. Among bond dealers repeated reference was made during the week to sales by individuals who wished to record losses to show in their income tax statements next year. If this sort of selling was really an important factor there was plenty of reason for suggestions to the Treasury Department that inventory value be substituted in place of actual sale value of securities for income tax returns. The dealer in bonds and stocks has this privilege, which is no less important for the investor in large blocks of bonds. Doubtless there were other equally weighty, if not much more influential, factors exerting force in the decline of Liberty bonds. The effort of banks to reduce their loan accounts implies measures to lighten the amount of Government bonds they are carrying for subscribers, which doubtless has necessitated considerable selling. Corporations are understood to have liquidated a portion of their investments in Government paper for the purpose of increasing their working capital without recourse to the loan market with its current high rates. Some one or some institution absorbs the offerings and an examination of the Liberty bond and Victory note situation is not complete without considering the fact that investors in recent days have acquired sound securities "cheaply."

Sterling exchange again descended below the level where a pound could be bought for $4. No sort of relief was in sight for the exchanges as the week ended, and there was an understanding in banking circles that foreign manufacturers who had studied the situation closely were becoming resigned to low rates for a long time to come. An unusually heavy outflow of cotton indicated that purchasers abroad were willing to pay the price, evidently counting upon a reimbursement of excessive costs through the sale of finished goods in markets where scarcity is causing high quotations.

MOVE FOR ECONOMIC UNION.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 29.—The question of an economic union between the States of the former Dual Monarchy is nearing a solution. A Hungarian representative at Gratz is already conferring with the Austrian Government concerning an economic rapprochement. The Czechoslovaks are also reported to favor closer economic relations. The scheme is favored by the Vienna sub-committee of the Reparation Commission.

The American member of the sub-committee, Colonel Smith, started for Paris tonight.

TO BRING OIL IN TRUCKS.

The Fess Rotary Oil Company has been reorganized into the Petroleum Heat and Power Company, with the backing of a number of widely known business men, and is about to undertake in New York and other Eastern cities delivery of fuel oil by tank truck service. The company believes the impending coal shortage marks an auspicious time for launching its project of converting coal burning industrial plants into fuel oil consuming plants without interruption of efficiency.

Officers of the company, which is capitalized at $2,000,000, are: F. Lathrop Ames, President; Robert Adamson, W. C. McTarnahan and F. Murray Forbes. It has made a long-term contract for oil with the Mexican Petroleum Company.

Long Time
Railroad Bonds

To Yield 7 to 8 Per Cent.

We offer a variety of long term Railroad Bonds to yield from 7% to 8%.

These bonds are the obligations of old-established Railroad Systems, secured by vitally important mileage, issued well within the fair physical valuation of the properties on which they rest, and followed by substantial equities represented by Junior Mortgages and Capital Stocks.

Please state particular R. R. system in which interested.

A Searching Test of Earnings

Westinghouse Air Brake

One of the most interesting and best indications of the fundamental value of the stock of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company is the cash and stock dividend record of the Company for the past eleven years—1908 to 1918, inclusive. This shows an annual average of 36.06%, or $18.03 per share in cash dividends and cash equivalent of stock dividends.

Details regarding this old established American corporation and its present outlook are contained in our recent circular C-13 which will be mailed upon request.

The Hydraulic Steel Company

7% Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock

CAPITALIZATION (upon completion present financing)	Authorized	Outstanding
7% Cumulative Conv. Preferred Stock, par $100	$6,000,000	$6,000,000
Common Stock, no par value, shares	500,000	200,000*

The Company will have no mortgage or funded debt.

The exact number of shares to be issued will vary slightly according to number of shares of old company exchanged.*

Each share convertible into 2²⁄₉ shares common stock from April 1, 1920 to April 1, 1921 and into 2 shares thereafter. Net profits, as shown below, average $6.93 per share on new common stock (200,000 shares) for last two years after deducting dividends on this preferred stock issue.

We summarize from letter from James H. Foster, President of the Hydraulic Pressed Steel Company, as follows:

The Company will own and operate four plants with buildings covering 60 acres, employing 3,400 hands. Operations extend from production of steel ingots, bars and sheets to finished stampings such as automobile frames and parts, truck tire bases, oil barrels, steel forms for concrete construction. Unfilled orders at present on the books exceed $7,000,000. The Company's profit-sharing labor policy demonstrated its high value during the recent Steel Strike. There will be no change in control or management.

Net Profits:

	Years Ending Dec. 31, 1916	Years Ending Dec. 31, 1917	Years Ending June 30, 1918	Years Ending June 30, 1919

CONDEMNS LABOR DEMANDS

Ole Hanson Says This Is 'No Six-Hour Day, Five-Day Week Country.'

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Pa., Nov. 30.—Ole Hansen, ex-Mayor of Seattle, attacked conscientious objectors, the I. W. W. and other radicals in a speech here today.

"If I were a service man in the recent war," he said, "and Secretary of War Baker declined to cancel the honorable discharges granted to the yellow hounds, the conscientious objectors, released after the war, I would refuse to keep my own honorable discharge if it were the same kind of paper the conscientious objectors got. Every man of you should ask your Congressman or Senator to see that no conscientious objector is permitted to keep an honorable discharge.

Hansen devoted some time to the coal and steel strikes.

"Let me say to the coal strikers and the Fosters of the steel strikers," he said, "that this is no six-hour day, five-day week country. I appeal to employers and employes alike—don't rock the boat. Employers have not given their men a square deal in the past, but labor is now demanding more than industry can stand."

PRESENTS RAILROADS' SIDE.

Ivy L. Lee Attacks Plumb Plan at Public Forum Meeting.

The solution of the railroad problem lies in the proposed plan of the railway executives, in the opinion of Ivy L. Lee, former executive assistant to the President of the Pennsylvania Railroad and now a member of the Association of Railway Executives, who spoke yesterday at the Public Forum of the Central Jewish Institute, 125 East Eighty-fifth Street. Two weeks ago the Rev. Dr. Richard W. Hogue, a Baltimore minister, spoke at the same place in behalf of the Plumb plan, and as a result Mr. Lee was kept busy answering questions for an hour after his address.

Mr. Lee characterized the Plum plan as "a very insidious proposition." He considered it nothing but a play for position by railway brotherhoods until a definite solution of the problem could be found. His suggestion for handling the problem embraced a return of the railroads to private ownership under laws guaranteeing protection alike to the public and the investor in railroad securities. The regulations, he said, should include enforced publicity, "the greatest protection in the world for the public," and freight and passenger rates, giving to the railroads a return on the investment that would attract capital and develop "our unbuilt railroad system."

BELGIAN SOCIALISTS' POLICY

To Participate in Government, Part of Whose Program They Approve.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 29.—At the first sitting of the Labor Congress Minister Vandervelde said that a majority of the Socialist federations approved of Socialist participation in the Government. He added that an agreement had been reached on the following points which are part of the governmental program:

Direct single vote for men over 21 years of age; democratization of the Senate—in case of a conflict the Chamber having the last word; the creation of resources adequate to the financial necessities; development of social assurances, including minimum old-age pensions; the solution of the housing problem, through the Government giving credit to the amount of 100,000,000 francs; an eight-hour day, and autonomy of the railroads.

The Merchant Marine and Fuel Oil

The merchant marine of the United States under the control of the Shipping Board now comprises 1,468 vessels, aggregating 8,109,058 deadweight tons, according to estimates of the Board recently given out. Up to the corresponding period of last year, the Board said, there had been delivered 394 ships, aggregating 2,277,831 deadweight tons, and 666 ships of 3,611,836 deadweight tons had been launched.

Steel ships included in the number of ships delivered to the Board were 1,004 ships, aggregating 6,455,208 deadweight tons; 16 composite ships totaling 56,000 deadweight tons, 448 wooden ships totaling 1,597,850 deadweight tons. The majority of these ships are equipped to burn fuel oil.

New Wood and Paper Export Contracts Amount to £20,000,000.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 29.—The economic situation in Finland has developed satisfactorily. At a meeting of the Central Chamber of Trade Mr. Ramsay, ex-Minister of Finance, and that contracts had been signed by big Finnish export firms in the wood and paper industry which would bring £20,000,000 into the country, and that at an even lower exchange rate than the present, would amount to at least 2,000,000,000 Finnish marks.

This amount, he said, would be sufficient to balance payments to foreign countries.

BOND SALES MAKE NOVEMBER RECORD

Deals Totaled $358,871,250 in Value, the Largest in History for That Month.

STOCK MARKET ALSO HEAVY

Transactions Involving 29,973,738 Shares Exceeded Only in 1916 and 1904.

Transactions in stocks on the New York Stock Exchange during November were the third largest on record for that month. The dealings in November, 1916, and in 1904 alone surpassed last month's total. Both were years in which Presidential elections occurred.

In the bond market the dealings were far ahead of any previous November record, the extensive trading in the Liberty issues furnishing the great bulk of the business.

Sales of stocks for the month aggregated 29,973,738 shares, a decrease of 6,912,646 shares as compared with October, but an increase of 15,253,575 shares, as compared with November last year. On seventeen days the dealings reached a million shares or more, and on two days they exceeded two million shares. The total of 2,632,835 shares on the 12th was the largest of the month, and 807,473 shares on the 24th was the smallest and the only full business day on which less than a million shares were dealt in since Sept. 26. For the Saturday half holiday the maximum total was 807,400 shares on the 15th and the minimum 368,883 shares on the 22d.

The following table gives the number of issues dealt in each day and the daily and weekly totals:

Date.	No. of Issues.	Total Sales.
Nov. 1	245	807,400
Nov. 3	286	1,743,200
Nov. 4	Election Day

Advertising is an Investment

Advertising and Turkey

It is estimated that Greater New York consumed 2,000,000 pounds of turkey at the highest prices ever paid since a day for Thanksgiving was declared.

Such prosperity is a lesson for the manufacturer who has been waiting for a propitious time to advertise. Surely this is the time to lay the foundation for a trade mark Good Will that will endure even if the tide of prosperity should eventually turn.

Advertising will, today, yield a big and profitable return more quickly than ever in the history of the printed word. But the great volume of advertising which this condition has induced makes it imperative that master minds be employed to evolve the most original, productive and economical methods, to influence the market, attract the ultimate consumer and yield a profit on the investment. And so we say—

"Put it up to men who know your market."

CITY OF LOWELL, MASS. INSTRUCTION TO CONTRACTORS.

The High School Building Commission will receive sealed bids at their office in the City Hall in the City of Lowell for the erection and completion of an Addition to the High School for the City of Lowell on property bounded by Kirk Street, Anne Street and French Street in the City of Lowell, Mass.

The Commission will receive bids to let the entire work under one General Contract.

Bids for the work must be made on the blank forms provided for the purpose and bound in the specification. The bid shall not be detached from the specification and shall be returned to the Commission with all blanks properly filled in and enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed: "Bid for the Construction of the New Addition to High School, Lowell, Mass."

Bids will be received up to 10 A. M., January 19, 1920. At a time set by the High School Building Commission the bids will be publicly opened and read and the award of the contract made as soon thereafter as practicable by the Commission.

Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the Architect, Henry L. Rourke, 525 Hildreth Building, Lowell, Mass. The Heating and Electrical plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the Engineers, Richard D. Kimball Co., 6 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

Contractors desiring copies of plans to take away will be required to pay the cost of same and are requested to order such plans from Ledder & Probst, 56 Franklin Street, Boston, Mass., who will furnish blue prints of all drawings when so ordered by the Contractors in writing. The Contractor is to designate the number of drawings he wishes.

Contractors desiring copies of specifications to take away will be required to order such specifications from the Architect who will furnish one copy of specification upon receipt of a certified check for fifteen dollars ($15.00) made payable to the order of the High School Building Commission, Lowell, Mass.

The Commission, however, accepts no responsibility for the delivery of these drawings, and the bid to be made and based wholly upon the plans on file at the Architect's office.

All questions as to interpretation of the plans and specifications made before the bids are submitted shall be addressed in writing to the Architect and written answers to such questions will be sent to every firm on record as proposing to bid.

No questions will be answered unless received seventy-two (72) hours previous to the time set for receiving bids.

HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING COMMISSION,
JOHN H. LAMBERT, M. D.,
Chairman.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—No reports have been received from Northeast Canadian stations since Saturday morning, but New England reports indicate that the storm of Saturday is central tonight, some distance northeast of Maine. Pressure has risen decidedly over the northern and eastern portions of the country and has fallen considerably in the Plateau region and the Southwest, with a disturbance over Eastern Colorado and the Far Northwest.

There have been strong winds and gales along the Middle and North Atlantic Coast, while over the Lake region the winds have diminished. There were light snows in the Lake region and rains in the Atlantic States.

The weather will be generally fair Monday and Tuesday in the Atlantic and East Gulf States.

Temperatures have fallen generally and considerably over the area covered by rising pressure, and are 10 to 38 degrees below the seasonal average from the Ohio Valley and the Lake region northwestward.

It will be colder Monday in New England and the Middle Atlantic States, and warmer Tuesday in the Ohio Valley.

FORECAST—TODAY AND TUESDAY.

WINDS.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1918.	1919.		1918.	1919.
3 A. M.	39	61	4 P. M.	42	45

MASTER'S SALE.

ERIE TRUST COMPANY, Trustee, Plaintiff, vs. NORTHWESTERN PENNSYLVANIA RAILWAY COMPANY, Defendant.

In the Court of Common Pleas of Erie County, Pennsylvania.—No. 3, February Term, 1919.—In Equity.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the order of the Court of Common Pleas, Erie County, Pennsylvania, sitting in equity, to the above number and term, the undersigned master will sell, at public auction, at the Court House, in the City of Erie, Pennsylvania, on the 27th day of December, 1919, commencing at 10:00 o'clock A. M., all the estate, rights, property, privileges and franchises of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Railway Company, including the following, to wit:

Situate in the County of Crawford, State of Pennsylvania, and County of Erie, State of Pennsylvania, and being property known as the Erie Division of Northwestern Pennsylvania Railway Company, extending from the City of Meadville, Pennsylvania, by way of Cambridge Springs to Erie, Pennsylvania;

Being all real estate, land, terminals, terminal rights, ways, rights of ways and easements; all permissions, consents, licenses, grants and franchises from and contracts with individuals, corporations, and the respective corporate and municipal authorities of cities, boroughs and townships through which the railway of said Erie Division passes; all stations, depots, wards, storage houses, power houses, car houses, sheds, repair shops, turntables, and all other buildings, structures and erections of the said Erie Division of Northwestern Pennsylvania Railway Company pertaining to or used in connection with the said railways of the said Erie Division or any of them; also all pole lines, generators, machineries, motors, motorcars, and all means of motive power and traction whatsoever; all freight, express mail and passenger cars; all other rolling stock and equipment; all material and supplies of every kind and character; tools, appliances, implements and all other personal property of the said Northwestern Pennsylvania Railway Company in said Erie Division; being the same property, real, personal and mixed, which was conveyed to Northwestern Pennsylvania Railway Company by duly authorized and executed instruments of conveyance from the Erie, Cambridge Springs and Meadville Railway Company, recorded in Erie County and Crawford County, Pennsylvania, to which instrument of conveyance reference is hereby made and being the same property formerly owned by the Meadville and Cambridge Springs Street Railway Company, and the Erie Traction Company, which two companies by merger became the Erie, Cambridge Springs and Meadville Railway Company, and any and all property, real, personal and mixed, choses in action, franchises, licenses, rights, claims or demands of every name, nature and description and wheresoever situate, enjoyed or enforcible, belonging to or appertaining to said Erie Division.

It being understood that the personal properties herein mentioned are to be considered as fixtures and appurtenances of the Railway Company, and are to be taken as a part thereof, and used and sold therewith, and not separate therefrom.

Subject, however, to the first mortgage and deed of trust dated July 18, 1907, given by the Erie Traction Company to the Security Savings and Trust Company of Erie, Pennsylvania, Trustee, recorded in Erie County Mortgage Book 58, at page 161, and in Crawford County Mortgage Book No. 73, at page 514, and the indebtedness secured thereby and represented by bonds which may be issued and outstanding at the time of such sale.

TERMS OF SALE:

No bid will be received for said property unless the person making such bid shall have previously deposited with the undersigned master a certified check, payable to his order in the sum of Twenty-five Thousand ($25,000) Dollars.

The balance of purchase price to be paid in cash upon confirmation of the sale by the Court, and upon delivery of a proper deed conveying said property to the purchaser.

No bid for said property will be received for a less sum than Fifty Thousand ($50,000) Dollars.

RITCHIE T. MARSH, Master.

BATTLE POSTPONES MEETING WITH JURY

Finds That Consultation Must Be Delayed a Few Days by Demands of Albany Inquiry.

.O PROTEST BY ALMIRALL

Governor Smith Returns to the Capital, but Makes No Statement On the Situation.

George Gordon Battle, who was designated by Governor Smith to act as legal adviser to the Extraordinary Grand Jury in an investigation, which the jury announced would include municipal departments and the District Attorney's office as well as some phases of the transit situation, returned to his home in Park Avenue yesterday, bringing with him a transcript of the jury minutes that had been sent to him at Atlantic City by District Attorney Swann.

Mr. Battle said he was making a further review and study of the minutes to familiarize himself fully with all that had been done to date, so that he would be prepared to proceed at any time the jury might be ready for his services.

It was expected that Mr. Battle would confer today with Supreme Court Justice Weeks and Raymond F. Almirall, foreman of the jury, but he found on his return that it would be necessary to go to Albany today to complete his investigation of the Department of Foods and Markets and the State Agricultural Department, for which work Governor Smith appointed him a Special Commissioner some time ago.

Some of the witnesses to be heard at Albany are from distant points outside of the State, and aside from the immediate need for getting this testimony, Mr. Battle decided that this work must be closed up before he took up any part of the jury work.

He called at the home of Justice Weeks and notified him of this situation, and he will write to Mr. Almirall to the same effect today. It was understood that the jury would be engaged for another week in the criminal anarchy cases and that no delay would result, therefore, to their city and county investigation.

Mr. Battle has had no communication with the jury or the foreman since he received a reply to his request for a stenographic transcript of the minutes, which stated that his request would be placed before the jury today. Mr. Swann, who is entitled, under the law, to receive a copy of the transcript of the jury proceedings, had a copy prepared for Mr. Battle when the jury failed to respond to his request at once.

No direct intimation has come from the jury to Mr. Battle that there is any objection to his acting as legal assistant. In a public statement on Nov. 28 Foreman Almirall told why Governor Smith had been asked to designate Attorney General Newton and said that a changed situation, because of the widening of the scope of the inquiry, had led the jury to believe that Mr. Battle had been eliminated. Previously, on Oct. 15, the jury had asked the Governor to designate Mr. Battle. On his return from Albany Mr. Battle will probably seek a frank discussion of this situation with the court and the jury.

Governor Smith, who went to Albany yesterday afternoon, said he had received no official communication from the jury concerning any protest against the appointment of Mr. Battle. The Governor said that all he knew about the matter was what he had read in the newspapers.

"I cannot make any statement unless objection is made to me officially," said he.

Governor Smith decided to go to Albany when the physicians in attendance upon his mother, Mrs. Catherine Smith of 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn, assured him that her condition was much improved. Mrs. Battle, who was at Atlantic City for several weeks because of ill-health, is recovering. She returned home with her husband.

ABBOTT FLAYS UNION RULE.

"Government by Clubs," He Calls Strikes, in Reply to Hecklers.

Dr. Lyman Abbott, following an address at the West Side Y. M. C. A. on "The Causes and Cures of Unrest," yesterday was heckled by several young men who asked why Soviet rule would not be beneficial for this country.

"Sovietism is government 'for, of, and by the people,'" one said.

"According to Lenin's own report," Dr. Abbott replied, "only hand workers are allowed votes. Employers, lawyers, ministers, clerks, and many others have no voice in government. That is not government of and by the people."

"How can any government that has the support the Soviet government has be a bad government?" another asked.

"A government that is despotic, whether it is the despotism of one man or of a club, is a bad government," Dr. Abbott replied.

Another young man asked Dr. Abbott if this country would not be better if all the capitalists and policitians should vanish from it.

"There are 22,000,000 Liberty bond holders in this country," said Dr. Abbott. "Every one of them is a capitalist. Nearly every worker is a capitalist an dnearly every capitalist is a worker."

Dr. Abbott said the country was suffering from "government by clubs." He citedl the Boston police strike, the printers' strike, the longshoremen's strike, and the coal strike as examples of union action which had caused the public inconvenience and, in some cases, great privation. "Sviet government is here," he said, "in this government by clubs."

Dr. Abott said he stood for the right of the Government to take over the coal mines, if necessary.

CO-OPERATIVE STORE PLAN

Ford to Help Employes to Reduce High Cost of Living.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30.—The Ford interests are making plans to establish stores, to be operated on a co-operative basis, for the benefit of employes in Highland Park, Dearborn, and wherever they have manufacturing plants. This will mean, if trial proves the scheme successful, the establishment of Ford co-operative stores in many cities.

In essential the plan covers the enterprise of buying in large quantities and selling at cost, thus enabling the company's employes to get down to rock bottom in the matter of such part of their living expenses as are involved in purchase of store supplies. One store already has been started in Highland Park.

It is understood that the stocks of these stores are to be compased of foodstuffs, wearing apparel, and other necessities.

of the last month
of the Taxable Year

FOR those organizations who close their books on a calendar year basis, the end of this month means the end of the taxable year.

Accounting errors that have a bearing on tax returns should be rectified before then, for once the books are closed the errors are usually past rectification.

The wisdom of retaining certified accountants at this time — before the books are closed — is obvious.

The 834th Consecutive Issue

THE many thousands of Harper readers will be glad to learn that, although somewhat delayed, the November issue of Harper's Magazine, printed as always upon the Harper presses, is now upon the newsstands, thus carrying on unbroken a publishing record of nearly seventy years.

For a time it seemed that, owing to labor conditions, this issue might not be published. The printers' strike, which tied up so many publishing plants in New York City, temporarily jeopardized this continuity, but the eight hundred and thirty-fourth consecutive issue of the magazine, now on sale, is proof of the enduring quality of America's most distinctive publication.

The delay has proved one thing conclusively---the great Harper public wants no other magazine in place of Harper's. The accumulated advance orders indicate an unprecedented demand. So, in order that you may not miss this unusually interesting number dress up!

You are never overdressed when you are dressed right—and the right wear for most affairs after six P. M. is dress clothes.

Of course, it is no pleasure to squeeze into the dress clothes you inherited from your college days—but why try?

Dress clothes cost no more than day clothes—in fact they are economical, for they save day clothes.

Drop into one of our stores and see how well you look in a Hart Schaffner & Marx Tuxedo or Full Dress Coat. It will be a pleasure to us, and may change your conviction that dress clothes mean an exorbitant outlay, many fittings and long delay.

THE tobacco for Robt. Burns' filler comes from Cuba—naturally no leaf takes the place of Havana in making a high-grade filler.

Complete-To-Wear
Suits and Overcoats
(Ready-To-Slip-Right-On)

Not Just Retailed By A Retailer

New York Fashions, with the Klaxon on the NEW—that's what we offer you in Suits and Overcoats, ready-to-slip-right-on. Our garments are cut yesterday and sold to-day, not cut during last summer for this winter.

As for economy, we tailor our clothes upstairs and we dispose of our clothes downstairs. There's no retailer in-between (unless he's hiding in the ceiling) to swell the low price at which we sell.
